Reply to the Challenge made by O. W. Fisher.

Will say, we as Seventh Day Adventists ministers, are not in the gambling game, neither do we come to this place for open discussion of the word of God, but to engage in a friendly controversy. Being that he has made this open challenge, we will meet him in public discussion, at any time and place he may designate, and leave the congregation to decide as for the $1000 dollar reward offered by Blaine H. Smith, a Catholic priest, for one scripture to prove that Sunday is the first day of the week in the Sabbath, which was mentioned by Mrs. Mack, of the same church. Her first article needs to be debated, as all that is necessary is to produce one scripture, and give it publicly, and we will see that he gets the money.

FATALY BURNED

While Working in St. Paul Miss Matilda Kunesch was Burned to Death Monday Night.

We are sorry that the statements in the papers about the sad accident which befell Miss Matilda Kunesch Sunday evening, February 6th, between 9 and 10 o'clock at 822 Dayton avenue St. Paul, was incorrect.

These are the exact words of Miss Matilda as she gave them to her sister Mary when she was called to her bedside at St. Joseph's hospital. "I went down to the basement about 9 o'clock. On the stairs was a bottle of gasoline which I upset, without knowing that I got some on my dress. Instead of picking it up I struck a match to light the gas, and as I did so the gasoline exploded! I didn't wish to disturb Mr. and Mrs. Burns, so I tried to smother the flames myself.

When I found it impossible I then called for help. Mr. Burns came and rescued me. He took me to the neighbors."

The words of Mr. Burns as he gave them to Miss Matilda's father, "I heard her screams and ran to see what happened. When I opened the door (which leads to the basement) the flames rushed toward me so that I was unable to get her from that door. I at once ran to the outside door, which I had to break thru in order to get in. The flames were then near the ceiling so I passed under them to save Matilda. I grabbed a carpet off the floor and wrapped it around her and carried her outside and called for help." When Matilda was brought out she said, "I am all right; get the children out." "I at once took her to the neighbors." From there Miss Kunesch was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where she died at 1.30 a. m. Monday. She remained conscious until the very last.

The remains were brought to her home near Pine City by her father and sister Monday afternoon. The funeral was held from St. Mary's Catholic church Thursday morning, solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated by Fr. Leo Pastor, Fr. Egan, of Duluth, Deacon, and Fr. Edwards of Rush City, Subdeacon. Fr. Leo delivered a beautiful sermon on the life of the deceased, and the remains laid to rest in Calvary cemetery Thursday night.

Miss Matilda Kunesch was born at Cleveland, Ohio, February 28th, 1883. She leaves a father and mother, four sisters and three brothers, besides numerous friends to mourn her loss.

The Pioneer joins with the friends of the family in extending their sympathy.

IVERSON IS PROGRESSIVE

The Following Editorial Appeared in the St. Paul Pioneer Press of October Twenty Ninteen, Nineteen.

The stand taken by State Auditor S. G. Iverson in defense of the interests of the people of Minnesota in the timber, pine or other, growing on state land—and in favor of such methods of handling timbered lands as will make them a perpetual rather than a temporary source of revenue—cannot be too highly commended. It stamps the auditor as not merely a conservative but a progressive in his views as to the proper handling of the natural resources of the state.

It is somewhat of an open secret that Mr. Iverson has for years been in, according to the public mind, a position of more than has appeared on the surface, with the advance guard of conservation represented by such men as Roosevelt, Pinchot and Wilson in the national field, and locally by Gen. C. C. Andrews, Prof. S. B. Green, Dr. Crafts, and to their honor, by an active and efficient committee of the state Federation of Women's Clubs. But with successive legislatures and executives, from the day of Gov. Ramsey down to 1909, dominated by selfish and unscrupulous lumbering interests—he has been obliged to content himself with doing the best he could under the state laws as he found them.

Fortunately, the policy established by Gov. Ramsey, of selling state timber apart from the land, has enabled him almost to save from the grasp of the skimmers, and sell for the state, timber which has netted between six and seven million dollars; and a continuance of the same policy, as shown in Mr. Iverson's statement printed yesterday, will realize many times as much for the state funds. Also, the fact that the state's chief forester—now forestry commissioner—was admittedly made by law an appointee of the auditor has enabled Mr. Iverson to support Gen. Andrews in his forestry work, in the presence of hostile executives and legislators in a manner of which few have been aware.

