Former Pine City Girl Married.

Announcements have been received here bearing news of the marriage of Miss Marie MacLean to Joseph Ananias Lemire at Grand Forks, N. Dak. The wedding occurred yesterday (Thursday). The couple will be at home after July 15th at the Montana hotel, Anaconda, Mont.

Mac, as she is better known to her numerous Pine County friends, is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh MacLean, who removed from this place about two years ago. Mr. MacLean, it will be remembered, conducted the photograph gallery here a number of years ago and up to his departure from here was employed as night agent at the local depot.

Mac's friends were only joined by her acquaintances, and we join in wishing that long life, happiness and prosperity be her lot upon the tempestuous waves of matrimony.

Let your clerk have a day off to go fishing. If he has the right kind of stuff in him he will appreciate it and if he hasn't it's time you found out that particular feature of his makeup. A clerk who does not appreciate a day off to go fishing and who does not get back to his work full of vim and a bounding desire to sell all the goods in the place in the minimum amount of time is no good to anybody.—St. Paul Trade.

Cement Walks.

A great improvement indeed is the string of nice new cement sidewalk which is being laid along the residence properties of Peter Engel, F. D. Vaughan and Geo. Payne. Not alone do these sidewalks improve the appearance of one's place but they also increase the valuation of the property and are apt to be far more substantial than any other kind of walk. A similar sidewalk has been laid around the side and front of the First State Bank building, and we understand the walk will be continued on past the Tyra block. These, together with the already vast amount of improved walks in town, will be added to by the crossings enumerated elsewhere, and Pine City will be able to point with pride at the neat and up-to-date appearance of its streets.

Council Proceedings.

Pine City, June 5th, 1905.
The common council of this Village met at the recorder's office at 8 o'clock p. m., members present: F. E. Smith, president; Aug. Carlson, Aug. Larson, John Alkinson and J. J. Madden, councilmen, and F. Poferi, recorder.
The minutes of the meeting of May 1st were read, and on motion were approved. One motion tonight was ordered put in, one at Devil's Lake bridge, and one at the ravine near Kluge's.
The following applications for the sale of intoxicating liquors were read, Lewis Steinpatz, H. J. Bath and Peter Engle. June 26th was set for a day of hearing and determining the same.
The liquor license for the ensuing year was on motion made to $750.
On motion a cement walk was ordered.

THREE RECEIVE DIPLOMAS.

Members of the Senior Class are Graduated Saturday Evening, Good Program and Large Attendance at the Exercises.

Despite the inclement weather last Saturday evening a goodly attendance of relatives and friends greeted the class of 1905 in their graduation at the high school assembly room last Saturday evening.

The graduates, Emmeline Artell, Hattie Pennington and Lillian Perkins, occupied seats upon the platform, as did also the President of the school board, D. Grosvenor, and Hon. J. Adam Bede, who delivered the "Class Address."

All of the numbers on the program were handled in a capable manner by the different participants and especially good were the orations delivered by the graduates.

The invocation was offered by the Rev. Geo. Parkish and Rev. Fr. Kennedy of Rush City was present and delivered the benediction.

A number of excellent musical selections were furnished by the Pine City Band under the able direction of Mr. Glasgow, and Miss Besie Lambert favored the audience by singing the beautiful and soul inspiring song "Asthore" by Bingham. Miss Jessamine Allen, who has just graduated from the Johnson School of Music, rendered two numbers upon the piano that brought forth much applause.

Hon. J. Adam Bede gave one of his characteristic speeches dwelling largely upon the value of educational and practical knowledge.

Upon the presentation of diplomas Prof. Hartley made an appropriate address to his graduates, after which the orchestra struck up a selection and the Commencement exercises of the Pine City high school came to a close, and three who had finished their high school education were the recipients of the congratulations of their many friends.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to all kind friends and neighbors who showed so much sympathy during our recent bereavement. And for the many beautiful floral offerings.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Graig and Family.

LOCALS.

If you live in Pine City don't let the census enumerator miss you. We want your count.

