Watchmakers, despite their difficult work, rarely suffer from eye trouble of any kind.

In Bolivia the natives of the interior wear hats and shirts made of the bark of a tree, which is first washed in water and then beaten until pliable.

Shaw was preserved by the ants, instead of ice, by covering it up in the ground. A cargo of natural ice shipped from Boston to Calcutta in 1833 brought six cents a pound.

Simultaneously from two independent sources comes striking testimony to the virtues of the hairless head. It is stated that there are no bald criminals, and, secondly, there are no bald lunatics.

Mrs. Richard H. Savage is the owner of the famous painting, "Sheridan's Ride," and values it at $5,000. A bill has been introduced in the senate for its purchase, to be hung in the corridor of the capitol.

There has just been deposited in the insect house at the Cincinnati Zoo a specimen of the bird-sucking spider, which earns its name by occasionally feeding in its jaws some of the brilliancy hued humming birds and variegated finches of the South American tropics.

The boatmen of Holland measure distances by smoking. The distance between two named points is expressed as so many pipefuls of tobacco, meaning, of course, that one would smoke so many pipes while covering the distance mentioned. Holland's colonies are 60 times as big as the mother country.

Radium is a substance millions of times more powerful than dynamite. It is estimated that an ounce of radium would contain enough power to raise 10,000 tons a mile above the earth's surface. The energy needed to tow a ship of 12,000 tons a distance of 6,000 sea miles at 10 knots is contained in 23 ounces of radium.

When the pope received the French bishops recently they could not understand his discourses, so strong is his Venetian accent. But he is talking now in the Vatican to speak with a little of that accent. Venetian dishes are in vogue, and in the houses of rich Romans Venetian antiquities are made prominent.

In England no arrests may be made on a Sunday, even for treason, felony, or a breach of the peace, and freedom from arrest at any time on civil process is a privilege enjoyed by members of the royal family and their servants, bishops, peers and peeresses, and members of parliament during the sitting of parliament and 40 days before and after each session.

There are two sorts of tattooing in use among the women of the Congo. One is common to all the members of the same tribe, and indicates the origin and birthplace of the subject. It is an infallible and perpetual certificate of birth and nationality. The other sort of tattooing is simply fancy and coquetry. The women mark upon their bodies the epochs of their existence.

The early Greeks and Romans rode horses bareback. They regarded it as unmanly to ride in a saddle. In fact, the modern saddle with pommel, crupper and stirrups was unknown until the Romans rode out fancy coverings to the cavalry, and the bareback riders of the German forests used to laugh at them. Saddles with trees came into use in the fourth century; stirrups three centuries later.

The greatest dental operation on record was performed upon the elephant in the City of Mexico. The aching tooth was 12 inches long and 14 inches in diameter at the root. Mr. Monaghan had been securely fastened with chains his mouth was pried open and a quantity of cocaine applied to deaden the pain. When this was done a hole was bored through the tooth and an iron bar inserted. Then a rope was twisted around the bar and four horses attached and started, and the tooth gave way like pulling straws.

All the automobile endurance contests are thrown into the shade by the remarkable performance of Emil Baur, of Paris, who rode a bicycle 815 miles and 291 yards in 24 hours, at the remarkable average rate of 24 hours a hour. When one considers the delays and the stops entailed in such a race it means that for four hours the rider must have been pedaling his bicycle at the rate of 50 miles an hour, and sometimes more, and to sustain this must be severe and certainly felt by the rider.

Horsemen, such as we have, are also rather modern. The Greeks and Romans used to ride in cold weather, but with their cloaks in cold weather, or when riding the horse through muddy and mirey places. Here's a picture of a horse and rider in the days of the Middle Ages. The rider has a sword and a lance, and the horse is in the attitude of a charging knight. The rider is in the attitude of a charging knight, and the horse is in the attitude of a charging knight.

HADDS STANDARD OIL OVER COALS

PRESIDENT EXPOSES METHODS OF BIG CORPORATION IN MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

Investigation Conducted by Commissioner Garfield Reveals That Its Officials Are Taking Rebates in Deduction of the Law.

Washington, May 5.—The anxiously awaited message of President Roosevelt, accompanying a portion of the report on the investigation of the giant Standard Oil trust which has been conducted under the auspices of the department of commerce and labor, which was sent to congress Friday, arraigns the corporation and its officials for taking rebates in deduction of the Elkins act, and points the way for legislation that will clip the wings of the Rockefeller combination to some extent.

Message Hits Mark. That the broadside from the White House hit its mark was shown by the sweeping amount of denial given out by the standard officials in New York, in which the administration investigation is called unjust and untruthful, the business methods of the combine are defended and there are light-yelled aspersions at the president's disclosure in generally offering advice of a wide range of subjects from race suicide to affairs of state.

A happening that followed the submission of the president's message and Commissioner Garfield's report so quickly as to make it seem the work of instant inspiration through the disclosure made was the unanimous adoption by the senate of an amendment to the pending bill to regulate interstate commerce carriers and subject to the provisions of the interstate commerce law.

