A Sure Sign of Croup.

Hoarseness in a child that is subject to croup is a sure indication of the approach of the disease. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given, as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent its attack. Many mothers who have croupy children always keep this remedy at hand and find that it saves them much trouble and worry. It is always to be depended upon and is pleasant to take. For Sale by J. Y. Breckenridge, Druggist.

"Sigs"

Ten fishermen of Duluth, Lake County, Oregon, each owed to pay a neighbor 25 cents for a wild cat, caught or kept by him in the vicinity of Duluth's camp. For three months he had been hunting for himself, besides watching the surrounding country safe for his own, and then he doubted his earnings by means of the public benefit.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent. WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7, 1898. Spain was very careful that the string attached to its declination of our demand for possession of all the Philippine Islands should be in plain sight. Its claim that the wording of the protocol prohibits our demanding the Philippines is nothing more than a diplomatic dodge, intended to extend the negotiations, and its claim that our capture of Manila forty-eight hours after the protocol was signed was illegal, is much like that of the lawyer, who told his client that it was impossible to put him in jail on the evidence presented against him, the interview falling place through the bars of a jail cell, in which the client was confined. President McKinley and Secretary Hay know exactly that the Spanish Commissioners are after an offer of a large specified sum of money, as a ransom for the cession of the Philippines, in place of the offer to repay Spain an amount equal to what it has spent for public improvements on the islands. They know also that Spain really has no claim for a dollar, because it is not in possession of the Philippines and could not ever again be in possession of them, even if we should withdraw our army and navy from them. A final word now has a force that could easily whip any force that Spain could send against him, and would do it, if the Americans were not in the way. Knowing this, any sum that President McKinley may agree to pay Spain will be the result of liberality on the part of this government, and not of any actual right that Spain has to ask to be paid. No new instructions have been sent to our Commissioners, because none are needed. They know exactly what to do, and it will all end in the Spanish Commissioners giving in and agreeing to the treaty of peace upon our terms, and the matter will be settled probably inside of ten days.

Since Gen. Lawton, who was in command of the second division of the Fifth Corps in the movement against Santiago, gave his testimony, no more was heard about anybody being afraid to put Gen. Lawton on the stand, because of the fearful things he would tell. It has been the same in Gen. Lawton's case as in that of all the other officers of prominence who have testified. Before they were heard, things were put into their mouths by writers for yellow journals, that they had never dreamed of, after they have testified in favor of the general efficiency of the management of the war, as every one of them has done. Their names are dropped by the yellow journals. Gen. Lawton closed his testimony with these words: "Taking in consideration the conditions that we were obliged to face, the character of the country; its climate and other things being considered, I can say there were no serious or gross mistakes made. I can say there was no lack of care on the part of any of those in authority, whose duty it was to look after the interests of the camp. We had with us as fine staff officers as there are in the world; no better could be found. These men worked night and day, and no human being could do more than they did."

This government isn't looking for trouble in the East, but if trouble should come, it is fully determined that it shall not catch us unprepared. The cruiser Buffalo and the gunboat Helena are on the way, via the Suez Canal, to Manila, to join Admiral Dewey's squadron, and the battleships Iowa and Oregon are on the way, via Honolulu, to the same place. With these four vessels added to his present force, Dewey will have a naval force second to that of no country except England in East-sea waters.

The Department of State has just been officially informed that the wheat crop of France this year is the largest and of the best quality since 1871, the total production being 571,729,179 bushels, which makes it certain that France will lay more of this year's American wheat crop in this connection, it may be well to call attention to the fact that France is a little bit jealous because the U. S. makes the best flour in the world.

The French Ministry of Agriculture now has two expert Commissioners in this country, studying American machinery and tools used in making flour, with a view to ascertaining their cost and the feasibility of introducing them in French flour mills.

There is real grief in Washington on account of the sinking of the Spanish cruiser Maria Teresa, raised by Lieut. Hobson, while on his way to New York, to be put in good condition. It was estimated that the vessel, even in the damaged condition, was worth about $2,000,000 to the government, but has caused the money value that has caused the grief. It is so significant. Everybody has been anticipating that for years to come, the Maria Teresa would figure in our Navy as an object lesson of the prowess of our sailors.