R. E. Welty accompanied by his wife of Superior, were Pine City visitors Wednesday. Mr. Welty is combining business with pleasure on his trip for the Zenith Paper Co. this month and called on his customers while in this place.

Among the visitors at the Pockegama sanatorium last Sunday were Dr. Taylor, Attorney Oppenheimer, C. H. Gerber and Mrs. Nason, all of St. Paul. Miss Nina Uspysky, of Cloquet, was the guest of Miss Murphy at the sanatorium last Friday and Saturday.

Frank, the three-year old son of Albert Hornick, of Beroun, died at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning. The cause of his death was measles complicated with pneumonia. He had lived at Beroun only about three months, coming to this county with his parents from Chicago. The funeral was held yesterday morning.

At a regular meeting of the Fire Dept. Tuesday evening it was decided, by a vote of 10 to 3, to release the option on the rental of Rath's Hall for the 4th of July, for the benefit of the base ball boys. The latter are in need of funds; in fact they are quite a little sum in debt and it was with a view to assisting the ball team that this move was adopted by the Department.

Quite a number of Pine Cityites attended the traveling concert and picnic at Rush Lake last Sunday afternoon. They report having a good time, but the rain which began to pour down at about 9:30 greatly inconvenienced those who had far to drive and therefore most of those from here received a "loyal" shower bath. Geo. Young of Rush City captured first prize by making eight rings in the rolling contest. He received a $5.00 saddle. Peter Young, another Rush City boy, received a bottle for gaining 2nd prize, and Henry Does of Nestle won 3rd prize, a whip.

ANNOUNCEMENT

To all Comrades of the Civil War 1861-1865 and of the Spanish War 1898.

The committee selected at the last department encampment, G. A. R., to arrange for the removal from the old to the new state capitol of the battle flags carried by the Minnesota troops during the Civil war, announces that this notable event will occur on June 14, 1895, Flag Day, the exercises to commence at the old capitol at 2 o'clock p. m., when the flags will be delivered to color guards previously selected by the respective organizations that they may be transferred to the new building with appropriate ceremonies.

At the recently adjourned legislative session an adequate sum of money was appropriated to defray the ordinary expenses of the occasion, and Governor Johnson has issued a proclamation in which he calls special attention to this great patriotic event and celebration of Flag Day, and in furtherance of the work of the committee he designated the eight members already selected as an executive board to take charge of the orderly arrangement of the details of the removal.

The complete program cannot now be announced, but there will be an imposing parade in which will appear the artillery, cavalry and infantry now stationed at Fort Snelling, the governor and his staff, the state militia, the state officers, Minnesota soldiers Civil War Veterans and Philippine war veterans, members of the Grand Army of the Republic, of the Society of the Army of the Philippines, of the United Spanish War Veterans and of the sons of Veterans. A large number of school children will also participate, presenting the living marching American flag.

The feature of the parade will be the survivors of the Minnesota troops and what is left of the flags they marched and fought under, these men to be arranged in regular organizations to the new capitol, there to be deposited in four beautiful steel cases prepared by the commission for their immediate reception and future preservation. Eloquent speakers, who served as Minnesota soldiers, will make addresses on the removal and delivery of flags, and the Governor of the State will receive the same and appropriately respond to these speakers.

Several bands of music have been engaged. Rates upon the railroads will be one fare for the round trip plus 50 cents. Tickets to St. Paul on sale June 13th and 14th to be used on the 14th or 15th in returning. Survivors of all Minnesota organizations are especially urged to be present, that they may march once more under their old colors, and it is also urged that regimental associations be called to meet as early as 10 a. m. June 14th to select color bearers. It seems almost unnecessary to suggest that the old color guards, if living and present, should have the honor of bearing the flags for the last time in the state of these flags. Forty-six in number, there are five formerly carried by the First regiment, Minnesota volunteer infantry; six by the Second; two by the third; two by the Fourth; six by the Fifth; two by the Sixth; three by the Seventh; two by the Eighth; four by the Ninth; two by the Tenth; two by the Eleventh; one by the First battery of artillery and one by the Second cavalry, in the Civil war; two by the Twelfth; two by the Fourteenth; two by the Fifteenth, in the Spanish-American war; and two by the Thirteenth in the war in the Philippine islands. There are also five drums to be removed with the flags.