It is stated directly at the Standard Oil company, and the day after it was presented by Senator Lodge an agent of that company called upon the Massachusetts senate and used all his persuasive powers to show that his adoption would be a very bad thing.

The Standard Oil company has habitually received from the railroads and is now receiving secret rates and other unjust and illegal discriminations. The company is receiving unjust discriminations in open rates. In one year—1904—it has been discovered that the company had received $750,000, and there is no telling how much more was "saved" in the same channels which was not discovered.

The president believes, however, that legislation along other lines also is needed in the face of the exposures made, and he thinks much might be accomplished by the passage of a law to the payment of a revenue tax. The president urges also that oil and coal lands held by the government or owned by the Indian tribes shall not be alienated.

Starting on the report of Commissioner Garfield is in relation to multitudinous facts. It presents only a small part of the discoveries made in connection with the investigation. Standard, and the biggest sensations are likely to follow later reports dealing with law breaking and evil practices in other fields.

It is known that much wrongdoing has been unearthed outside of illegal combinations between the Standard Oil company and the leading railroad companies, but the subject is so big that it has been deemed necessary to let the results of the investigation filter out a little at a time.

Seal Catch at Lowest Point. Victoria, B. C., May 5.—Five of the fleet of six sealing schooners which cruised off the British Columbia and southern coast this season have arrived on Vancouver island coast with a smaller catch than reported for years. The six schooners took total of 913 seals. The total seal catch reported is 1,251 skins. The catch on the coast last year was over 1,500 skins.

Stock Losses Cause Death. St. Louis, May 5.—Corwin H. Spencer, millionaire and speculator, after losing several hundred thousand dollars in the recent slump in Wall street collapsed while feverishly watching the stock ticker in a broker's office here. Three hours later he was found on the floor in his lifetime, and more than one had all but passed in the world "on the ticker." He was 56 years old and left a widow, one son and three daughters.

REWARDS NAVAL HEROES

BRAVERY OF SAILORS ON KEARSARGE IS COMMENDED.

Nervy Seaman Stumps Out Burning Powder and Covers Up Tanks Containing Explosive.

Washington, May 5.—High praise and such reward as the navy department is able to extend, is accorded to the brave sailors who at risk of life rendered first aid to the injured in the Kearsarge disaster, through general orders issued by the navy department Monday. Acting Secretary Newberry has indited letters personally to each of these men. To George Breeman, seaman, he awarded a medal of honor, and a gratuity of $100 for extraordinary heroism, and also suspended the rules of the department so as to permit him to appear at the next examination as a candidate for promotion. Referring to the fire in the turret, Mr. Newberry said:

"Some of the burning powder fell from the turrets into the 13-inch handling room. George Breeman, seaman, went into the 13-inch handling room and dumped out the burning powder, closed himself inside the 13-inch magazine at his station and went to work inside putting covers on open powder bins."

Letters of similar tenor were sent to William C. Carpenter, chief machinist's mate, who assisted in getting out the turret; to William C. Carpenter, chief machinist's mate, who did the same; to John Pickard, boatswain's mate, who is thanked and permitted to take the seaman's examination; to James Herrick, boatswain's mate, who carried the hose into the turret and put the fire, who is allowed the same privilege; to Charles J. Cavanaugh, chief machinist's mate, among the first to enter the turret after the fire, who may take the examination for yeaman; to William C. Carpenter, chief machinist's mate, who also was the first to aid, who is also allowed to take the boatswain's examination.

The department also collectively thanked the following for their coolness and steadiness in the face of danger:

FISHING LAWS ARE DRASTIC

Bill Before Newfoundland Legislature Forbids Netting Working on Foreign Vessels.

St. Johns N. F., May 4.—The new foreign fishing vessels' bill was introduced in the legislature Thursday by Premier Bond. It re-enacts last year's measure with several additional clauses. The first forbids any alien not entitled by treaty to fish in colonial waters, and any vessel having such fishermen aboard is liable to a fine of $100 or forfeiture of the vessel. The second prohibits any colonial vessel from going outside of colonial waters, and the face of an alien who is descending from the carriage. Gov. Donabass was thrown from his carriage and under the horse's heels. His back was burned and his legs bruised, but he was able to walk unassisted to his home.

The coachman's skull was fractured and he was taken to a hospital. It is thought the assassin was the student in whose room a bomb exploded Saturday, killing three accomplices, but who at the time was in the hotel opposite.

Vice Admiral Donabass's life was saved by the poor aim of his would-be assassin. The bomb exploded on the pavement several paces to the rear of his carriage, hurling the mutilated corpse of the terrorist several yards and the face of an alien who was descending from the carriage. Gov. Donabass was thrown from his carriage and under the horse's heels. His back was burned and his legs bruised, but he was able to walk unassisted to his home.

FUNSTON DEFENDS ACTION

Claims Violation of Law Was Justified by Conditions Existing in City of San Francisco.