President McKinley held a special reception in honor of the Fourth Ohio Volunteer Regiment, which passed through Washington on its way from Porto Rico home, in order that he might have the pleasure of shaking the hand of every member of the regiment. This regiment has the honor of having been the only one ever received by a President inside the White House.

Excursion is over and the people of the country will again resume their different avocations, no matter which way it went, as it will make no particular difference this winter, as the new legislature will not meet until a year from next December and the tariff will remain just the same for the next year. Cashman K. Davis will be returned to the United States Senate this fall by the election of Republicans to both houses of the Legislature. Minnesota will send a solid Republican Congress to Washington again this fall. The fugitives have elected just one lone candidate, "Honest" John Lind.

The New Railroad a Certainty. There has been a representative of the Great Northern Railroad Company out during the past week in Kanebec and Pine counties, buying up the right of way for the new short line that is to be commenced at once, the contract having been let the first of the week for the construction of the same. The average price paid is five dollars per acre for improved land, and where it comes in contact with buildings, the amount it would cost to remove is paid. The agent takes a deed and pays the owner spot cash for the same.

Some of the farmers up in the vicinity of Grass Lake were a little obstinate, and wanted a large price for their lands, but they are paying all the same, and the price offered can be taken or not, just as the parties choose, but the road will be completed in spring, and will be the main line between the Twin Cities and Duluth. The object of the Great Northern is no doubt to compete with the St. Paul & Duluth road, on the fast time between two great centers, and by the time the new road is completed, you will no doubt see some fast trains on both roads. Although the St. Paul & Duluth will have a little the shortest road, and their tracks are in excellent condition, they will have to lower their limited time if they hold the trade that they now have.

This road opens up a large tract of land that has heretofore been so far from a railroad station that settlers did not want to settle there, but a large number have already purchased lands.

TEETH OF SOLDIERS.

The Kaiser is Going to Have Those of His Troopers Put in Good Order.

Toothache has been lately a great source of annoyance to the Kaiser. Not that the imperial molars are, so far as I know, threatened with premature decay. Were this the case, nobody would risk the pains of loss money by openly asserting it. The case is, however, from a public point of view, far more serious. It appears that the entire German army suffers from dental troubles to such an extent that it has been found difficult to find non-commissioned officers capable of giving the word of command. When they attempt to utter orders through the "Mention!" "Stand at ease!" "Shoulder arms!" and so forth, mere confused and inarticulate sounds issue from their toothless gums. There are but enough of the private grunts, but what would happen on a battlefield on hardy ventures to enquire. Worse still, the boys in the training school for "non-coms" seem to get no lighter than their elders. Nearly all of them, after inspection, seemed to have one or more hopeless stumps, while a large proportion can only be rendered fit for service by street admission to the dentist's orders, and many are beyond the reach of art. His majesty has resolved to spend at once 11,000 marks on stopping the teeth of his Christian warriors, or in providing them with false sets. This applies only to the Prussian contingent. Several of the subject states have not made up their minds to incur the expense.

PECULIAR CHICAGO HABIT.

A Great Many Citizens Always Go to the Left in Entering or Leaving Buildings.

Chicago enjoys the exceptional distinction of being the only left-handed city in the world, in the respect that the people of this leading metropolis violate all the "rules of the road," so far as the matter of keeping to the right is concerned when entering or leaving public buildings. A man, for instance, approaches a building where the entrance consists of two swinging doors, he will invariably reach out with his left hand, "pull open the left-hand door and make a dash to get outside, running the risk of collision with anybody who remembers that to go to the right is the first law of navigation on land, says the Chicago Chronicle.

The habit of doing things the wrong way has taken such hold on the people that the man who uses the left-hand door and is run into glare in amazement at the "offender," utters a loud cry, and the offender, who makes no difference that there are two doors of equal width, one for entrance and one for exit. He, in going in, will seize on the exit door and reverse the proceeding if coming out. Half an hour's observation anywhere in the business district will demonstrate the truth of this assertion.