Gen. J. F. Hubbard has been selected as chief marshal and will designate his own assistants. It is expected that a camp fire will be arranged to be held on the evening of the fourteenth at the new armory building in St. Paul.

J. W. Bishop, chairman.
L. W. Collins, Secretary.

Crossings.

A good move is to be made by the village in the installation of cement crossings, which will be completed by the first of July at least. These crossings are to be located on the square fronted by the First State Bank, Pine County, the Court House, Steinpatz saloon and the Pooker printing office. The other crossings contracted for will be laid between Horley's block and Smith's hardware store. Contractor Swanson will begin operations at once and will finish the work as soon as possible. The work will necessitate a blocking of half the crossings and the contractors will be not to be driven onto the cement, which will be graded as closely as possible.

A COMMERCIAL Club is always composed of the elite of the "trade." Such an organization, that will act, is bound to force any undertaking into proper shape.

Some editor with a sense of humor and yet a lot of other sense as well, has advised that when a man reaches that stage when he must take an "eye opener" when he gets up, a "bracer" at 10 o'clock, an "appetizer" before dinner, a "feeder" before supper and a "night cap" before bedtime, it is time for some member of his lodge to give him the danger signal.

Pine county now sports six newspapers, the sixth one coming into existence Friday, June 2nd. "The Finlayson News" is the name of the new creation and N. D. Simpson is its editor and publisher. Vol. I, No. 1 is new, neat and nobby, full of reading matter of more or less interest, and contains a goodly amount of advertising which goes to show that the business men of Finlayson are not idle in their efforts to succeed in progressing. We wish the new paper every success and its readers a full measure of literary goodies each week.

SEEKING CIVILIZATION.

"Please help me, you nations," says China. "You are full of lustre and glory. You've impressed me with the reason."

"The old and decrepit and slow, I have I have here for ages unnumbered. And I've tried to be civilized, but now I must bustle and worry. For I want to be civilized, too."

"Be some of your industrial nations. And teach me the wharfbour of trade. Instruct me in managing a sawmill. And teach me to murder like you. There are methods of quelling the mob."

"From the many to please the few—Some I know, but teach me the others. For I want to be civilized, too."

"And you nations that call yourselves Christians. What you please say some head to my plights. Oh, you poor Puritan missions. Whose income are blameless of taint. The men that profess your religion. Speak sweetly—whisper they say. So that no one prevent and practice. For I want to be civilized, too."

"And must I seek an instructor. Familiar with powder and steel. For you Christians, I know, only honor. The talk that the butcher as well. So sell me your gun and torpedoes. And teach me to murder like you. Henceforward I'll bully and slaughter. For I want to be civilized, too."

A World's Fair "Scoop"

WAS reading the story of the reporter who scribbled on the mystery of a wedding which puzzled all the city editors, and it reminds me of another piece of luck that made the city editors and reporters on the Record 'sit up and take notice,' said Ed. Igleheart.

Igleheart—he is now Mr. William Igleheart and manages the Salt Lake Herald of which W. A. Clark is proprietor—developed in Chicago the qualities which have made him a successful newspaper publisher. During the days of the world's fair he was in charge of the Record's bureau on the grounds and bossed a staff that was enthusiastic, active and ardent. He prided himself upon his ability to get every bit of news on the ground a day or two ahead of anybody else.

One day the rumor reached the office that Thomas A. Edison was in the city, and had been on the fair grounds every day for a week without being recognized or interviewed. Mr. Edison's opinion of the fair, and particularly of the electrical display, had been awaited by every electrical expert in the country and the value of his impressions of the great exhibition was too apparent to need a diagram. News that the wizard was close at hand, and that he had been prowling about for a week without discovery, gave Igleheart a shock which produced something partaking of the symptoms of both nervous prostration and heart disease. He was certainly worried and his nights were sleepless.

