Established First Paper In Pine County.

H. P. Robie, who is now located at Shreveport, Louisiana, in the dairy business, was in town Tuesday visiting with his brother-in-law, Robert Hoffman, and renewing old time acquaintances.

Mr. Robie started the first newspaper printed in Pine county, in this place, May 5th, 1873, called the Pine County News, which he ran for years. While running this paper he started the Rush City Post in January, 1875, which he ran for 17 years, and also the Mora Times in the fall of the same year.

In September, 1889, he sold the Post and went west, settling in Pierre, S. D., where he bought the Signal, which he ran for three years. He then went to Yankton, S. D., and ran the Herald at that place for two years. He sold out at Yankton and went to Sioux Falls, S. D., and started the Farmer, which he ran for five years, selling it out to the Sioux Falls Messenger, where it is now running as the Sunday edition of that paper. When he sold the Farmer it had a subscription list of over 20,000. He then went to Webster City, Iowa, and started and ran the Graphic Herald for five years, after which he went to Mena, Arkansas, and ran the Democrat in that place for three years. He then went to Texarkana and was city editor on the Four States Press for about six months, when he went to New Boston, Texas, and established the Bowie County Press, a weekly, which he ran for about two years and which had a circulation of over 2,000 when he disposed of it and went to Shreveport, Louisiana, where he now resides and

FARMERS' INSTITUTE JANUARY 13 14

Arrangements have been completed for the holding of a Farmers' Institute at this place on Wednesday and Thursday January 13 and 14.

The Men's Club have secured Stekl's hall and are taking care of the other details that are required by the State Department. We have been informed that this institute will be conducted by Forest Henry of Dover, J. J. Springer of Zumbro Falls, J. P. Andrews of Faribault, Prof. Smith of the State University Farm.

These men will be well able to handle almost any agricultural subject that may be brought up by our people, as their experience covers various lines of farming, in which they have made a decided success. The institute men are thoroughly practical in their teachings. What they have to say will not be based on theory, but will be taken from facts that they have proved in their own experience.

The new Farmers' Institute Annual No. 26 will be distributed free to those who attend the institute. This new book is said to be one of the best books ever gotten out for distribution to Minnesota farmers.

Women, boys and girls, as well as men, will find much at the institute that will be of interest and help. The intention is to make the institute of value to every one, and no effort will be spared to make it helpful to the people of this community.

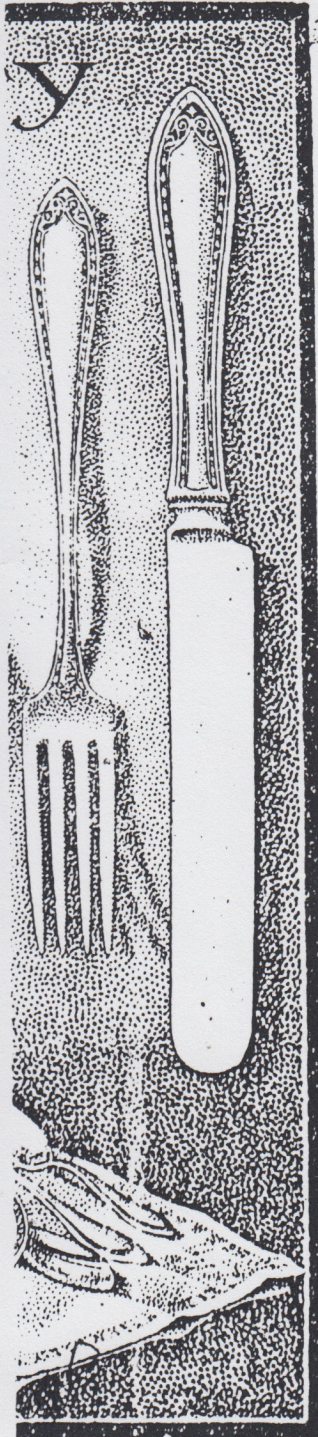

Sessions will commence promptly at 10 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. Everyone should be on hand at the commencement of the work. There are no collections or charges of any kind.

Mr. Robie is looking well and hearty and came up from the south to visit his mother and sister who reside at Rush City. While in town between trains Tuesday he shook hands with the old settlers that are left.

He says that Pine City has changed a great deal since he left here but he can still find some of the old landmarks. He informs us that the first issue of the Pine County Press was published from his residence, which stood about where the residence now occupied by John Jelinek stands, and he moved the office from there to a little shack on the corner where Rybak's store now stands, the shack was then occupied also by the county treasurer for an office.

His wife's name was Eva Hoffman, a sister of Robert Hoffman of this place. His two boys, J. V. and Ed., who are also printers, are at work at the trade, the former as foreman in a job office in Sioux Falls, S. D., and the latter in a newspaper office at Honey Grove, Texas.

Mr. Robie says he likes the South very much and would not want to ever live in the North again, but says it is nice to come back and visit old friends and wander among the places of his younger days.

We frequently hear it said that farmers move to town in order that they may have the use of the conveniences of the city home. This may in a measure be the truth, but there are many farm homes today that have as many conveniences as the average city home. Other farm homes should have these same conveniences and will have them when the farmer once knows that it is not necessary to move to town to get them. Attend the coming Farmers' Institute and if the question is not discussed, ask for information.