OLD-TIME POST OFFICES.

Some Points of Advantage About the London 2341 Established in 1877.

The postmasters were free from all public duties, from liability to quarter soldiers, and they received salaries free of postage, "whereas they advantage themselves in their common trade of carrying mail, and they have their single letters free to London."

The rates of postage in 1877 were comparatively low. A single letter, a. e. a letter, cost only a half penny, and only one-half penny for any distance up to 60 miles, and beyond 60 miles 8d. for 80 miles, and 1s. for 100 miles, says London Times and Opinions.

The mails were dispatched from London at 10 o'clock, and they were one to arrive in London early on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings. They were carried to Liverpool at the rate of 100 miles a day, and they were delivered at Liverpool at half past five in the evening. England was divided into six counties, or rather, into six districts, starting from Plymouth, Bristol, Chester, Edinburgh, Yorkmouth and Dover, respectively.

Wales was represented. "Gallant Sir Walter" says the London Chronicle, "is putting forward a claim for representation in the royal coat of arms, as well as his inclusion in the union jack. With this view a memorial committee has drawn up a memorial to the queen, praying that the royal coat of arms should be so changed as to include Wales, which, as they truly say, is practically unified, since it is a region of the most fertile and fertile of the empire for Wales. The claims of the principality to heraldic recognition are not to be dismissed. It is the only principality in Europe that has not distributed its blazon to exhibit to the world, although its history is associated with more than one emperor."

About Telegraph Poles. The number of poles used for telegraph wires per mile varies from 20 to 22 on higher lines, to 24 to 25 on main lines. These poles are also of great height in order that the lowest wire shall not be less than 32 feet from the ground, and as the poles are set in the ground from four to six feet, they measure from 20 to 22 feet in length. It is a very curious fact that the number of poles per mile, and the condition of the atmosphere, but the average is about 24.

The Trilled-Tree mention list heretofore has been very misleading, that the result of purchasing it would amount to $250,000.

SOME FAMOUS GARDENS, FORGOT WHERE HE WAS.

Deacon Purly is a pillar of church and society in one of the townships of the district, and he is a pillar of the district schoolhouse to talk over the situation and raise means for the good cause. There was a goodly gathering and the deacon had put the machinery in motion to get the schoolhouse to be a meeting place for the district schoolhouse to talk over the situation and raise means for the good cause. There was a goodly gathering and the deacon had put the machinery in motion to get the schoolhouse to be a meeting place for the district schoolhouse to talk over the situation and raise means for the good cause.

In Babylon, a crowded city built on a hillside, the gardens had their gardens in the air, hanging over the rocks, whence they could look far away to the distant sky-line. Here rich and rare blossoms grew and lovely foliage grew in a cool air refreshed the brow that had of the heated streets far below. The rich also had high, terraced gardens, on land, and a wicket of all the best gardens on the lakes. These were the gardens of the rich, and the rich soil and abundant moisture the flowers bloomed marvellously, while in the waters another garden—counterpart of the first—bloomed in a fair shadow-world. In such a garden as this one might have the enjoyment of movement, gliding slowly over the waves, or rest at will, moored on the bank.

Another fairy-like garden was the garden of the king, which the royal ladies of Persia and of Egypt delighted in, surrounded by burning sands, they were controlled by artificial means, to extend the waters of some spring in an oasis that was only a background and a profusion of flowers and terraces, and sprinkling the air continually with fountains that laughed and played in every such a garden as this one might have the enjoyment of movement, gliding slowly over the waves, or rest at will, moored on the bank.

The claims of the principality to heraldic recognition are not to be dismissed. It is the only principality in Europe that has not distributed its blazon to exhibit to the world, although its history is associated with more than one emperor."

About Telegraph Poles. The number of poles used for telegraph wires per mile varies from 20 to 22 on higher lines, to 24 to 25 on main lines. These poles are also of great height in order that the lowest wire shall not be less than 32 feet from the ground, and as the poles are set in the ground from four to six feet, they measure from 20 to 22 feet in length. It is a very curious fact that the number of poles per mile, and the condition of the atmosphere, but the average is about 24.