Every day he tried a new scheme, and every man on the staff tried his hand at locating the great inventor. The electricity building was watched, the grounds were divided up into sections, a section assigned to each reporter, and a patrol system established which would have done credit to the experienced sleuths of Scotland Yard.

A face so familiar as Edison's offered hope of detection even in a big crowd, but with 200,000 or 300,000 visitors on the grounds the task proved insuperable. Prof. Barrett, who was chief of the "electricity" department, had no information to give no light to offer, and the boys were at their wits' end, scarce all the time for fear that some other paper would blossom with an Edison story.

Finally, after two days of anxiety, which threatened to send every member of the staff to the detention hospital, Igleheart decided to participate actively in the search himself. He accordingly went to the electricity building, walked into the chief's office and found the assistant, Dr. Allan Hornsby, there alone. Without giving Hornsby a chance to collect himself, Igleheart said:

"Doc, I want to find Edison. I've just got to have an interview with him, and must have it to-night."

Hornsby, an old and thoroughly experienced newspaper man himself, smiled guiltily and tried to dodge, but when pushed to the extreme, that Edison was in town, and that his whereabouts were known.

Edison is you couldn't get at him. I'd like to help you, but I can't, and that is all there is to it. You will have to try somewhere else."

At the end of another hour and half on the ground of friendly Hornsby agreed to take him to Edison on the stationery of the department of electricity. It read this way:

"Dear Mr. Edison: The bearer is a reporter from the Chicago Record. He knows that you are in town, wants an interview and wants to have it for the persistence he has shown in locating you. With fear and trembling, I am, sincerely yours,

Wm. A. Igleheart. Once in possession of the note Igleheart again tackled Hornsby for a mere hint as to the whereabouts of Edison. It was without avail. The assistant chief would not give further information, and Igleheart finally returned to his office. He thought the matter over, he figured on the possibilities and tried to evolve some scheme which might lead to a reasonable interview with the inventor. Igleheart called Herbert Wright, then a reporter on his staff, now a broker in New York, and told him to go to the residence of Lafayette McWilliams in Lake Avenue, present the note which Hornsby had written and on no account leave the house without an inference.

Next morning there was a two-column interview on the front page of the Record—the most entertaining stuff printed that summer regarding the fair—and not a line from Mr. Edison in any other paper.

But even better than that, Joseph Medill, of the Chicago Tribune, saw the interview, clipped it boldly from the Record, wrote a little introduction himself and sent it to his managing editor with the word "must" on it. The introduction read:

"The following entertaining interview with Thomas A. Edison appeared yesterday morning in our spirit of the contemporary, the Chicago Record."

"The article appeared under a big head next day on the front page of the Tribune, the most conspicuous tribute one newspaper could pay to the enterprise of another."

That day the entire staff of the Record at the fair celebrated, and they talk about it yet when the old fellows foregather from over the country—Chicago Record-Herald.

"Who's 'Is International. An investigation in philology was undertaken recently by a well-known Kentucky horseman who was on a trip around the world. He bought himself a new horse, and intended to enter it in the equivalent of the English 'who's' in every country he visited. There was just one entry. He found that the Russian, the Persian, the Greek, the Greek, the Chinese, and the inhabitant of every European country stopped his horse with the same word, 'who's,' and that the word was equivalent to the horses of every nationality.—N. LIVE STOCK

A YOUNG PIG PROTECTOR.

Many Hogs Are Lost at Farrowing Time But If This Appliance Is Used Results Are Better.

A great many pigs are lost at farrowing time, more by far than there would be if proper precautions were taken in the farrowing pens, says the Farmers' Review. Much of this loss is due to smothering and by the mother lying on her side, squeezing out the life.

Loss from this source can easily be prevented if proper protection is provided. The cut shows one method of affording means for the young pigs to escape protection against the sow. The light poles may be used, or other material that will serve the purpose of providing a suitable place, 'b' where the pig may be protected.

PROTECTION FOR YOUNG PIGS.

Do Not Feed Them on Heavy Corn Baited Too Early—Such Treatment Stunts Growth.

