WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, August 14 1901.

What will the U. S. Industrial Commission say about trusts, in its report to Congress upon which its members are now supposed to be working? The steel strike and its complications have served to bring this question to the front. The Industrial Commission gave exhaustive hearings on the trusts, and their relation to labor and business, and the report should be of more value than such things usually are. If it should be unanimous, it unquestionably would be. But if there be two reports, signed respectively by the majority and minority members of the Commission, they would have no more value nor carry any more weight than the usual partisan reports put out by a Congressional Committee. Representative Livingston of Georgia, a member of the Commission, said in the course of an interview: "There is one subject the Industrial Commission proposes to handle without gloves and that is the trust question, and how it affects both capital and labor. The trust question is the most important problem we have to consider, and it will be disposed of first. In view of the present conflict between Capital and Labor, the consideration of this important subject will call together a full attendance of the members of the Commission. No one can now suggest what the recommendations of the Commission to Congress will be, but I trust and believe it will be independent of political bias and free from partisanship. It is not a political question, for both republican and democrats are directly or indirectly associated with the various trusts. As things are going now, it will require prompt methods by the government and extremely delicate handling of the subject to prevent a revolutionary contest between capital and labor. This state of affairs cannot go on much longer without serious consequences."

Some members of the Knights of Labor and the Anti-Trust League, in Washington, have started a movement to aid the steel strikers by legal proceedings against the steel trust under state anti-trust laws. They have engaged a lawyer and are acting largely under the advice of Ex-Senator General Monett, of Ohio, who claims that the members of the trust in that state can be imprisoned under the state law. The same men are trying to get Attorney General Knox to proceed against the steel trust under the Federal anti-trust law.

The Interior Department has received a resolution adopted by the legislature of Hawaii, asking Congress to impose a duty upon all coffee imported from other countries, "and in this way protect this industry in Hawaii and other parts of the U. S." The resolution will, of course, be sent to Congress in due time, but it is doubtful, very doubtful, whether the industry of coffee growing in Hawaii and other parts of the U. S. will be considered of sufficient importance to justify putting a duty on coffee. It is possible that coffee growing may become a great industry in Hawaii and other island possessions of the U. S., but it is little more than an experiment at this time, and in view of the official reports against the use of Hawaiian rubber in the army and navy rations, because of its lack of strength, it can hardly yet claim to be a successful one.

Council General Ballows, at Yokohama, reports to the department of state the discovery of rich deposits of iron ore in Southern Japan and the organization of a company to develop the territory, which is also believed to contain sulphur, copper and lead.

Mr. L. D. Hastings, of San Francisco, who is largely interested in Oriental trade, especially grain and food stuffs, who is now in Washington, thus emphatically expressed his opinion of the Treaty of Paris: "Our Commissioners who framed the treaty of Paris, which marked the end of the war with Spain, made a grievous mistake in agreeing to the 'open door' policy for the Philippines. The Philippine islands are American territory and will always remain such, and I can see no justification for tying our hands with a treaty agreement that will retain no trade privileges there that other nations cannot enjoy. It would be as sensible to agree that the other states in the Union shall enjoy no advantages in the markets of New York State that are denied to England and other foreign nations." Mr. Hastings expresses the opinion that the treaty is bound to make trouble in the future and that it will eventually have to be abrogated, unless this country adopts a free trade policy which he doesn't think likely.

By a decision of the Comptroller of the Treasury, $29,000 appropriated by the Agricultural bill for the current fiscal year for entomological investigation, is placed at the disposal of the Secretary of Agriculture to be spent in encouraging the export of American fruit either in guaranteeing a minimum return to the shippers or in paying all or part of the freight charges. While not so-called, it will in reality be a government bounty on fruits exported, to be paid in the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Without questioning the justice of the public censure of Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, by Acting Secretary of the Navy, Hackitt, for having written in his book disrespectfully of certain official actions of Hon. W. E. Chandler, when he was Secretary of the Navy, many are disposed to think that the censure would have been more seriously regarded by the public at large had it been preceded by some sort of official action, showing that the Navy Department disapproved of the disrespectful manner in which Maclay, one of its employees, wrote of Rear Admiral Schley.

CRIME STAMPED OUT.

Washington Now Is the Safest City in the Country.

Once Upon a Time, However, It Was Infested by Organized Gangs of Negro Criminals of the Worst Type.

(Special Washington Letter.)

"WE HAVE never yet had as many men on the police force as this city should have," says one of the veteran bluecoats; "nevertheless the force has wiped out all organized gangs of thieves and thugs. The

"When did the most vicious gangs exist here? Why, during the years just after the close of the war. At that time there were a great many crooks in this city.

"A gang which for a long time kept their identity unknown, while they robbed most thick and widely, was that of the Holloran. For a long time the city was started every day or two by the news of a safe robbery, the best known probably being that of the safe of J. J. Holloran's store on Pennsylvania avenue. In this instance safe and all, weighing over 200 pounds, were boldly carried away. These robberies inflamed the police for a long time.

"One night a sergeant was passing a dry goods store, and noticed the door standing ajar. His first impulse was to step toward it, but a glance showed him that the safe he would find there was covered by a revolver. He did not turn his head, but passed along. Collecting Sgt. Vernon and Officers Adams and King followed him, and captured two men, the third escaping. It proved to be Sol Holloran. Detectives Charvo and McDevitt and Lieut. Gessford searched Holloran's house, and there found a trace of some articles belonging to one of the safes that had been robbed. This gave them a clew.

The case was followed up and the remainder of the gang was located in the outskirts of Georgetown. Most of them were caught. Mr. Lutz's safe was found and recovered from the bottom of the canal, where it had been thrown.

"Charles Teague, a wealthy dairy, was one of the most daring burglars who ever worked in Washington. He had no one to help him, but always worked single-handed. Every night he would rob three or four places.

"The last organized gang of crooks caught him, and as he arrested the man he swallowed a diamond ring which might have been used as evidence against him. His name was in fact, and he was sent to a jail cell, and was kept there for a long time.

"The element which gives our police the greatest concern is the property of the freedmen. This class of men are generally uneducated, and they are generally unscrupulous in their crimes. They are a cowardly set. They will lie in wait with a brick, and when they see a man coming they will throw it at him. Their crimes are generally the result of drinking. When a certain neighborhood composed of darkies becomes generally unscrupulous, it is in awe of them they soon view him with the highest respect, and his appearance on the scene of a disturbance is generally sufficient to quiet them.