SOME FAMOUS GARDENS, FORGOT WHERE HE WAS.

Deacon Purly is a pillar of church and society in one of the townships of the district, and he is a pillar of the district schoolhouse to talk over the situation and raise means for the good cause. There was a goodly gathering and the deacon had put the machinery in motion to get the schoolhouse to be a meeting place for the district schoolhouse to talk over the situation and raise means for the good cause.

In Babylon, a crowded city built on a hillside, the gardens had their gardens in the air, hanging over the rocks, whence they could look far away to the distant sky-line. Here rich and rare blossoms grew and lovely foliage grew in a cool air refreshed the brow that had of the heated streets far below. The rich also had high, terraced gardens, on land, and a wicket of all the best gardens on the lakes. These were the gardens of the rich, and the rich soil and abundant moisture the flowers bloomed marvellously, while in the waters another garden—counterpart of the first—bloomed in a fair shadow-world. In such a garden as this one might have the enjoyment of movement, gliding slowly over the waves, or rest at will, moored on the bank.

Another fairy-like garden was the garden of the king, which the royal ladies of Persia and of Egypt delighted in, surrounded by burning sands, they were controlled by artificial means, to extend the waters of some spring in an oasis that was only a background and a profusion of flowers and terraces, and sprinkling the air continually with fountains that laughed and played in every such a garden as this one might have the enjoyment of movement, gliding slowly over the waves, or rest at will, moored on the bank.

PECULIAR CHICAGO HABIT.

A Great Many Citizens Always Go to the Left in Entering or Leaving Buildings.

Chicago enjoys the exceptional distinction of being the only left-handed city in the world, in the respect that the people of this leading metropolis violate all the "rules of the road," so far as the matter of keeping to the right is concerned when entering or leaving public buildings. A man, for instance, approaches a building where the entrance consists of two swinging doors, he will invariably reach out with his left hand, "pull open the left-hand door and make a dash to get outside, running the risk of collision with anybody who remembers that to go to the right is the first law of navigation on land, says the Chicago Chronicle.

The habit of doing things the wrong way has taken such hold on the people that the man who uses the left-hand door and is run into glare in amazement at the "offender," utters a loud cry, and the offender, who makes no difference that there are two doors of equal width, one for entrance and one for exit. He, in going in, will seize on the exit door and reverse the proceeding if coming out. Half an hour's observation anywhere in the business district will demonstrate the truth of this assertion.

Some Points of Advantage About the London 2341 Established in 1877.

The postmasters were free from all public duties, from liability to quarter soldiers, and they received salaries free of postage, "whereas they advantage themselves in their common trade of carrying mail, and they have their single letters free to London."

The rates of postage in 1877 were comparatively low. A single letter, a. e. a letter, cost only a half penny, and only one-half penny for any distance up to 60 miles, and beyond 60 miles 8d. for 80 miles, and 1s. for 100 miles, says London Times and Opinions.

The mails were dispatched from London at 10 o'clock, and they were one to arrive in London early on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings. They were carried to Liverpool at the rate of 100 miles a day, and they were delivered at Liverpool at half past five in the evening. England was divided into six counties, or rather, into six districts, starting from Plymouth, Bristol, Chester, Edinburgh, Yorkmouth and Dover, respectively.

Wales was represented. "Gallant Sir Walter" says the London Chronicle, "is putting forward a claim for representation in the royal coat of arms, as well as his inclusion in the union jack. With this view a memorial committee has drawn up a memorial to the queen, praying that the royal coat of arms should be so changed as to include Wales, which, as they truly say, is practically unified, since it is a region of the most fertile and fertile of the empire for Wales. —On Sunday night Mrs. Joseph Jungbauer met with quite a serious accident by being thrown from a buggy out near Wm. Peters' place. It seems that Otto Kowalke turned out to let Joe Jungbauer get past him, but Joe did not turn out far enough, and the hind wheel of his buggy caught the axle of Kowalke's rig, throwing Mrs. Jungbauer out between the horses, striking on her head. Dr. Wiseman was called, and attended to the injured woman. He was afraid she was injured internally, but the latest reports state that she is improving.