Washington, May 5.—The following is quoted from a personal letter received from Gen. Funston by one of his friends among the officers at the war department:

"In taking the action I did on the morning of the earthquake, I was not impelled by any desire to do anything for the purpose of aiding the police and fire departments. I knew that I was acting without warrant of law, but the conditions arising from earthquakes are such that it is impossible for the army to do anything for the purpose of aiding the police and fire departments. I knew that I was acting without warrant of law, but the conditions arising from earthquakes are such that it is impossible for the army to do anything for the purpose of aiding the police and fire departments."

The swift and efficient work of the army during the terrible three days and nights of fire have made a great impression on people here. The orders to the troops were transmitted by mounted messengers, all telegraphs and telephones being out of business for an hour and a half and we had them passing the downtown streets.

The staff officers here have shown up splendidly, and it would be hard to make distinctions between them."

Castro's Secretary in England. London, May 5.—Dr. J. Torres Castro, secretary to President Castro of Venezuela, arrived at Dover Monday.

BOMB FOR GOVERNOR

GENERAL OF MOSCOW ASSASSIN'S MISSILE DISEMPOWERED FROM CARRIAGE.

Terrorist's Corps Is Hurled Several Yards by the Explosion and Terribly Mutilated—Many Persons Are Seriously Injured.

Moscow, May 7.—A bomb was thrown at the carriage of Vice Admiral Donabass, governor general of Moscow, as he was being driven on the palace Sunday. He was wounded in the foot and his aid-camp and the carriage entrance to his palace were killed. The man who threw the bomb is reported to have been killed. wore an officer's uniform.

Gov. Donabass was returning in an open carriage from the Uspenski cathedral, and the outrage took place outside the carriage entrance to his palace. Several bystanders were injured. According to the route decided upon in advance, the governor general should have returned to the palace by the side entrance, but during the drive he changed his route and thereby avoided the assassin's aim.

Assassin's Aim Is Poor. Vice Admiral Donabass's life was saved by the poor aim of his would-be assassin. The bomb exploded on the pavement several paces to the rear of his carriage, hurling the mutilated corpse of the terrorist several yards and the face of an alien who was descending from the carriage. Gov. Donabass was thrown from his carriage and under the horse's heels. His back was burned and his legs bruised, but he was able to walk unassisted to his home.

The coachman's skull was fractured and he was taken to a hospital. It is thought the assassin was the student in whose room a bomb exploded Saturday, killing three accomplices, but who at the time was in the hotel opposite.

TILLMAN SCORES

FEDERAL JUDGES

WOULD OBTAIN THE POWER TO GRANT INJUNCTIONS IN RAILROAD CASES.

Engages in Heated Controversy with Senator Spooner, Apologizes After Ordering Colleague to Take His Seat, and Admits He Is Bude.

Washington, May 4.—Following a brief speech in the senate by Senator Nelson, Senator Tillman spoke at length in an effort to show by criticism of individual judges that the power of granting temporary injunctions by inferior United States courts should be taken from them in interstate commerce commission cases, and he was followed by Senator Bacon, Bailey, Teller and Foraker in speeches of some length.

Senator Tillman's speech consisted mainly of quotations reflecting upon the conduct of federal judges in different parts of the country. While he was speaking he engaged in controversy with Senator Spooner, in which the Wisconsin senator characterized his adversary's reference to him as "indecent" and during which Senator Tillman ordered Senator Spooner to take his seat.

Senator Bacon criticized the course Senator Tillman attempted to produce a false impression on the country, and was in turn censured by Senator Bailey, who held that while an officer of justice is entitled to the greatest respect, there should be reverence for judges as men.

Tillman Apologizes. Senator Tillman attempted to make prompt disclaimer of any intention to offend, and when Senator Spooner declined to yield the South Carolina remarked: "I have red blood in my veins."

"No more than I have," retorted Senator Spooner. Senator Tillman, however, insisted both upon withdrawing his question and apologizing.

"I ask no apology," responded Senator Spooner. "Then sit down," commanded his antagonist. He intended apparently to be good-natured, but Senator Spooner did not so interpret his peremptory manner, but before he could respond the chair intervened, calling attention to the rule prohibiting senators from addressing the senate directly. Then followed a sharp colloquy between Senator Tillman and the chair as to whether Senator Tillman or Senator Spooner was in the right. It was cut short by a decision in Senator Spooner's favor, and that senator proceeded to address the senate directly. Then followed a sharp colloquy between Senator Tillman and the chair as to whether Senator Tillman or Senator Spooner was in the right. It was cut short by a decision in Senator Spooner's favor, and that senator proceeded to address the senate directly.

Senator Spooner's reply that he was of opinion that the contention had been sought by Senator Tillman, and added that he could have it, regardless of whether he was ill or not. He then took his seat, saying that he did so, not under the direction of Senator Tillman, but of his own volition.

