It is a veritable hill, 1,080 feet long, 875 wide, 425 in circumference, ranges from 25 to 50 feet in height, and covers 12 acres of ground. It is the accumulation of one lumber company since 1877. Early in its history the company tried to burn the pile, but the outside only would burn, the flames refusing to penetrate the closely packed interior.

According to a writer, the American Rhodes scholars at Oxford present an interesting contrast to their English fellow-students. As to their relative scholarship, he found the Englishmen to be the much better scholars of the two, though on fewer subjects. They were much more thorough classicists, much better read in all literatures and in the newspapers, and their English students had pursued more subjects, science especially, but, as a rule, had not gone deep enough into anything to get a firm hold on it.

Denver will claim the distinction of owning the biggest American flag in the world. It will be used for the O. A. R. encampment. It will be 115 feet long and 55 feet deep. The union field will be 25 feet by 15 feet and the stripes will be 4 feet 2 inches wide. The stars will be 2 feet high and in its making 1,450 yards of bunting are to be used. The flag's weight of 450 pounds prevents it being swung from a pole or hung from a cable between buildings, so it has been arranged to spread it across the front of a five-story building on sixteenth street.

For a number of years the question of the probable duration of the available coal supply in Great Britain has been extensively discussed, and the matter has been referred to a royal commission for investigation and report. GUNBOAT IS SCENE OF SAD DISASTER

BOILER ON THE BENNINGTON, LYING IN HARBOR AT SAN DIEGO, CAL., EXPLODES.

Loss of Life in Appalling—A Total of Fifty-Eight Known to Be Dead, While Scores of Others Are Badly Injured.

San Diego, Cal., July 22—Broken and blackened, with her flag flying at half mast, her hold filled with 15 feet of water, the United States warship Bennington lies beached on the shores of San Diego harbor. Fifty-eight or more are dead, of whom 54 have been identified and buried, and 21 are missing. This is the result of the explosion which wrecked the trim little naval craft and wrought such terrible havoc among the crew of the halfpast ten o'clock Friday morning.

Boiler Explodes.
The Bennington at the time of the accident was lying in the street just above the wharf at the foot of H street. The warship had received orders from the navy department at Washington to sail for Fort Harford, where she was to meet the Monitor, Wyoming and convoy that vessel to Mare Island navy yard. Steam was up and everything was in readiness for sailing when suddenly an awful and warning whatever, the rear forward boiler exploded with a deafening roar. The explosion was terrific. People standing on the shore saw a huge cloud of white steam rise above the Bennington. Columns of water were hurled into the air, and for a distance of nearly twice the height of the spars of the vessel.

A Terrible Scene.
On board the Bennington were present a section of the upper deck was blown off the explosion had torn a great hole in the starboard side of the ship, and the vessel was already commencing to list. A section of the upper deck was carried away from stem to stern. Blood and wreckage was distributed over the entire ship, the after cabin and the vicinity of the ship adjacent to the exploded boiler resembling a charnel house. Over it all hung the great cloud of white smoke, which drifted slowly toward the Government wharf.

Many Blown Overboard.
A dozen or fifteen were blown overboard by the force of the terrific explosion. President Roosevelt, who was looking at the Bennington when the disaster occurred, says he saw human bodies hurled over a hundred feet up in the air, and he saw a man who was blown overboard and struck by the ship, which enveloped the ship. When it cleared away only a few men could be seen on the decks, while a number were lying motionless on the water. A boat was lowered from the vessel's side and most of them were picked up and taken on board. The shock of the explosion penetrated every section of the ship, blood and ashes being found as far as the stern of the captain's quarters. Portions of the deck were carried away and great damage was done in all sections. For a long time the hot steam prevented access to the space between decks, where most of the dead bodies lay, and it was not until late in the afternoon that the last were removed from the boiler rooms. Several bodies were tightly wedged and by bulkhead that the woodwork had to be hewn away to free them. Most of the bodies had been mangled most beyond hope of recognition.