—According to the returns, the following officers will run the county for the coming two years: D. Grooley, auditor; J. H. Wandel, register of deeds; G. J. Albrecht, treasurer; R. L. —On Tuesday evening Messrs J. Y. Breckenridge, Otto Kowalke and H. J. Bath made arrangements to have the returns brought to Kowalke's hall, where delegates, candidates and many of the citizens met and discussed the way they thought the election had gone, the relative strength of each candidate, listen to the music furnished by the band, and last, but not least, partake of the choicest articles that had been prepared for the occasion. The chickens that formed the broth were an election bet between Otto Kowalke and J. Y. Breckenridge. All those in attendance report having had an excellent time, and speak in the highest terms of the qualifications of Mr. Stauty and assistants, as cooks.

—M. S. Watt has had a number of posters struck off, and has been distributing them for the past two days. The bills are advertising the horse and cattle sale which will take place at the village fair grounds on Saturday, November 12th. Mr. Watt will have for sale at that time horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, wagons, bugles, sleds, harness and household goods of all kinds. Last of the sale day Mr. Watt disposed of everything he had for sale, and was the instrument in bringing a great many people to town. If you want to buy a horse, cow, or in fact almost anything, don't fail to attend these monthly fairs. If you have anything to sell see Mr. Watt before disposing of it. Remember the date of the next fair, Saturday Nov. 12, 1898.

—On Saturday night, what might have proved a very serious accident occurred in Sturgeon River at this place. At 10 o'clock some of our citizens heard calls for help. Upon investigation it was found that a man was in the river near the railroad bridge. It is supposed that he fell from the back platform of the accommodation, as he was seen standing there when the train pulled out from the station. Garrett Corrigan and Robert Hoffman climbed down the trestle work near where he was and found him clinging to a roof. They got hold of him and held him until Jerry Connor could get to them with a boat, when they loaded him in and took him to shore. Upon reaching the Pioneer house he was stripped of his clothing and Dr. Wiseman was called. The man was overcome by the cold water, and was unconscious. The doctor and several of the men who had come to his assistance worked over the man for about an hour before his senses returned, when it was found that he was R. R. Walton, of Rutledge. Mr. Walton was kept in bed until the next afternoon. It was a very close call for him, as he must have fallen at least eighteen feet. The only injury he received was on the right elbow, which was bruised and swollen very badly. Mr. Walton can consider himself lucky that he came out as well as he did.

The Best Plaster.
A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on to the affected parts is superior to any plaster. When troubled with a pain in the chest, or side, or a lame back, give it a trial. You are certain to be more than pleased with the prompt relief which it affords. Pain Balm is also a certain cure for rheumatism. For sale by J. Y. Breckenridge, Druggist.

From New Zealand.
Reefton, New Zealand, Nov. 23, '96. I am pleased to state that since I took the agency of Chamberlain's medicines the sale has been very large, more especially of the Cough Remedy. In two years I have sold more of this particular remedy than of any other makes for the previous five years. As to its efficacy, I have been informed by scores of persons of the good results they have enjoyed from it, and know its value from the use of it in my own household. It is so pleasant to take that we have to place the bottle beyond the reach of the children. E. J. Scantlebury. For sale by J. Y. Breckenridge, Druggist.

The Dead Boys Entertained.
Yesterday evening an event long to be remembered in the history of the Pine City Cornet Band occurred. The band were all great admirers of Samuelson L. H. Johnson, and to express their admiration, they repaired to his residence for the purpose of giving him a personal farewell. They had not finished their first selection, when Mr. and Mrs. McKusick appeared on the scene, and insisted on the boys coming in out of the cold. After a brief season of social chat, the boys were invited to repair to the dining room, where they sat down to a table laden with the choicest articles of the season, to which the boys did ample justice. After the band's last selection the catables where they would be the most good, the party passed on to the parlors, where after a brief season was spent in social converse and listening to the music furnished on the piano by Fred G. Brooks and Lee Fairbanks, and musical selections by Messrs. Charles Smith, Brooks, Fairbanks and others. Those present were—Fred Brooks, P. and W. J. Gottry, Z. M. Edwards, Geo. Vanhook, Charles Smith, Lee Fairbanks, and Cassius Oscar Brandes. The boys did not hold to general remembrance the pleasant evening granted them through the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. McKusick, and their daughter, Miss Allie.