Resuming the floor, Senator Tillman declared that he had no suspicion that Senator Spooner would take his reference to him amiss, or that he would show temper over it. Senator Spooner made an effort to respond directly to Senator Tillman, but was rebuffed by the chair of his duty to address the chair. This was done in such a way as to create a laugh and to do much to relieve the good feeling. Senator Spooner said he had not shown ill temper.

"Perhaps," said Senator Spooner, after a pause, "I am a little indiscent" was too strong. I withdraw it and I don't care."

The South Carolina then returned to his consideration of the course of Judge Jenkins, quoting a report on it by the house of representatives, and asking: "What do you suppose a judge would so far forget the deencies as to ignore the law and imperil the rights of several thousand men employed by a railroad would do it in a rate case in which an order had been made which was displacing the men?"

Senator Tillman next paid his respects to the case of Judge Charles Swan, of Florida, whom the senate refused last session to reappoint, and asked to incorporate in his remarks a statement prepared by Representative Lamar of Alabama. At the request of Senator Spooner the statement was read.

Senator Tillman then closed with an apology explaining that the situation was such as to require the administering of "some physic." He would not allow the judges to sit around idly and do nothing whatever the railroads want and refusing to grant relief to the people.

Viable Supply of Grain. New York, May 8.—The viable supply of grain in the world for May 5, as compiled by the New York produce exchange was as follows: Wheat, 28,411,000 bushels; corn, 27,000,000 bushels; oats, 1,800,000 bushels; decrease, 48,000 bushels; 1,807,000 bushels, decrease, 1,807,000 bushels; 1,577,000 bushels, decrease, 1,577,000 bushels; 1,800,000 bushels, decrease, 256,000.

Cats Cause a Tragedy. Steubenville, O., May 7.—William Clark and his son-in-law, William Clark, both coal miners of Smithfield, quarreled over the possession of two cats, and Clark was leaving the yard on a mule when he was shot and killed. He then turned the weapon on himself and fired the second load into his breast, dying almost instantly.

Police Stop Socialist Parade. Newark, N. J., May 3.—Policemen broke up a socialist parade here and arrested two of the leaders because a flag was planted in the van. Chief of Police Adams had received word that the socialists intended to use the flag as a diversion to exploit the parade. He ordered the van to be seized and searched and a small bomb was found concealed in her.

POSTMASTERS cannot dabble in politics, according to explicit ruling, but politicians can dabble with the postmastership. A law passed to prevent politicians having a pull through their efforts for would-be postmasters, and successful ones too, would be welcomed by scores who have reached the pinnacle where politicians sometimes hurt. Then the postmasters would have to be elected by the people whom they serve.

The Hineley Enterprise loves to slam Hon. J. Adam Bede, our famous congressman. He received a neat little package from that source last week, and Enterprise readers will have to put up with them quite regularly. That is to be expected. Mud-slinging is a poor method of conducting a campaign against a good man, and J. Adam grows stronger with each onslaught.

The socialist paper rightly nicknamed "Appeal to Treason," has been excluded from the mats by the Canadian authorities because of its "scurrilous and seditious character" of its articles. Uncle Sam might well follow the example of his northern neighbor. Housat, fearless, vigorous criticism of men and measures is one thing, advocating revolution, murder and treason is quite another.—Gopher Press, Glenwood.

The old school of the editorial fraternity lost one of its greatest writers early Thursday morning in the death of Joseph A. Wheelock. He was 75 years old and had been in the newspaper harness for the past 50 years, nearly all of which time he spent as mouler of public opinion on the St. Paul Pioneer Press. His demise is likely to cause a change in the style of the good, old, conservative Pioneer Press.

The "Dutch Uncle," in the Minneapolis Tribune, may possibly have been a green country kid at some time not so long ago. He says "City teams going out into the cockle-burr districts and getting the life basted out of themselves never need hang around here for sympathy. They needn't attempt to hide the score, either—we'll get it some way and print it top of column next to reading matter. When town graywound lines up against country colle in a speed contest, we root for 'Ship."

There will either be effective government supervision over railroad rates to protect the people, or there will be government ownership of railroads of the United States. The aforesaid is taken from a pamphlet written and issued by Wm. D. Washburn, jr., of Minneapolis. Railroad rates and their regulation have been receiving more or less attention from men in nearly every walk and are apparently as far from solution as ever. There has been action taken to lower rates from time to time in some states but the rate question in Minnesota is dead, and the barons who control prices made by the rate-makers are not sparing any efforts to hold onto the present conditions.

Grip Quickly Knocked Out

"Some weeks ago during the severe winter weather both my wife and myself contracted severe colds which speedily developed into the worst kind of laryngitis with all its miserable symptoms," says Mr. J. S. Eggleston, of Maple Landing, Ia. "Knee and joints aching, muscles sore, head stopped up, eyes and nose running, with alternate spells of chills and fever. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, aided by a double dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and by its liberal use soon completely knocked out the grip." Sold by L. E. Aug. Wickstrom returned Minneapolis Wednesday. He has been doing line work in that city, but is now out on a strike together with his fellow workmen. The companies affected are the Western Union and the Tri-State. The latter company owns the Pine City exchange. Those who have struck are linemen, cable splicers and some switch board workers. The strike was declared on last Thursday, and Duluth workers, it is reported, were called out yesterday. Better pay and more desirable hours are demanded.

