WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 10th, 1902.

The winter political population is gathering in Washington. Familiar faces are once more seen in the hotel lobbies, in the Government offices, and about the White House, or rather about the President's office building, and the newspaper correspondents are hurrying hither and yon getting "tips" and getting them denied, vigilantly watching for "leaks" in regard to the great national "derry" which, probably will not be run for a year, but which has for its prize the speakership of the House of Representatives and for which there will be many entries though but one contestant can get the place.

As a result of the unquestionable election of a republican majority in the lower chamber, numerous candidates have been announced. The first actual contestant to come to Washington and proclaim his ambition was Representative Danzell of Pennsylvania, the apostle of protection in its highest form. With an almost solid delegation back of him and many high protectionists favorable to his cause, Mr. Danzell will make a vigorous fight and believes that he will have the moral support of Senator Hanna. It will be no easy race, however. Advances from Mr. Cannon of Illinois, state that he has established headquarters in Chicago and that he "proposes to win." His long service as chairman of the committee on appropriations he believes entitles him to recognition, but that very office has made for him many enemies whose cherished appropriation bills have fallen before his merciless ax.

Although New York already has the presidency and the secretaryship of war, she is not content and will put two contestants in the field, Representative Payne, now chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Representative Sherman of Utica. A handsome, well dressed man appeared at the White House recently and had a long talk with the President. It was Representative Overstreet, Secretary of the Congressional Campaign Committee. He refused to state positively his mission in Washington but it is understood that he is here to present the claim of Representative Babcock who has a record of five successful campaigns which he has managed. Up in Maine there is a gentleman regarded as typical of the new dispensation, who has serious hopes of presiding over the House. It is Mr. Littlefield, who was heralded last summer as the young David who would destroy the trust Goliath. Mr. Babcock has since come to Washington and is on the watch for every new arrival who holds a congressional vote.

As it to add interest to the situation, an unconfirmed rumor has reached Washington to the effect that Speaker Henderson would resign the speakership this winter and thus precipitate the fight. There is little ground for accepting the report but it makes things more interesting.

A report has been received from Iowa to the effect that Mr. Henderson would contest the gubernatorial nomination with Governor Cummins next spring and that he would have the support of Secretary Shaw who is himself credited with aspirations for the vice presidency. Mr. Shaw, when seen after the cabinet meeting at the White House, denied that he had formed any alliance with Gen. Henderson and professed knowledge of the Speaker's intentions. It is not likely that the Secretary of the Treasury will form any such alliance while he is still in the Cabinet, but that is not saying that he would not favor Speaker Henderson's nomination to be "vindicated" and to remove Mr. Cummins from an active share in Iowa politics.

The members of the Cabinet are now hurrying back to Washington to prepare their annual reports and to render all the assistance possible to the president in the preparation of his message. The first Cabinet meeting to be held in the new Cabinet room took place last Friday and lasted two and a half hours. It is understood that the President briefly outlined the features of his message to his advisors. In most instances the Cabinet officers are bringing their families with them and the social season will doubtless open in the near future. Numerous members of the diplomatic corps have returned to Washington or are on their way, and Secretary Hay is busily engaged with the Colombian and Cuban treaties on both of which it is said progress is being made.

General Corbin, adjutant general of the army, has made public his annual report the most significant feature of which is, perhaps, his urgent recommendation that the "canteen" or post-exchange which the sale of beer was permitted to be restored. He states that the cases of desertion and the infractions of discipline have greatly increased since the sale of beer was forbidden by the act of Feb. 2, 1901 and alleges that none are more anxious to see the exchange restored in its previous form than those officers "of pronounced temperance views."

Senator Beveridge has returned to Washington and will make arrangements for a brief tour of Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico, which are so loudly knocking at the door for statehood. It will be remembered that the Senator promised Senator Quay that his committee would report to the Senate the bill of admission already passed by the House before the Christmas adjournment.