A CHANGE OF OPINION.
And Percy Found the Indignant Young Lady Soon Ready to Retract.
"I'll have nothing more to do with him," declared one of the belle of Detroit, who, upon receiving a card that invited her to a party at a certain street, refused him coming to it, regularly declined and then dropping off suddenly, she was at long intervals, just as she was about to leave him, "I never did see my mamma, if he calls I'm mamma, and if he asks me to go anywhere I'll tell him that I have a headache." "I never did see a sign of my finger for him, anywhere," and there were tears in her eyes, just as a evidence of good faith.

ANCIENT POLITICAL "RINGS."

Monopolies Flourished Centuries Ago in Rome and Egypt as They Do To-Day.
The evil of monopolies and rings was known to the ancients. Aristotle, referring to them in his "Politics," said then, as now, it was found necessary to hold them in check by legislation. The monopolist was in Roman law called a Dirigistarius and punished under the Lex Julia de Annona, says London Answers. Monopolies of clothing, fish and all articles of food were prohibited by Emperor Zeno under pain of confiscation and exile; so that it is certain that the "rings" of the ancient days were as mischievous as those of to-day. At Athens a law limited the amount of corn a man might buy. The earliest recorded instance we have was a corn "ring."

A CAMEL'S TWO AVERSIONS.

The One Disgusting Animal Hate Black Clothes and Does Not Want to be Touched.

Camels very frequently wear muzzles made of rope, and this leads to a misconception, says a writer in London Skeetch. It is merely to prevent them snatching at the trees along the way-side, and not on account of viciousness, for they are the kindest and most humane of animals, and I feel convinced, could not find it in their hearts to hurt a fly. They are, moreover, not half so conceited and overbearing as they look.

Two great dislikes they have. One is to people wearing black clothes and the other to being jostled in the streets, or even touched.

I once went to call on a beautiful white camel, and as it was Sunday, I put on a black coat. The camel looked at me, edged away, and finally turned his back to me.

Not understanding, I insisted on patting him, whereupon he repeated the same antics and gave a deep growl and the driver explained that a camel detests a human being chiefly because he becomes accustomed to the bossiness of the Arab.

LOCKED IN DEATH.

Coronors Hack Deer Whose Fierce Conflicts Often Result Fatally.

Although it is generally known how the buck beer fight and how sometimes in consequence their antlers become so intricately entangled, there are few persons who have seen them when so interlocked, says the New York Times.

At certain seasons of the year when the does are breeding their young the bucks are both very fierce and courageous in their protection of them and the approach of another buck is a signal for battle. In these conflicts it frequently happens that one or the other is killed and there are occasional instances in the course of these struggles of the antlers becoming interlocked between each other, which results in the death of both animals. One instance is on record where three pairs of horns were found thus entangled together, the skulls and skeletons lying as proof of the deadly outcome of the battle.

It is in October and November that the buck becomes so combative and in a few weeks thereafter he loses his sleek condition, sheds his horns and retreats to the denser forest.

Drawn by Washington. At a recent sale of autograph letters in London an original plan and survey entirely in the hand of George Washington and made by him in 1750 when a surveyor in the woods of Virginia, was sold for $50. A fine letter written by William Penn, dated 1707, brought $50.85.

Tetter, Salt Rheum and Eczema.

The intense itching and smarting incident to these diseases, is instantly allayed by applying Chamberlain's Eye and Skin Ointment. Many very bad cases have been permanently cured by it. Peccoliar Funeral Customs.

Swiss funeral customs are most peculiar. At the death of a person the family inserts a formal, black-edged announcement in the papers asking for sympathy and stating that "the mourning tray" will be exhibited during certain hours on a special day. In front of the house where the person died there is placed a little black table, covered with a black cloth, on which stands a black jar. Into this the friends and acquaintances of the family drop little black-magnified visiting cards, sometimes with a few words of sympathy on them.