Boiler Was Unsafe.
The boiler which exploded, it is said, was regarded as unsafe. Commander George C. Meade, who was in command of the Bennington at the time, returned from Honolulu the steam pressure was kept reduced in that particular case. The ships' iron works are a large plant of machinery and it probably will have to be dismantled in order to examine her in injuries.

On this coast the fleet was met by the battleship squadron of the North Atlantic fleet in two divisions, the first being under the command of Rear Admiral Evans and the second commanded by Rear Admiral Davis. The three squadrons approached the cape together, the vessels under command of Rear Admiral Evans leading, and the Davis and Sigbee squadrons closely following. The Sigbee and Davis squadrons proceeded immediately up Chesapeake bay, while the body of Admiral Jones lay at Annapolis, Md., its last resting place, where the vessels of Admiral Evans' squadron said farewell to the other fleets, and proceeded to Old Point Comfort, Va.

The work Monday consisted in the removal of the body from the Brooklyn to the vault, the Standish, from that to a float moored to the shore, where stow-aways placed it in a hearse, which was escorted by an imposing cortege of marines, jacks and midshipmen, in which the French national party participated with a landing party of officers and men from the French cruiser, Jurien de la Graviere.

OIL FIELDS SWEEP BY FIERCE FIRE

SECTION IN TEXAS IS THE SCENE OF A TERRIBLE AND COSTLY CONFLAGRATION.

About 2,500,000 Barrels of Oil Burned at a Loss Estimated at Over $600,000—Twelve Lives Known to Be Lost—Mules Cremated.

Houston, Tex., July 25—The fire in the Humble oil fields, which started Sunday night is still burning fiercely, but it remains confined to the tanks of the Texas company. While no names are ascertainable, it is believed that 12 persons lost their lives. So far as can be learned, these were all negroes who were employed in trying to prevent the spread of the flames. Forty-three mules are known to have perished. The managers of the Texas company state that the tanks contained approximately 2,500,000 barrels of oil, which was valued at about 25 cents per barrel, and that some of the oil will be saved. In addition they say the big pumping plant at the tanks was entirely destroyed, making a total loss of more than $600,000. The efforts of the fire fighters have been confined to throwing up earthen embankments between the burning tanks, of which there are 11, and those in which 4,000,000 barrels of oil belonging to other companies are stored. These tanks are 3,000 and 4,000 feet away from the fire, but the water which covers the field, as a result of the rain of Sunday, has fanned the burning oil to the first level and a sudden "boil over" may place the other tanks in greater danger. The fire is not spreading toward the producing field, and it is not expected that it will. Hundreds of men are engaged in strengthening the levees, building them higher and in throwing up additional ridges.

STRANGE ENDING OF AN INDIANA ROMANCE

Old Couple Divorced After Living Together for Thirty-Seven Years.

HAD NOT SPOKEN SINCE '84

Uncle "Ham" and Aunt "Julia" Grubbs Refused to Settle Their Long-Standing Differences and Courts Separate Them at the Old Lady's Request—The Parents of Six Children.

Lawrenceburg, Ind.—One of the oldest divorce cases ever tried in this country was recently decided by Judge George E. Downey in this county. The principals in this strange case were aged 65 and 69 years, respectively, the man being the senior. The couple were married 37 years ago and they had lived together constantly all of that time, and had raised a family of six children, they had not spoken to each other for 21 years.

Such is the peculiar ending of the romance of Uncle Ham and Aunt Julia Grubbs.

The neighbors who hoped the breach of 21 years would be healed by time more than disappointed. Aunt Julia Grubbs has secured her divorce from her husband, Uncle Hamilton Grubbs, and $2,000 alimony, and has left forever the family home in which she lived for 37 years. They quarreled in 1884, from that day to this they have never exchanged a word, though they have occupied the same house and have eaten three times a day at the same table. Now it is too late to make up.

The Romance.

Forty years ago everybody in Moore's Hill district knew that "Ham" Grubbs was sweet on "Julie" Harris. He was a likely young farmer, then, and a good catch, and Julia Harris was the prettiest girl in the county. "Ham" courted "Julie" and she danced all the other young fellows in the district and married the girl on May 27, 1855.