The President leaves Washington tonight for New York. He will attend the dedication of the Chamber of Commerce building there and will then go south. He will be present at the reception of Luke E. Wright, vice-governor of the Philippines, at Memphis on Nov. 10, and will attend the Union League dinner at Philadelphia Nov. 22, after which he will return to Washington.

The Best Remedy for Croup.
(From the Illustrated News, Public Health.)
This is the season when the woman who knows the best remedies for croup is in demand in every neighborhood. One of the most terrible things in the world is to be awakened in the middle of the night by a whoop from one of the children. The croup remedies are almost as sure to be lost, in case of croup, as a revolver is sure to be lost in case of burglars. There used to be an old-fashioned remedy for croup, known as hive syrup and kola, but some modern mothers say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better, and does not cost so much. It causes the patient to "throw up the phlegm" quicker, and gives relief in a shorter time. Give this remedy as soon as the croupy cough appears and it will prevent the attack. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by L. E. Breckenridge.

Cut this out and take it to L. E. Breckenridge's drug store and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, the best medicine. They cleanse and invigorate the stomach, improve the circulation and regulate the bowels. Regular size 25c. per box.

BRECKENRIDGE'S PHARMACY.

We're not such much for learning,
As slow as some old cow,
We never had much yearning
For much learning, anyhow.
But in our trade we take the cake
In that we went through college,
If you will take the snakes we sell
That fact you will acknowledge.

Isn't it just too provoking
When one's heart is swelled with pride,
And the weed that one is smoking
Burns like this down
side.

Oh, what pleasure one does find,
What a source of perfect bliss,
When one smokes the "all right" kind,
And it
burns down straight like this.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

There are 1,333,145 acres of unappropriated and unreserved lands in Minnesota, of which 1,333,635 acres are surveyed and 5,019,408 acres unsurveyed, according to the annual report of the Land Commissioner Herman. The area of reserved land is 3,005,908 acres, and 42,644 acres are already appropriated.

The report says that the survey work authorized in Minnesota during the year included three contracts, with aggregate value of $6,100, and thirteen small surveys of islands under special instructions, the average cost of which was $15 each, all being payable from the general appropriation.

There is also a contract of $3,000 for surveying a remnant of Chippewa Indian lands, a tract of which was long of uncertain status, at the northwest angle of the Lake of the Woods.

She tried to Kill Him. May Smith, daughter of parents residing at Winona, attempted to kill Roy Williams in the shipping room of the Palmetto Hotel, Minneapolis.

Williams had promised to marry her, but declined to keep his word. The woman pressed a revolver against Williams' head and fired. The bullet struck near the eighth rib and passed upward in the region of the heart and inflicted a severe flesh wound.

Williams was arrested and when taken to the police station she expressed regret that she had not killed Williams.

A Young Highwayman. Night watchman Ryan of Morris, was called upon to arrest an 8-year-old lad who had played highwayman and held up a farmer with a twenty-two revolver, and emptied his gun at the farmer when the latter persisted he had no cash with him.

Shattered to Death. When Mrs. Peter S. Nissen, of Minneapolis, returned home after a shopping excursion at a nearby grocery, she was horrified to find her 13-month-old infant lying on the floor of the sitting room burned almost to a crisp.

For a time the mother lost her reason. She became hysterical and the neighbors feared she would do her best to bring bodily harm to the child. She was charged with her, and though suffering from the severe shock, she was reported as resting calmly.

Farmer Anderson living six miles east of Barnesville, while sinking a small tubular well, struck a substance which upon examination was found to be gunpowder. The drill penetrated through a twelve-foot vein.

Anderson shipped a quantity of it to St. Paul and it was declared to be dynamite. Senator D. M. Sabin offered Anderson $1500 an acre for his farm.

It was refused and a contract is said to have been made with the Great Northern railroad, allowing it to prospect the land.

BASEBALL, HARNESS HORSES AND FISHING DISCUSSED.

What did the prospective craft owner—cornfield sailor he called himself—do about the matter? He called the electrician into the fishing party and soon this clever workman not only had rigged up a dynamo of ten volts connected with the main shaft for the making of sparks, but he had wired the house boat and installed a home-made lighting dynamo.