On Monday the old Lovick building, in which is located the Pine City Steam Laundry, was purchased by Jas. Polk. The building was the property of J. W. Loyolk who now resides at Besok, N. D. Mr. Polk will remain with his tailorshop in the Kowalko building and Mr. Fisher will still retain the rental of the "Lovick" building.

Through the efforts of the Sandstone Commercial Club the prospects for a sewer system in Sandstone appear very bright. A petition was circulated among property owners who have agreed to pay the expense of laying a sewer past their places, which will leave but a comparatively small amount for the village to apportion.

There is an ordinance prohibiting the riding of bicycles upon sidewalks. That ordinance should be strictly enforced, but it appears there is scarcely any attention paid to it. Plenty of road room has been provided for vehicles of all kinds, that might enter the village, and wheel-lasts should have a care and leave the sidewalks for pedestrians.

We were informed on Monday that quite a number of the McGrath logs, cut during the past winter, are jammed at the cut-off, about nine miles west of this place, and that a waneagan and crew of men are at that point. As soon as the booms this side of Pokegama are stretched the logs will be let go and be stored the same as last year in Nioboyne bay.

Alice didn't get all the presents Oh, no! Pearls are still on the market, and we got one of them yesterday. Comrade John Norstrom, of Pokegama Lake, handed us one of the cutest little pearls, and said we should keep it as a souvenir of the many which he and others find at the lake. We are proud of pearls, and John has our undivided thanks for the gift.

Saturday evening a very pleasant gathering was had at the residence of Gerd E. Kruss on the north side of the river, the occasion being the 55th anniversary of Mrs. Kruss's birth. The evening was spent in dancing, social intercourse and music on a phonograph. At midnight a luncheon was served. Those who attended report having had a good time, and departed for their homes in the "we sma" hours, after wishing the worthy lady many happy returns of the day.

One of the first good fish stories of the season was exploded after John Fisher, our laundry caterer and apartment man, got through punning the finny ones out of the river on Sunday. Through the tales of an adept courier it was reported around town that he had made the catch of the season by hauling out no less than seventeen of the finest looking pike ever "heard" of and that he had a few samples of the same at his laundry. In order to learn the truth, the sporting editor of these columns and several others sneaked over to the cleaning works and there, low and behold, their eyes met with a scene never to be remembered. A half dozen little pickereel were lying low awaiting execution. Upon being interviewed Fisher avowed that he made a beautiful catch but that his neighbors profited by his goodness of heart, via liberality. We heard later that John had the small pickereel in captivity and used them, when needed, for bait to make his big catches. The one who circulated the story is being sought after so that a reward may be presented to him, but he has evidently made good his escape.

Traveling is Dangerous.

Constant motion jars the kidneys which are kept in place in the body by delicate attachments. This is the reason that travelers, train men, street car men, teamsters and all who drive very much, suffer from kidney disease in some form. Foley's Kidney Cure strengthens the kidneys and cures all forms of kidney and bladder disease. Geo. B. Hansen, locomotive engineer, Lima, O., writes, "Constant vibration of the engine caused me a great deal of trouble with my kidneys, and I got no relief until I used Foley's Kidney Cure." Y. H. W. BARKER'S COUGH REMEDY FOR CONSUMPTION

A STUDY FROM LIFE

By LEIGH ATWOOD

It was my first "allowance," you see, that was my first money. I thought so much about it. I know now it is impossible to make an allowance do, and nobody expects it either.

I was only ten months short at the end of the quarter, and, really, hadn't been a bit extravagant, except perhaps for that lovely jeweled necklace, which cost—but there, that doesn't matter.

Dad scolded me a little, the old dear, and of course gave me some more money, but it seemed so I ought to save it myself, yet somehow couldn't.

However, one day all of a sudden I had a splendid idea. I would write a book! It looked so easy and paid so well, I knew, because Mr. Kingswell, dad's friend, wrote books for which he got heaps of money—thousands of pounds, somebody told me.

It proved to be very much more trouble than you would think. I had read somewhere that one ought to parse every word one writes. I didn't see why. Yet I did it, for of course an author must expect to put up with a little inconvenience, though I am afraid the parsing would have made dear old Miss Howard shudder, for I always hated parsing at school.

I soon gave up the idea of writing a book. A tale would be quite enough and far less bother. So I burnt the other stuff, parsing and all, and started on the tale. It was easy to decide what it should be about. All the tales I've read have been about a girl, a man and a wedding. So I soon got it done. It was rather a rush to get it copied by post time, but I managed it and sent it off to the editor in whose paper I wished it to appear, and then waited for him to send me the check.