It was a joy wedding and the country folks came from miles around to help the happy pair to celebrate. Rev. Benjamin Plummer, one of the old-time clergymen of the Methodist Episcopal church in southeastern Indiana, tied the knot and wished the young couple happiness, long life and prosperity. They have had the long life and prosperity all right, but hardly the happiness, though six children have blessed the union and never a hard day lessened the home circle.

More than their share of the world's goods came their way. "Uncle Ham" as he came to be known throughout Miller township, was a hard worker and a mighty smart farmer. Gradually he increased his holdings until he was the owner of 110 of the best acres in all the township. He had the finest house, the most head of stock, the best up-to-date table with their six children, but never a word was spoken between them. The father labored unceasingly and well, making his farm better and better, and gradually adding to his wealth until today he owns the farm all free and clear and has $15,000 cash in the bank. Meanwhile the mother was doing her share of the work. She made the children's clothes, saw that they were to school, kept the house as spotless as hard work and plenty of soap and water could do it, made the beds, cooked the meals and made that the most loving of wives could do to add to her husband's worldly goods was left undone.

But never a word did they speak. Ella's Intervention Unavailing. One by one the children grew up, till only little Ella was left. Two went to Kansas, two to Illinois, and one to Philadelphia. —A telegram from the man she expected to marry within an hour, announcing that he would not put in an appearance at the wedding, did not prevent the reveal of the guests invited to the ceremony by Miss Catherine Simmons.

The wedding was to have taken place on South Chadwick street, and the house had been nicely furnished by Miss Simmons and Charles Roser, her betrothed.

Roser was engaged to Miss Simmons for a long time. The wedding was to have occurred the other evening, and neighbors declare that if it had not been for the telegram, it is fact in the very then over. "Uncle Ham" came out of the house and agreed with the peddler that they were the finest geese in all Indiana.

"What dye want for them?" asked the peddler.

"Uncle Ham" named his price, a good round figure, that was more than the market value of the geese and enough to add a pretty penny to the bank account that was growing most encouragingly.

The bargain was closed just as Mrs. Grubbs appeared in the farmhouse door.

"Say, what's that man want with my geese, Ham?" she called.

"He's buyin' 'em," shouted back her husband. "It's all right, mother, he's paying all their work."

"Now don't you do no such a thing, Ham Grubbs," cried Mrs. Grubbs, burying down to the shade of the trees under which "Uncle Ham" and the peddler were driving their bargain. "I've been a-goin' to make feather beds out of 'em."

"Now see here, Julie," expostulated her husband, "this man is paying a good stiff sum for these here geese, and we can raise more of them. Besides, I never slept under a feather bed and I never will."

"Well, Ham Grubbs," retorted his wife, hotly, "I have and I'm a-goin' to do it again. I don't care what you do."

"Ham" Grubbs wanted the addition to his bank account; his wife wanted the feather beds. One hasty word led to another and it ended by Mrs. Grubbs denouncing back to the farmhouse, and the peddler carrying off the geese, for which he paid the farmer's price.

When "Ham" Grubbs got back to the house he found his wife still indignant. There were more words, and then "Uncle Ham" said something which never should have been said.

"Vow Never to Speak Again."

"I'll never speak to you again!" declared Mrs. Grubbs.

"All right," retorted her husband, "do as you like."

All the children heard the quarrel. Those old enough to understand began to cry. Husband and wife realized that their sudden determination never to speak again might result in a broken home and distress to the six little ones.

"Don't worry about them, Ham"

Julia Ann Grubbs

This was the last straw. Mrs. Grubbs decided to sue for divorce. Papers were served on Grubbs, in which he was charged with cruel and inhuman treatment and alleging that he had cursed his wife in the presence of their children, and had said other things to her which no good husband would say to his wife. There was a hearing before Judge George E. Downey. He investigated and found that there was absolutely no reconciliation between them, though the quarrel was 21 years old. So the decree was granted, and a judgment of $2,000 alimony was granted, which the old man promptly paid.