A riverman who knew how to pilot the fishing boat was needed, and a former raft boat pilot was taken into the fishing club. He had the pilot placed in the forward end of the house boat, got the electrician to trim in a switch and install red and green lights for the necessary government lights, and the fishing boat was about ready for the excursion to the fishing grounds.

A carpenter was taken into the club to finish the appointments of the cabin, and with 20 gallons of gasoline in the tank for fuel the craft was ready.

Every Saturday this year this boat has been in use on the river, and the club has taken hundreds of fish from the river. All members of the club fish with paraphernalia strictly within the law, and derive more enjoyment out of the weekly trips than most people do out of expeditions that cost much more.

"There is no reason why any group of lovers of fishing living along our navigable rivers should not own a house boat of this character," remarked one of the joint owners. "Fishing is not the sport of the rich. We can make a really good house boat of some other equally good Mississippi river fishing ground on five gallons of gasoline, a comparatively small amount of money, and we can do so surprisingly low that it is wonder the house boat idea has not taken possession of more people. The rivers abound in fish, and the fishing is not taken to the fishing grounds. It is to be hoped that the boat club idea will have a greater vogue next year."

But Onward Silver, the stallion that will be recalled as the star performer of 1900 on the grand circuit, has stepped into the limelight as a remarkable one of the joint owners. MISSISSIPPI RIVER FISHING.

President Dan Johnson went hunting for duck recently, and Charles Coniskey drew the shot from the shells of the American League expedition. So Dan missed his ducks. Shifting his operations from the wilderness to his office in a big city, Mr. Johnson fired a double barreled charge of contracts for 1904 at the baseball world, and everybody is now talking of the world, he taken the American league ball, and will be seen in the New York outfield. Brooklyn lost a prize when Keeler was taken.

It may be expected that critics will say that while Johnson has given New York one of the best teams on paper anyway—that the metropolitan club he has weakened some other teams in his league. How has he done that? It will be asked. It is answered that he has weakened a single American league team. Dave Fultz, the great outfielder of the Athletics, would have been with the National League expedition New York team but for some great strategy practiced by Johnson's agents. The Baltimore expedition of the American League was divided on account of the abandoning of that city in the circuit, and a better place than New York was found. Howell, Williams, Jones and McFarland could not have been found. In addition to the frank announcement of the 1904 roster, there are plans for a few more changes, one of which may place Dierker Clark Griffith, of the white Sox, in the position of player manager in New York.

At last the objective point of the skirmishing, scouting and charging and assaulting of the American league for two years—New York—has been taken and occupied. The move was the principal one in the league's plan, and is pregnant with results that can only be speculated upon at this date. Certain it is that when the National league announces its marked features, that 10 more of their stars have been bagged, they will lay counter plans. The American league will be under "bribe" contracts. Will money buy them up? The whites will tell.

With the close of the Memphis trotting, the harness race season came to an end. Campaigning since July when the sport opened in Detroit, the harness horses of the season may be said to comprise some very satisfactory animals. The best green pacer and green trotter, it is said by critics who are able and fair, are Direct Hal, the beautiful black horse that Earl Carter, driver and Prince of Orange, also managed by the "silent man." Direct Hal certainly has commanded attention by his remarkably consistent performance. He has won 210 purses for 210 pacers went to him in straight heats.

Peter O'Brien, of Atwater, came over the latter part of last week and visited with relatives and friends. On Monday he accompanied George White, our station agent, to the northern part of the state on a deer hunt.

James LaRose, a Pokegama lake Indian, was quite badly stabbed at Mora in a scuffle. Jim, as he is called, went to Mora to draw his money from the government and while there got into trouble and was cut up pretty badly. He arrived here Tuesday and was taken to his home on the west side of Pokegama lake.