In fattening hogs do not begin to feed a heavy corn ration too early. This will stunt the pig. I have seen pigs fed corn almost from the start and the result of their feeding checked in that way, says an Illinois correspondent of the Farmers' Review. Give the growing pig a chance to develop a good frame, and after the frame is about as large as you want it to put fat on the carcass and begin to put fat into the frame. By the time the digestive organs of the pig will have become strong on the proteins that have been fed. I think that a good many of our swine growers lose sight of the fact that the digestive organs and the heart and lungs have to be built up on nitrogenous food and if that kind of food is not given in abundance the said organs will never be very strong or vigorous, and hence never be in a condition to handle large quantities of food to advantage.

I believe that even with the fattening hog it is a mistake to feed an entirely corn ration. It is my experience that the hog that has other alfalfa or milk with the corn will make a better gain on the feed given than any other way. I would not give the fattening hog much roughage, though I would the growing hog. But the fattening hog should not be induced to work the fat off through his lungs, which he is very likely to do if he has a large pasture to run over. We have to treat the hogs being fattened in a different manner from those being developed in frame or being kept for breeding purposes.

HANDY CORN-CRIB DOOR.

Description of an Easy Method of Constructing an Outlet to Compartment.

Between two of the uprights of the corn crib, which are two to three feet apart, they will not drop the board. It should be sawed out with beveled ends before nailing on. They are also cut at an angle crosswise, so that when placed in position it will open out. All boards cut should be numbered so that the pieces will fit at their places, says the Farm and Home. When filling the crib one board after another may be put in until the crib is full. In removing the corn one or two may be piled close at the bottom.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

The horse should be bedded with perfectly clean, dry straw. The use of lambing tents by western breeders has resulted in saving a larger percentage of lambs than was formerly thought possible.

The boar should be kept some distance from the sows. His quarters should be kept clean. He should have a good clover pasture.—Farm Journal.

If you think anything is 'good enough for the hogs,' they will let you know that anything is good enough for you and that it will not be very good, either.—Farm Journal.

In mating the farm teams for spring work it is well to regard size, gait and strength, rather than appearance. The fast and a slow horse mated together will not give best results, unless one is learning to sweep.—Midland Farmer.

Keep Incubator Clean. After every hatch thoroughly wash the incubation chamber with hot soap and water. It should be kept clean and dry. No amount of ventilation will counteract the ill of a touchy bird.

ROUGH FEED FOR HOGS.

Animal Man Makes Many Observations, and Gives Out Results of His Experiments.

George M. Roumel, of the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture, has been making some interesting observations for several years relative to experiments along the line of feed for hogs. Although the capacity of bulk feed and silage is generally lacking in hogs, Mr. Roumel's observations show that hogs will thrive on a reasonable amount of roughage.

The results of his investigations are given: The Kansas experiment station has reported a series of experiments with roughed-ribbed crops. Three of these experiments had to do with alfalfa hay. In the first place, the hogs used were of mixed breeds—Berks and Poland China—representing about the average of Kansas farm hogs. The alfalfa was of good quality.

Two lots of good quality alfalfa hay were given, one receiving the hay whole in greater quantity than they would consume, the other having ground alfalfa. In the second test the mixed lot received some cotton-seed meal—0.16 pound to each pound of alfalfa, which did not affect the hogs seriously. This test was conducted during the most severe weather of the winter, the thermometer registering 32 degrees F. below zero, February 12, ten days after the experiment began.

In the third test the grain was fed with water at the time of feeding. The alfalfa had been cut late and was rather woody.

The Utah station fed a lot of hogs on a mixture of equal parts by weight of alfalfa hay and ground corn. Another lot had the same grain ration with chopped alfalfa hay added. The alfalfa used was well cured. The ground corn was cut by an ensilage cutter, the blades of which are arranged for cutting into half-inch lengths. The pigs were thirty grade Berks.