Mrs. Grubbs has gone to her son's home now. "Uncle Ham" remains at the old homestead, where he vows he will end his days alone. And there is now no prospect whatever of bringing the old couple together ever again, as all Miller township knows.

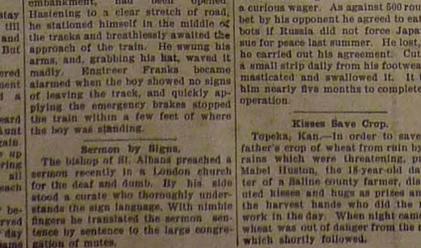

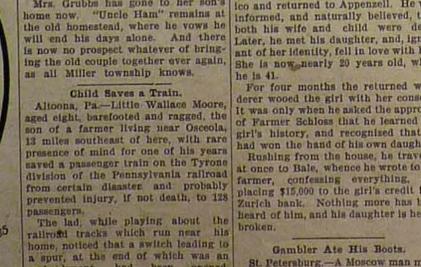

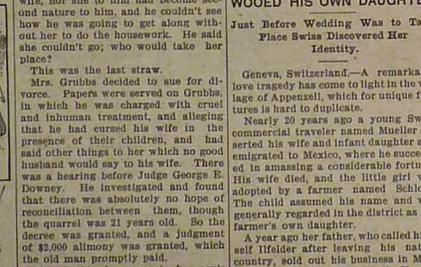

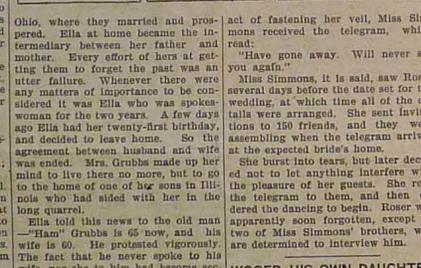

Child Saves a Train.

Altoona, Pa.—Little Wallace Moore, aged eight, barefooted and ragged, the son of a farmer living near Osceola, 13 miles southeast of here, with rare presence of mind for one of his years saved a passenger train on the Tyrone division of the Pennsylvania railroad from certain disaster yesterday.

The train was about to start, when the old man, who was standing in the middle of the tracks and breathlessly awaited the approach of the train, he swung his arms, and, grabbing his hat, waved it madly. Engineer Franks became alarmed when he saw no signs of leaving the track, and quickly applying the emergency brakes stopped the train within a few feet of where the boy was standing.

NEWS OF MINNESOTA.

Pure Food.

St. Paul.—All articles of food sold in Minnesota must be true to their names, according to a ruling made by E. K. Slater, state dairy and food commissioner, yesterday.

Mr. Slater rules that the label must contain the names of all the ingredients and that no technical terms which the public cannot understand shall be used. For instance, baking powder containing phosphate, alum and starch must not be labeled as containing calcium acid phosphate and anhydrous soda alum.

The ruling is, made with special reference to the new code which will go into effect March 1, 1906, but the commissioner expresses the hope that the new law will be complied with at once, so that there will not be a flood of illegal goods on the market next March. He has prepared a list, which will be sent to the jobbers and manufacturers in the state, explaining the effects of the new law.

Examining Books.

Governor Johnson ordered Public Examiner P. M. Kerz to make an examination of the books and records of the state capitol commission, in the following letter:

It is my understanding that there never has been any general examination of the accounts and conduct of the capitol commission, and that examination has ever been made by your department. I therefore request that you proceed, at your earliest convenience, to make a general examination of the accounts and business conduct of said capitol commission since its creation, and make a report of your findings to this office.

Inspection of the state lands in the northern part of the state will be made next month by state officials accompanied by editors of several agricultural papers.

The details of the trip have not been arranged, but it is probable that the party will go in a special car and will visit the state lands in Atkin, Pine, Mille Lacs, Carlton, Crow Wing, Itasca, St. Louis and many other counties in Northern Minnesota.

CHANGED HUSBAND.

Wife Made Wise Change in Food.

Change of diet is the only way to really cure stomach and bowels trouble.