The entertainment given by Rube Allyn, under the auspices of the Woman's Reading club, and which was the first of a series to be given this season, was not very well attended, not nearly as well as this class of entertainments should be. Mr. Allyn has a reputation as a wit and humorist second to none, and those who heard him were well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

Rufus A. Hoyt, of St. Paul, who is spending a couple of weeks at the residence of H. L. Bassett at Rook Creek, made us a pleasant call on Tuesday. Mr. Hoyt expressed himself as highly pleased with the election and especially at the overwhelming majority that Gov. Van Sant received, for when Mr. Hoyt was here a couple of weeks ago he spoke very highly of the Governor, and said that he did not see how the people of the state could help but reelect him.

B. J. Enger has just received a car load of furniture and stoves which he is selling at an extremely low figure. Also a fine line of carpets and rugs.

CLUB WOMEN ENTERTAIN.

The Harte Residence the Scene of a Swell Reception Given for Hon. and Mrs. J. Adam Bede.

Tuesday evening occurred one of the most enjoyable and brilliant social events that it has been our pleasure to attend in this place for a long while, the occasion being the reception given by the Woman's Reading Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Harte, in honor of Congressman elect J. Adam Bede and wife.

The large rooms of the Harte residence were filled with the Club ladies, their husbands, gentlemen friends and a few especially invited guests.

After all the guests had arrived a short literary program was begun by Miss Stone with a very difficult piano selection, which received hearty applause and was responded to the next announced was a vocal solo by Miss Bessie Lambert, and in her selection she sustained her reputation as being a vocalist of no mean ability, she was roundly applauded, Mrs. Huger came next and held her listeners for a few minutes with a reading entitled, "Both Sides", which was very cleverly recited, and was compelled to respond to an encore, the last of the musical program was a basso solo entitled, "Song of the Sea", by Arthur Olson and for an encore sang "Boys Will be Boys", and in the latter selection the school marms could not possibly keep out, and cut in on the chorus with "Girls Will be Girls". The club president, Mrs. G. J. Albrecht, made a few remarks in behalf of the club, and thanked Mr. Bede for the interest he had shown toward the upbuilding and success of their society, and wished him every success in Congress. She also pleased that all formally be thrown aside and make the evening one not soon to be forgotten.

Mr. Bede responded in a talk of a half an hour or so, and held his listeners to the highest pitch of interest, while he expounded several facts, which he did in a most happy making a speech that is full of originality, bright, spicy saying and still is logically connected.

Fireworks were next on the program and the guests were furnished with a reminder of Fourth of July for about fifteen minutes, during which some of the number struck up "America".

After refreshments had been served all departed for their several homes. The highest praise can be accorded Mr. and Mrs. Harte as host and hostess.

POKEGAMA BLUEZES
Miss Augusta Davis, who lives near her home since last spring at Fritzzen's, left for Minneapolis on Monday, where she will live with her sister.

Last week Mr. Leuz and family moved down from Brookpark onto the Thos. Hady place, which he purchased some time ago.

Mattie Ableman returned to Harris last week, after spending some time visiting at Pokegama.

Mrs. Olson, mother of Mrs. Fritzen, arrived at this place Saturday. She was accompanied by Mrs. Johnson, of Minneapolis, who is now established as housekeeper at the Fritzen home.

The Indians of the West side all made a trip to Mora returning Tuesday, the occasion being "pay day". We understand that La Rose became entangled in a scuffle while at Mora and was stabbed quite badly.

CLEAN WATERING TUB.
Have a Down-Last Farmer Converted a Dirty Spring Into a Place of Beauty.

It is a molasses barrel that figures in the illustration, though barrels that have served other purposes may easily be made suitable. The spring was in a little run, or rather at the head of it, and the cattle going there for water always stood with their feet in the spring, making the water decidedly unpalatable for the cattle that came soon after them for a drink, to say nothing of rendering the spring totally unfit for people to drink from.