The Montana station fed three lots of hogs to compare the feeding values of a certain ration of alfalfa hay with a ration of alfalfa or roughage with a ration of grain only. The lot on grain alone received a ration consisting, during the early part of the experiment, of one part of damaged wheat and one part of oats, barley taking the place of the wheat during the latter part of the experiment. The hay fed was alfalfa hay. The alfalfa hay was run through a cutting box, moistened, and mixed with meal. The average of alfalfa hay and grain was 150 pounds of grain were required for 100 pounds of gain, when no hay was fed, and 505 pounds of grain and 89 pounds of alfalfa hay were required for 100 pounds of gain. The alfalfa hay was credited to the hay fed.

PIG-WEANING POINTS.

Young Shoats May Be Fed Blood-Warm Slop When Three Weeks Old, and Weaned at Six.

When pigs are some three weeks old they would be given a blood-warm slop made with skim milk and middlings. Adding a little blood makes the food more palatable. This may be fed in a small trough to which the mother has no access. The little fellows will not eat much at three or four weeks of age, but they will begin to eat fairly well in the fall. When weaning the pigs do not get them, but give them all the freedom possible.

For several years we have let our pigs run with their mothers until the old sows undertook the weaning themselves. Pigs treated in this way will make a remarkable growth. Of course when a fall litter is to be raised such a practice cannot be followed. We are able to feed our sows cheaply with skim milk and pasture, otherwise it might be cheaper to separate the pigs from the sows after eight weeks and fatten and sell them as soon as possible.

BUTCHERING AT HOME.

Every Farmer Should Do His Own Killing—Old Custom Going Out of Fashion.

The slaughtering of live stock on the farm is going out of fashion altogether. It is no good reason that a why every farmer should not butcher his own meat as well as market more or less of his own live stock direct to the consumer, says Farm and Home. The illustration shows a very simple and a suggestive way of butchering a beef or other animal. Where a suitable building and windlass is not convenient, the work may be done under a large tree. Simply fasten a stout pulley, a, and rope up among the branches and fasten the end to a spike b, driven in the trunk.

No Change in the Price of Tinapples, But Bananas Go Up and Down.

It is quite evident that some persons are getting a business career out of this game. In the case of tinapples, in very early life, says Yonah's Companion. The price of tinapples has been steadily rising. It was going out the gate with a neighbor's boy. "Where are you going?" she called from the window.

"No, I'm not," she asked. "What was the matter?" "Well," said Edward, "Johnny had his boy, looking at the tinapples in the air. Mrs. Cobb had been wondering what queer tricks she had been playing on more the dick of the gate. Looking out, she saw Edward coming in alone, munching a banana."

HER WEAKNESS GONE

NOT FLAMES AND SINKING SPELLS CONQUERED AT LAST.

Mrs. Murphy Tells Her Father-in-law How She Got Back of Serious Trouble by Simple Home Treatment.

"I had been bedridden for several years," said Mrs. Murphy, "by stomach disorder, and finally I became very weak and nervous. Flashes of heat would strike me, and I would feel as if I was sinking down. At such times I could not do any household work, but would have to lie down, and afterwards I would have very trying nervous spells."

"Didn't you have a doctor?" she was asked.

"Yes, I consulted several doctors but my health did not improve. One day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She assured me that they had proved of the greatest benefit to her case of bed prostration. In fact, she persuaded me so enthusiastically that my husband got me a box."

"And what was the result?"

"Before I had taken half of the first box my condition was greatly improved. The weakness with which they had prostrated me, my troubles were really surprising. After I had used only three boxes I had no more heat-flashes or weak spells. Thanks to them, I have become a well woman."

Mrs. Mary D. Murphy lives at No. 1903 Force street, Fort Wayne, Indiana. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the remedy she found so satisfactory, furnish directly to the blood the elements that give vigor to every tissue of the body. They can be depended on to revive failing strength, and to banish nervousness. Their tonic properties are absolutely unsurpassed.

As soon as there is drag, or dizziness, or pallor, or poor circulation, or disordered digestion, or restlessness, or pains, or irregularities of any kind, these famous pills should be used. They have cured the most obstinate cases of anemia, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous prostration, and even partial paralysis.

If you desire information specially sent to your own case write directly to the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. Every woman should have a copy of Dr. Williams' "Plain Talks to Women," which will be mailed free to any address on request. Any druggist can supply the pills.