A woman says:

"My husband had dyspepsia when we were married and had suffered from it for several years. It was almost impossible to find anything he could eat without bad results. I thought this was largely due to the use of coffee and persuaded him to discontinue it. He did so, and began to drink Postum Food Coffee. The change did him good from the beginning, his digestion improved, he suffered much less from his nervousness, and when he added Grape-Nuts food to his diet he was soon entirely cured."

"My friend, Mrs. _____, of Vicksburg (my former home), had become a nervous wreck also from dyspepsia. Medicines had no effect, neither did travel help her. On my last visit home, some months ago, I persuaded her to use Grape-Nuts food. She was in despair, and consented. She stuck to it until it restored her health so completely that she is now the most enthusiastic friend of Grape-Nuts that I ever knew. She eats it with cream or dry, just as it comes from the package—keeps it in her room and eats it whenever she feels like it."

"I began eating Grape-Nuts food myself, when my husband was two months old, and I don't know what I should have done without it. My appetite was gone, I was weak and nervous and afflicted by very little sleep. I felt that I was in a bad way. The Grape-Nuts food, of which I soon grew very fond, speedily set all this right again, and the baby grew healthy, rosy and beautiful as a mother could wish. He is two years old now and eats Grape-Nuts food himself. I wish every tired young mother would do good that Grape Nuts would do her."

ROAD AND FARM IMPROVEMENT

"LUCKY FARMING."

No Such Thing Known Among the Successful Farmers—Win by Hard Work and Foresight.

When a farmer through close calculation and well directed effort has been able to force his land to yield a good profit, it may be all very well for him to pass his success off as merely a bit of "luck," but the man who takes such an explanation seriously misses the meat of the reason and cheats himself accordingly. For everything that happens there is always a reason. Possibly it is somewhat obscure, but it exists none the less.

It is a wise man who can shake off the idea that "luck" enters the success of another, remarks the Prairie Farmer. The sooner that the go-as-you-please farmer rises himself of the idea the better, and the sooner he will be in a position to analyze the success of his competitor and apply the other's strong points in his own work.

If a farmer always gets a high price for his fruit when the market is glutted, realizes a few cents on top of the average price for his butter, secures the top of the day for his cattle, cuts hay that goes three tons to the acre, harvests more than that yield in bushels or cuts corn that yields around the bushel mark, it is not because he has had a little more "luck" than his neighbor, but that he has husbanded his land, and that he has brought forth the best in quality and quantity.

For success the closest calculation and the execution of well-laid plans are necessary. Fully demonstrated in the business world, they have been found no less practical in the operations of the farmer. In commercial life the successful business man has forgotten that there is such a term as "luck" in the language.

INEXPENSIVE BATHROOM.

Farmhouse Convenience Which May Be Fitted Off from the Kitchen at Small Expense.

A long, narrow kitchen, 20 by 10 feet, is divided by a partition five feet from the end. The ceiling is eight feet high. The partition we decided to have six inches above the head and also to leave the distance to carry the hot water to the bath, which has to be heated by the stove. Our pump draws the water from the cistern. On one side a convenient arrangement for washing is shown, a light box fitted to the wall with wooden brackets, the seams filled with putty and then painted with white enamel. A hole is made in the bottom of the box and a two-inch drain pipe fitted in same. The waste water from this and also from the bath flows into a flower-bell, which is situated right at side of cistern. The towel rack is made from a curtain pole painted white to match the woodwork. The walls, four feet high, are covered with blue and white tile paper. A rug in front of the bath, with all the other toilet accessories, completes the thoroughly practical, convenient, and artistic bathroom. The expense for the comfortable arrangement to be little, says the Rural New Yorker. The bath chosen is one that requires little water on account of its "narrow" end. Bath cost six dollars; pump, 92 cents; plumbing, $6; other expenses, $1; total, $13.92.

A HANDY GARDEN HOE.

Implement Which May Be Made at Home, and Which Will Prove Most Useful in Garden Work.

I have a combination of a push and pull hoe, which works very easily and is not as tiresome as either a Dutch hoe or a common hoe, says J. B. Welch, in Farm and Home.