"I'll fix that spring so it will be a 'joy forever,'" said Jack, a month after he had taken possession of the farm. He took the aforesaid molasses barrel and saved it in two parts. He thoroughly cleaned out the spring and made a foundation of flat rocks for the half barrel to rest upon. He made a similar foundation eight or ten feet down the "run" for the other half to rest upon, and ran a bit of iron pipe from the spring into the second half barrel. The one over the spring had a square opening made in the head, which was left in to give a firm support to the staves, and a hinged cover was also provided for the lower half barrel, so that it can be closed when desired. A tin dipper hangs inside the half barrel over the spring, so that man and beast are now provided for, and each can drink the water at its best.—Orange Judd Farmer.

WATERING TUB AND COVER.

STRAW FOR LIVE STOCK.
In Many Sections It Will Relieve the Shortage of Hay to a Considerable Extent.

In many parts of the country the hay crop was very short, even in some places being almost an entire failure. The corn crop, of course, will be somewhat better, but the corn stover will largely relieve the hay shortage. If, however, no animals get pretty tired of it, and will not consume as much of it as if they could have a change. Now, if the wheat and oats straw be saved and dried, large quantities of it bright and dry, large quantities of it will be eaten by the cows and young cattle if fed to them once a day with the stover. Even if they should be a good supply of hay about the place, if it can be sold, and straw made to substitute for part of it, there will often be more profit in selling it than in feeding it.

There are always enough nutrients in bright, clean straw to pay the animal for eating it, and in the absence of sufficient more nutritious food, it serves the good mechanical office in the digestive operation of distending the stomach, or rather, of filling it. For this a quantity of bulky feed is essential in the ration for its most economical animal assimilation, and where large quantities of concentrated feeds are given, straw will often take the place of more expensive material.

Even on our western farms, where straw is usually valued highly, many only afford to grow wheat at present prices in consideration of having the straw for bedding, we waste large quantities by using an unnecessary amount for bedding, when part of it should be used in the manure.

If straw for bedding is cut into about one-inch lengths it will be found that about one-third as much as is used for each cow when uncut will keep the cow clean and be many times more valuable as an absorbent for our methods of economically carrying fur, and properly using every cubic foot of value that the farm and our labor produce, then we will feed much more straw than now—Farm and Elevator.

Wood Ashes for the Pigs.
The best pigs that we ever raised had all the wood ashes, with the salt mixed in it, that they would eat, says C. Green, the well-known breeder of Winchester, Ind. We think it is much better to keep a mixture of wood ashes and a little salt in a box where the pigs can go to it at will. They will go and get the ashes in the morning before they will eat their feed. We do not think it best to mix the ashes in the slop or feed, as that would make them eat more than they would want, and might be more than they ought to have. We have found that soft soap, made from wood ashes, is good to feed pigs to make them hearty and grow well. We think wood ashes and a little salt, kept where the hogs can get it, are worth more than all the cholera remedies put together.

GREEN CORN FOR PIGS.

Now Given an Experienced Iowa Farmer Who Proclaims It a Most Excellent Food.

The time of year has arrived for the theorists to get out their advice regarding the effects of feeding green corn. I have already seen many articles warning the people against the use of green corn to any kind of stock, and more especially hogs. Now, I have my own experience to follow. I usually commence while the corn is in the milk stage, and I sowed it on a blue grass pasture with not more than two or three ears of corn per head daily up to the advent of new corn, and I must say I never saw hogs gain as fast as they are gaining. It will make an assertion that will be met with very strong opposition. It is this: I believe there is more money made by allowing the pig crop to be carried through the first winter and only greened enough through the summer to keep them growing until new corn can be fed. I will try to give my reason as experience has taught me. In the first place, we have to feed our spring litters too much grain from the start, in order to make them grow. The following winter they have no time to grow bone or muscle. They are more liable to disease than when more mature. I will give my idea, or at least my fancy, regarding hog raising for marketing. In the first place, I want a good old Poland sow crossed with a full-blooded Chester White male, the pigs to come about the first of May. The sow should be allowed to run in bluegrass and white clover pasture, and she may have access to plenty of water to drink and also to wallow in with plenty of shade. She should be just kept in a growing condition through the winter and the next summer. The result is large healthy hogs. A very few bushels of corn will wonderfully whiten the corn, will argue that it does not pay to keep hogs so long. But you get to know your corn, and your clover pasture in feeding your spring pigs, and the difference in selling a 400-pound hog against a 500-pound hog will more than balance the extra feed and labor required to grow it.—John H. Carl, in Prairie Farmer.