About two days later a big envelope came up with my letters and I couldn't think what it might be; but when I opened it I was indeed surprised. It was my tale. The editor didn't want it.

After breakfast I went into the library and sat down to read the manuscript over. I picked up the printed slip which came with it. Marked on it were two or three words about the tale having "no plot" and being "too crude." It was so absurd, because there was a plot. I know what a plot is. We studied the plots of Shakespeare at school. The plot is the tale, and my tale was about a man who met a girl and married her.

I was thinking just out when Mr. Kingswell was announced. After he had shaken hands with me and looked on the hearthrug with one elbow on the chimney piece, looking at me at the writing table surrounded by all my papers.

"Whatever documents have you there? Are you auditing the household accounts?" he asked.

"No," I said, "I don't have anything to do with the accounts yet; I don't think I could manage them." (Of course I couldn't. Hadn't I made a muddle of my own allowances?)

"Ah! Then you are perhaps calculating your personal liabilities? But, no, I see you are not dealing with figures."

He was laughing, I could tell; but I didn't mind that, some people laugh so nicely, and I determined to tell him all about it.

"I'm writing a story," I said, "or rather I have written one, and would you believe, the editor I posted it to has sent it back."

"It's a habit I am told editors have," Mr. Kingswell replied, quite seriously, though I fancied his eyes were laughing.

"It's a very silly habit," I asserted, "and editors must be very stupid if they are all like this one. Why he says there is no plot in my tale; could anything be more ridiculous?"

I gave him the manuscript and watched while he sat in his great armchair to read it. He is what you would call a fine man, with such strong shoulders and lovely brown hair with little grey streaks like silver dust. I was just thinking how nice he looked sitting there, and what a firm nose and mouth he had, when suddenly he clasped his hands and said, abruptly, "So your hero is young and handsome—a real Apollo. You admire handsome men?"

"Oh, no," I said, "I admire strong men, not that sort at all. But I thought it was the usual thing in books."

I didn't say any more till the whole of the sheets had been read. It took some time, for I scribbled awfully when I tried to write fast. And then I asked him what he thought was the matter with it. I told him that the editor said it was too crude, and he agreed.

"I was offended, and I expect he saw fit, for he went on as quickly as possible to explain what he meant. He said a great deal, but as far as I was concerned the meaning of it was that I had had no experience of getting engaged and that sort of thing, and that the tale showed this of my hero."

I ought to try to improve. Did you ever hear anything so silly? How could the editor be so stupid or too? Who was there to help me? I told Mr. Kingswell what I thought of his remark. Of course it would be useful, but I must have a word with him.

I always knew he was a fine chum. I had known him for ever so many years, but I think he was just a trump for what he suggested. It was that he should be my lover for a fortnight, so that I might see how a man really liked me. I was a little bit nervous, but I thought I should be my lover for a fortnight, so that I might see how a man really liked me.

When leaving, unless there is a great crush of people entering, it is the most correct to bid the hostess good-by; but if the crowd is very great this may be omitted; not otherwise, and every effort should be made to make a farewell to the receiving party.

An afternoon tea and a reception are very similar; the latter rather more formal, but the same rules hold for both.

It has been considered obligatory that a call be made within a fortnight after the departure of the guest, if none is demanded, if a card is left on the day. When unable to attend regrets should be mailed in time to reach the hostess at the time of the affair.

AT AN AFTERNOON TEA.

For One Uncertain about the Etiquette of Such an Occasion— Few Points Given.

There are many who do not quite understand the etiquette necessary in attending either a reception or an afternoon tea, and with some degree of definite instruction in the matter.

In the first place, as far as the costume is concerned, any handsome dress, street dress is right; a velvet or some thing equally dressy. If this be in the form of skirt and jacket with fur in the collar, the other coat, nor fur need be removed, although the coat may be thrown open to show a pretty waist.

Where it is a gown with an extra wrap, remove this, especially if the occasion is formal. Gloves and veil are never removed, and a small fur neckpiece or a handsome feather boa need not be left off.

Upon entering it is the proper thing to place cards in the receptacle provided; a married lady leaves one of her own and one of her husband's for each receiving lady, and one of her husband's for the husband of the hostess.

It is proper to seek the hostess and those who may be receiving, greeting them all before moving on to the room where refreshments are served.

No stated time is set for remaining. If friends and acquaintances are found to chat with, an hour may be spent, or, if preferred, only a greeting may be exchanged with the receiving party and one may leave at once. It is not obligatory to take any refreshments, although a conventional letter form to make a pretense, if nothing is cared for.

When leaving, unless there is a great crush of people entering, it is the most correct to bid the hostess good-by; but if the crowd is very great this may be omitted; not otherwise, and every effort should be made to make a farewell to the receiving party.

EMBROIDERY DESIGN.

The One Illustrated Is Suitable for Dollies and Table Covers and Other Linen Articles.