It is a flat piece of steel, three inches wide and eight inches long, sharpened on both edges. A handle is fixed to it in the manner shown. The steel blade lies flat on the ground and can either be pulled or pushed to stir the surface or cut off the weeds.

A Crop of Nubbins.

Here and there we run across a farmer that reports now and then from a certain part of a crop of nubbins. If he can talk him about the field on which such a crop was produced, we are certain of receiving the answer that the crop grew on a field that had borne nothing but corn for many years in succession. The more worn out the soil, the more is the crop of corn likely to be a crop of nubbins. Ten years ago, says the Farmers Review, even some of our scientists were saying that corn could follow corn for long series of years, but they have changed their minds about that.

ROADS AND EDUCATION.

Consolidation of School Districts Dependent on the Character of the Highways.

One of the most important problems for our rural communities has been how best to secure the benefits of a graded school system so as to enable the farmer to give his children instruction in the higher branches of learning without leaving the farm. The writer believes that the policy of consolidation and transportation of pupils furnishes a solution of the problem if the policy can be perfected. The next and most important question is: how can this be done; in what way, and after what preparation, can a perfect system be established or made possible of establishment? We are firmly of the opinion that the system of education outlined and which means so much for the country will never be perfected and become a fixed policy until there is national aid in the construction of good wagon roads, say along the lines of the best roads in the house of representatives by Hon. W. P. Brownlow, of Tennessee, and in senate by Mr. Lattimer, of South Carolina. In hearings on the good roads subject before the senate committee on agriculture it was shown that of all the roads in the United States there are only 5 per cent good, 10 per cent fairly passable and 85 per cent bad; that is, stallions of teams in wet weather, and the treatment of manure and dirt in dry weather. "Fifteen per cent roads, the remainder mere rights-of-way."

While striving after the best results of its own particular field and studiously seeking improvements under functions that belong to it alone, that very important branch of the public service known as the bureau of education has, in its investigations, gathered practical facts and detailed statistics that furnish irrefutable argument in favor of national aid for good roads, because no government can prosper save by the enlightenment of its people. President Roosevelt, in a speech at St. Louis in 1903 declared that the difference between the semibarbarism of the middle ages and the civilization which succeeded it was the difference between poor and good roads of communication. On Stedoes Island in New York harbor stands Liberty Enlightening the World. "Go ye into all seas and preach the Good News of the creature," means now, as when first communicated to man, that the highways and byways furnish a fruitful field for Godly work. Following the construction of good roads civilization increases, education increases and Christianity is retarded where schoolhouses cannot be reached, and where the highways depend upon the seasons passable. No fixed policy of consolidated schools will prevail until there is a systematized construction of wagon roads, and no fixed policy of road construction is possible except by federal cooperation with the states and the political divisions thereof.

The common or wagon roads are the primary means of transportation and communication. The railroads have their uses, and they are important, but people do not use them to reach their houses and school houses. Christian civilization had education call for better means of propagation. Public school work goes hand in hand with the spread of religion. It needs no argument, it shows that every church interest and every school interest is closely connected with the question of public roads. Improvement throughout the United States. We are a Christian nation, and we are an educational people. The very life of the republic depends upon the influence of the churches and the schools for these are the certain promoters of high ideals in citizenship and the incubators of the great spirit of patriotism which enables good government and sustains it whenever established. If there were no other reasons why the government should at once adopt and put into practice a good-roads policy in cooperation with the states, it should do so in support of public education and the spread of the Christian religion.

We repeat that the United States bureau of education, while working in its own particular field, has supplied one of the most forceful arguments yet presented in favor of national aid to good roads, and we should much like to see every church and school journal in the land take up the question and discuss it for the benefit of the cause in which they are engaged.

HANGING A BARN GATE.

Manner of Attaching to Barn Which Will Prevent It from Sagging to the Ground.

Some time since a writer in an issue of the Michigan Farmer gave this plan for hanging a gate attached to a barn. The cut is sufficient in detail to show the complete method of construction and hanging.

Hint in Regard to Bean Picking.