HANDLING A BIG HOG.

A Comparatively Simple Method Which Has Been Found Effective and Satisfactory.

An easy way for one man to handle a large hog is by means of a three-eighths-inch rope ten feet long. Cut off three feet, and tie a loop in each end, as shown in cut. The remaining seven feet tie to center of short rope between the loops. Place loops over hind feet of hog and draw loop rope between front feet and over nose, then back again through both rope. Pull forward more or less, then back again as before and tie. This comparatively simple method has been found quite effective and satisfactory by many farmers following it. William Berk, in Orange Judd Farmer.

ALL AROUND THE STABLE.

In building a stable, have the side walls and ceiling so tight that they will prevent dust from drifting through, and so constructed as to keep cobwebs from collecting. There should be windows in at least three sides, providing not less than three square feet of unobstructed window glass to each animal.

Never allow animals of other species to be kept in the same room with milk cows.

At least once every two months, scrub your mangers with water and soap, or with washing powder.

Have the floor of your stable smooth and with a slope of absorbing liquids, with enough slope to cause good drainage.

Give cows frequent change of food. This increases their appetite, and the more food a cow consumes the more milk she will give. A cow possesses no creative power; she only consumes and transforms the food into a different form.

Sheep Feed Lots of Salt.

The bulk of the blood of a sheep contains nearly 80 per cent. of salt; the ash of the urine contains fully 83 per cent. Salt should always be placed available to sheep. Its effect on sheep is to give tone to the organism. Its scarcity in the blood may mean a relaxation of vital energy, and an opportunity for the development of those parasitic organisms. If sheep are deprived of salt for a little time they will show considerable eagerness for it.

AN INVALID WOMAN'S WORK.

Manages All the Business and Details of an Extensive Expressing Concerns From Her Bed.

This is what one little woman, a sickly one at that, accomplished in an occupation which was certainly an odd one for a woman to undertake. She runs an express business, and runs it uncommonly well. Many men have run express businesses, and it is conceivable that some women could do so equally well, but this particular proprietor of horses and wagons manages her affairs largely from her sick bed. Here is a curious case, indeed, so situated, few women would have had courage enough to attempt more than the management of their life did not suit her energetic mind, whatever her body had to say about it, says the Washington Post.

This woman express manager inherited the business from her husband. He had made some money, but she might have sold her horses and wagons and lived the life of a sofa invalid. But she knew something about her husband's business, and felt that she could run the business quite as well as it had been run in the past. Instead of selling, she bought. Her management was strictly, and she watched details carefully. Her first thought was merely that she could keep the business at the same level before, but she soon proved herself a better manager than her husband. Her patronage increased, and steadily her staff of workers increased. Her wagons rumbled through the streets and are known of all men, but few suspect that the surmises pertain to a frail little woman, who, as likely as not, is in the doctor's hands at the very moment.

Women are energetic and can attend to detail, but it is rare that one possesses the executive ability necessary to run a great business without being actually on the spot continually. Of course, this woman expresses her own view, but she is not so far from the mark while she remains a picturesque head. She knows just exactly what goes on in her stable.

Besides ill-health, this woman has had to contend with organizations far larger than her own—with the great express companies of the country, four or five of which send wagons into her territory, and even with the street car company, which operates a trolley express almost past her door. Only acute management could enable her not only to hold her own, but to prosper in the face of this rivalry. She does not expect ever to run an express business as large as those of some of her rivals, but as long as there is a comfortable annual increase in the amount of business done and the number of dollars on the fair side of the balance account, she is content to remain prosperously local.