This is a pretty design to be worked on fine linen for dollies, table covers, etc. A border of drawn threads, made about two and one-half inches from the edge, then beyond this the design of open holes and cording.

FOR BORDER AND CORNER.

stitch is worked. The scalloped border is worked over in buttonhole stitch, which is made by passing the needle under the thread to make it stand up well. The superfluous edges of material must be cut away with a pair of sharp scissors. The design may be worked on the material by means of blue tracing cloth.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

To soothe the pain of a bruised finger hold the damaged finger in hot water. It will soothe the pain more quickly than any other remedy.

Cure for Warts.—To cure warts on the hands, rub a little castor oil on them after washing the hands. A little alcohol may be put on at night. After a few applications, the warts will begin to dry up.

Food for Nervous People.—As a food, salt meat is not adapted to the requirements of nervous people, as nutritious juices go into the brine to a great extent. Fish of all kinds is good for them. Raw eggs, contrary to the common opinion, are not as digestible as those that have been well cooked. Good bread, sweet butter and lean meat are the best food for the nervous. People troubled with insomnia and nervous starting from sleep and sensations of falling can often be cured by limiting themselves to a diet of milk alone for a time. An adult should take a pint of a meal, and take four meals a day.

People with weakened nerves require frequently a large quantity of water as those whose nerves and brains are strong. It aids the digestion of food, making it soluble, and seems to have a direct tonic effect.—Good Literature.

Corset Covers. The latest thing in corset covers are those made of distinct blue or pink dimitly. They are trimmed with Valenciennes lace and insertion and are very pretty when worn under a sheer blouse embroidered with the cyclot wheel with charming effect. It is well to wear a sample of the blue or pink shades, for sometimes these corset covers are not fast colors, also when laundered do not have them dried in

LIVE STOCK

THE KICKING COW.

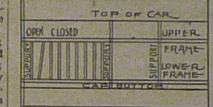

If the Animal Kicks There Is Generally Some Good Reason for It—Find Out What It Is.

EXPRESSING CATTLE.

How It Should Be Done to Insure the Greatest Comfort for the Animals.

Express is always preferable to freight where the expense is not too great. Express companies require animals to be crated, and generally I use short, light slat crates for little calves, with hand protruding from the crate; that is, the body alone is cased. With older and larger animals I use a large, strong and heavier crate. The length of the animal, with the animal's neck placed in a sort of stanchion made of two hardwood sticks that run from the floor slat, one at each end. Feed can then be placed before the animal, and water will be given by the express company's people.

PLAN FOR SHIPPING CATTLE.

In shipping by freight, it is generally necessary for some man to accompany the car, attend to the animals, and then feed, bedding, etc., is supplied for the trip, and the attendant is expected to care for, feed and water the stock. The floor and roof of the car, then in that are made in the car, or in stanchions which run the length of the car.

These are made by taking two long boards, one at top and one two more at bottom, and at regular intervals place an upright which is securely fastened to these pieces, and uprights. The floor and roof of the car, then in that are made in the car, or in stanchions which run the length of the car.

When one end rests on top of a fence and the other on the ground. This inclination to climb prompts them to run up the plank, and the platform seems to be an attractive place for them to play; finding a little bran and oats or leech corn in the troughs they soon learn what it is for, and it is amusing to see them each other of the plank, and crowd upon the platform as soon as let in at feeding time.

This idea was originated by N. R. Vander-camp, of Clinton county, Ohio, says the Ohio Farmer, and the cut shows a few of his ewes with the lambs feeding on the platform.

CURING HORSE OF BAD HABIT.

What Is Better Than a Muzzle in Keeping Animal from Gnawing Wood or Halls.

I notice that your veterinary advised placing a muzzle on a horse or mule to keep him from gnawing the woodwork of his stall, writes a correspondent of this New York. This would be a troublesome remedy, as it would have to be removed every time the animal was fed. I have found that by painting the woodwork with coal tar the worst wood-gnawing horses would never bite it afterward. The tar should be put on while hot. An old broom or willow brush may serve as a paint brush. I have also found a way to cure a horse biting his halter strap or rope by boiling the rope in water in which a bar of cheap washing soap has been dissolved. This remedy tried several times. One horse, when I first saw several horses which I have owned got him, would bite a heavy rope in two almost as soon as tied. A small muzzled rope cured him completely. That was another case where, I think, it has not been necessary to tie him with a chain since.

STOCK NOTES.

Pigs from young and immature sows are likely to be weak. Do not sow a sow to use an old boar or an old sow.

Before the well-known ham-staple breaks, you had better replace it with a new one, or it may cause you to lose a half day in a busy time.

Unless a man has some love for cows and an interest in their comfort, he will never make a success of dairying.—Farm Journal.

If you would get the best returns from your investment in your horse, treat him right, and be sure to clip him in the early spring.—Horse Review.

Ground oats are much more valuable as an animal stock, feeds, etc., than is wheat bran. Both parts of the ground oats, bran and Indian meal, make an ideal ration.—Farm Journal.