Pull beans on a hot day, and let them lie in the sun a little while in thin rows, beside where they grow, then break them clean, during the day they were pulled. In this way, says the Farm Journal, all green beans, and poor, wilted pods, will not thrash, and the corn crop will be almost equal to hand-picked.

Cast not good seed into poor soil, neither cast poor seed into good soil.

Getting His Mind Off Sugar.

"Why didn't you want your husband to go any place with the children to the land?" asked one lady of another, at a dinner.

"Because he came here to get his mind off his sugar," answered the other.

"Oh, I didn't know your husband was in the retail grocery business!"—Youkers Magazine.

Our Changing Language.

"Do you think that our country will ever succeed in getting rid of quitters?" asked Senator Borah.

"There will be a time when quitters are numbered of that will be due to the change that is constantly going on in our vocabulary. There will be no word that means the same thing."—Washington Star.

Especially for Women.

Champion, Mich., July 21th.—(Special.)—A case of especial interest to women is that of Mrs. A. Wellist, wife of a well-known Oberlin, Ohio, lawyer, the best given in her own words.

"I am now 45 years old, my feet were cold and my limbs cramped." Mrs. Wellist said in her own words.

"I had been troubled in this way for five years. I had tried all kinds of medicine, Dr. Kidney Pills, and what they did for me was to make my kidneys very hard and stiff, and I was unable to walk."

"By the time I had finished one box of Dr. A. Wellist's Kidney Pills was cured. I can sleep well, my limbs do not cramp, and I feel better than I have in years. I owe my health to Dr. A. Wellist's Kidney Pills."

Mrs. Wellist's life is saved by Dr. A. Wellist's Kidney Pills.

THE IDEAL WIFE

Shapes the Destiny of Men—The Influence of a Healthy Woman Cannot Be Overestimated.

Seven-eighths of the men in this world marry a woman because she is beautiful in their eyes—because she has the qualities which insure a harmonious, respectful and love.

There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of features. The influence of women glorious in the possession of perfect physical health upon men and upon the civilization of the world could never be measured. Because of them men have attained the very heights of ambition; because of them men have been established and destroyed.

What a disappointment, then, to see the fair young wife's beauty fading away before a year passes over her head! A sickly, half-dead-and-alive woman, especially when she is the mother of a family, is a curse to her husband in the home, and a drag upon the funds of a household, and too often all the doctoring does her no good.

If a woman finds her energies are flagging, and that everything tires her, her dark shadows appear under her eyes, her sleep is disturbed by horrible dreams if she has backaches, headaches, bearing-down pains, nervousness, whiffs, irregularities, or despondency, also shows lack of means to build her system up at once by a tonic with specific powers, such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This great remedy for women has done more in the way of restoring health to the women of America than all other medicines put together. It is the safeguard of woman's health.

Mrs. Bessie Ainsley of 611 South 10th Street, Tacoma, Wash., writes:

"Dear Mr. Pinkham—

"Ever since my child was born I have suffered with a nervous system, with inflammation, female weakness, bearing-down pains, and a general debility. I have been affected my stomach so that I could not eat my meals, and half my time was spent in bed."

Mull's Grape-Tonic (FREE) FOR Hot Weather Dangers

CONSTIPATION STOMACH AND BOWEL TROUBLE

No one with regular bowels and healthy stomach can contract disease. A person with Constipation and Stomach Trouble is always the first to succumb to Sun-Stroke, Heat-Exhaustion and Prostration. Cholera, Colic and Diarrhea are more fatal in Hot Weather because vitality is lower—they are the direct result of Constipation. It is a mistake to suddenly check diarrhea, the result of Constipation. A physical is so dangerous as it weakens the patient and reduces vitality. Treat the cause with Mull's Grape-Tonic. Constipation and its attending ills are caused by decaying or stying bowels and Intestines—Mull's Grape-Tonic revives and strengthens the Bowels so that they are enabled to act naturally and eject the poison from the system. The result should be that it dries hot weather. It wards off disease, builds up the system and purifies the blood. Typhoid Fever and Appendicitis are unknown in families where Mull's Grape-Tonic is employed. As a Stomach Tonic it is unequalled.