Her success, be it added as a last word, has not had any especial local or important factor. She is a woman of "up against" misfortune more than once. A fire, an accident to her horses and other calamities have fallen to her share and she has made irroads on her profits. She is so far from being a favorite of fortune that she might have posed as a "poor thing" if she hadn't made up her mind that she was going to be "master of her fate," and incidentally, a good, paying business.

OLD AFRICAN GOLD FIELDS.

Vast Territory That Has Been Found the Yellow Ore Into Europe by the Millions.

The gold-bearing areas in the vast continent of Africa are apparently more in number, two of which date from the most remote times, says the Journal of the African Society. The first is found in the northeastern corner of the continent, including Egypt, Nubia and Abyssinia; the second extends along the whole of the western shores from Morocco to the Gulf of Guinea, while the third occupies the enormous areas in the southeastern districts. Ghana, the old name of the present-day Gold Coast, was almost equalled by the people of Dagombaba, who inhabited a large territory to the northeast of the Ashanti empire, the ornaments being made in weight to the extent of more than 1,000 ounces. In fact, the whole of the range of the Kong mountains were more or less well supplied with extensive deposits of the precious metal, the sources of which, and being the hills being the borders of the Niger. For centuries this vast territory poured into Europe millions of ounces of the precious metal, and coming down to Roman times, early in the eighteenth century, we find the Gold Coast supplying the yellow ore.

Dr. Robert Bell, who has been making a study of the west coast of Baffin Land, reports that the island is 300,000 square miles in area and the second largest island in the world, being surpassed only by Greenland.—Geographical Journal.

THOUSANDS OF WOMEN ARE SLOWLY DYING FROM CATARRH

Peruna Cures, That Is Why the People Like It.

Miss Margaret Donnelly, 91 Webster Place, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "Peruna was recommended to me about a year ago for catarrh with which I had been troubled nearly all my life, but which had given me serious trouble a few months before I took Peruna. In two weeks my head cleared up, I did not have headaches, and in a short time felt perfectly well."—Margaret Donnelly November Colds Should Not Be Allowed to Develop Into Chronic Catarrh.

Peruna Cures a Cold Promptly and Permanently.

"I am glad to recommend Peruna as it has done so much for me. I had been a great sufferer from catarrh of the head, and I was urged to try Peruna, and I am happy to say that it has entirely cured me. I shall never be without it and most cheerfully recommend it to others who are afflicted as I have been."—Katherine Dauter, 239 13th St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Some one gets cured of chronic catarrh by Peruna. After he is certain of his cure, he is sure to recommend it to his friends. Friend recommends it to his friend and the news spreads from tongue to tongue.

All the advertisements in the world could not make Peruna as popular as it is. Peruna cures. That is the reason people like it. Peruna cures a stubborn disease. That is why everyone recommends it. Peruna cures chronic catarrh after all other remedies fail, which explains why neighbor recommends it to his neighbor. Peruna cures catarrh permanently, and this way has gained a life-long friend.

People who have been cured by Peruna many years ago have been eager to recommend Peruna to their friends ever since. This is the way Peruna is advertised. It advertises itself. Once cured of so distressing and exacting a disease as catarrh, it becomes the duty of every one to pass it along; to call the attention of those who are still victims, to a remedy that rarely fails to cure.

Beware of Cheap Imitations of Peruna—Be Sure That You Get Peruna.

There are no substitutes for Peruna. Allow no one to persuade you that there is something just as good. The success of Peruna has tempted many people to devise cheap imitations. Beware of them. Be sure that you get Peruna. Miss Jennie Driscoll, 570 Putnam Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I heard so much in praise of Peruna as a specific for catarrhal affections that when I found myself with a bad case of catarrh of the head and throat Peruna was the first thing that I thought of. And my convictions were not wrong. In a few weeks after using Peruna systematically I was entirely rid of this aggravating and distressing disease.

"If people knew how efficient Peruna was for this trouble they would not hesitate to try it. I have all the faith in the world in it, and have never known of a case where the person was not cured in a short time."—Jennie Driscoll.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.