The brood mare had been hinting that she did not think much of working out this in conjunction with the night appearance of a rather shaggy young fellow, and she was nearly overcome, she relates Everybody's Magazine.

"Xenia," admitted Martha, blushing, "was the best young fellow I've seen riding on you lately."

"Yes, he's the best I ever saw," she said. "You have known him only a few days."

"When we was some Thursday," corrected Martha.

"Do you think that is long enough to know a man before taking such an important step?"

"Why," answered Martha with spirit, "I saw a fellow named 'Yellow,' he's well recommended, a perfectly lovely girl I know was engaged to him for a long while."

WORST CASE OF ECZEMA.

Spread Rapidly Over Body—Limb and Arms Had to Be Bandaged—Marvellous Cure by Cutarrh.

"My son, who is now twenty-five years of age, when he was four months old began to have eczema on his face, spreading quite rapidly until he was nearly covered with it. The eczema was something terrible, and the doctors said it was the worst case they ever saw. It was on his whole body and face were covered with it. I had to bandage his limbs and arms, his scalp was just dripping."

"A friend I used to go to Cutarrh, and I began to use all three of the Cutarrh Remedies. He was better in a few months, and in six months he was well. Mr. W. H. Halsey, Plummer, N. H., Oct. 24, 1907."

NOVEL LAMB CREEP.

Device by Which a Considerable Economy of Shed Space May Be Secured.

The cut shows an effective and practical lamb creep. The idea is valuable on account of the economy of shed space secured. A plank on which cloas are made leads from the ground up on a platform about two feet high. On one side of this platform are arranged the troughs for the lambs to eat from. This is remarkable soon the lambs learn to climb up the whole contrivance. Lambs naturally like to climb. They can often be seen to run to the top of a board when one end rests on top of a fence and the other on the ground. This inclination to climb prompts them to run up the plank, and the platform seems to be an attractive place for them to play; finding a little bran and oats or leech corn in the troughs they soon learn what it is for, and it is amusing to see them each other of the plank, and crowd upon the platform as soon as let in at feeding time.

This idea was originated by N. R. Vander-camp, of Clinton county, Ohio, says the Ohio Farmer, and the cut shows a few of his ewes with the lambs feeding on the platform.

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, besides a good tonic."

CATARH of the stomach is the correct name for most cases of dyspepsia. In order to cure catarrh of the stomach the catarrh must be eliminated. Only an internal catarrh remedy, such as Peruna, is available. Peruna exactly meets the indications.

Revised Formula. "For a number of years requests have come to me from a multitude of grateful friends, urging that Peruna be given a slight laxative quality. I have been experimenting with a laxative addition for quite a length of time, and now feel gratified to announce to the friends of Peruna that I have incorporated such a quality in the medicine which, in my opinion, can only enhance its well-known beneficial character."

His Essay on the Horse.
A student of Bombay, India, wrote the following essay:
"The horse is a very noble quadruped, but when he is angry he will not do so. He is ridden on the spinal cord by the bridle and sadly the driver places his foot on the stirrup and divides his lower limbs across the saddle and drives his animal to the meadow. He has a long mouth, and his head is attached to the trunk by a long protuberance called the neck. He has four legs, two are in the front side and two are in the rear. These are the weapons on which he runs, and also defends himself by extending those in the rear in a parallel direction towards his foe but this he does only when in a vexatious mood. His footing is generally grasses and grauns. He is also useful to take on his back man or woman, as well as some cargo. He has power to run as fast as he could. He has not so sleep at night, time and always standing awake. Also there are horses of shorter sizes. They do the same as the others are generally doing. There is no animal like horses; no sooner they see their guardian or master they always crying for feeding, but it is always at the morning time. They have got tall but not so long as the cow and other such like similar animals."

Not if As Rich as Rockefeller.
If you had all the wealth of Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, you could not buy a better medicine for bowel complaints than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The most eminent physician can not prescribe a better preparation for colic and diarrhoea, both for children and adults. The uniform success of this remedy has shown it to be superior to all others. It never fails, and when reduced with water and sweetened is pleasant to take. Every family should be supplied with it. Sold at Breckenridge's Pharmacy.

Health Notice.
As required by the state board of health in section 7048 of public health laws, all residents and property owners of the village of Pine City are hereby ordered to remove to the village dumping grounds, de-stroy or bury all filth, such as manure, refuse, etc., from their premises, alleys and streets that may become a nuisance, before June 1, 1906. All privy vaults not cleaned within a year must be cleaned or renovated.
By order of the board of health,
E. E. BARNUM, M. D.,
Health Officer.

It is Dangerous to Neglect a Cold.
How often do we hear it remarked, "It's only a cold," and a few days later learn that the man is on his back with pneumonia. This is of such common occurrence that a cold, however slight, should not be disregarded. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cures any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia, and has gained its great popularity and extensive sale by its prompt cures of this most common ailment. It always cures and is pleasant to take. For sale at Breckenridge's Pharmacy.