The recent enormous advance in the value of timber of all sorts has naturally set the lumbermen ravening for an opportunity to despoil the state's lands. Trespasses have been numerous, likewise prosecutions. The vigilance of the auditor last winter prevented the repeal of the laws which stand between the skimmers and the coveted timber. Mr. Iverson's determination is that to the people of Minnesota, not to the skimmers shall accrue the enormous stumpage values which come from the advance in stumpage values—in many cases to $100 or more per acre.

And now Mr. Iverson places himself squarely on the platform of the Pioneer Press, and declares himself in favor of cutting on the state lands, only the matured timber, leaving the smaller trees to grow. This means permanent state forests maintained for the enrichment of the state's educational funds. He points out that with such handling of the state's timber, and an equally proper handling of the state's other resources in land and minerals, "within fifty years we will have a permanent school fund of $100,000,000, a permanent university fund of $20,000,000, and a swamp land fund of more than $50,000,000."

A little variation of this glowing presentation will show the state, fifty years hence, in possession of magnificent areas of thriving forests, the basis of a score of great industries as well as the source of perpetual revenues to the state—said "forests," meanwhile being most properly inhabited and that is the average southern Minnesota county today. It will also show the burden of taxation for state purposes to have entirely disappeared; the revenues from natural endowments, and from franchises based on natural opportunities, sufficing to keep Minnesota in the vanguard of progressive states. And in the distribution of honors for the attainment of such prospective results, coming from the state, it will award no small share to S. G. Iverson.

Mr. Adolph Bemis is the champion of Pine County on the wood sawing stunt. He throws the blocks and moves his own machine.

There are two or three persons who are trying to move the school house to District No. 63 again. They have got it in the center now so we don't think they can move it. They had better put it up in a pine tree and get an air ship so they can get to it.

Last fall people were very anxious to have some one write for the Graston Advance and when they did find somebody they made fun of him and called him the "English Preacher" and said he had better pick up some brains. I think he has as many as the average person. Anyway he is not like the one that put it in about him. He does not have to get the whole community of Graston to do the writing for him.

William M. Fogarty has a story about a good old Irish woman whose son was about to start for a trip around the world.

She had watched him prosper with pride. To her he was a great man. In her fond vision she could see all sort of terrible tidings coming to him but she held her peace until he had started for the journey. Then she began to cry. A neighbor tried to console her, but to no avail.

Sloan's Liniment is the best remedy for sprains and bruises. It quiets the pain at once, and can be applied to the tenderest part without hurting because it doesn't need to be rubbed—all you have to do is to lay it on lightly. It is a powerful preparation and penetrates instantly, relieves any inflammation and congestion, and reduces the swelling.

Here's the Proof.
Mr. R. O. AND, Mayor of Scranton, Pa., says:—"On the 7th of this present month, as I was leaving the building at noon for lunch, I slipped and fell, spraining my wrist. I returned in the afternoon, and at four o'clock I could not hold a pencil in my hand. I returned home later and purchased a bottle of Sloan's Liniment."

Sloan's Liniment
and used it five or six times before I went to bed, and the next day I was able to go to work and use my hand as usual."

LINCOLN'S BOYHOOD and the WOMEN WHO WOLOED HIM

SARAH BUSH LINCOLN

IT IS sober truth to say that Abraham Lincoln struck the noblest, highest, holiest note in the history of the American people. In the new paganism of commerce; of money getting, no matter how; of criticism of public men who, whatever their faults, are to be loved because they have been hated by those who seek to make the nation sinister and corrupt, there is nothing so audacious and bold as will in some sense uncover and kneel at the sound of the name of Abraham Lincoln.

The average American does not shout when he hears the name of Abraham Lincoln. Even the political demagogue, the stock gambler, the captain of industry, likely to grow silent and reverential when the name of Lincoln is spoken.

And while we are getting ready to honor Lincoln it is well to try to understand his people who has not first discovered what it is in his character and in ours that makes us love him above comparison in the story of the world's great men—love him for his poverty, his simplicity, for his manly, for his fidelity, for his justice, for his plainness, for his life and for his death.

Sheer force of character must have been the inherent trait which he had well cultivated. His attitude to women may have been but an incident, but there can be no question but that the influence of various women with whom it was his good fortune to be associated in his earlier days had not a little to do with the forming of one of his most predominant traits. He was, in his later life, one of the kind of men of whom good women declare in all humility and honesty for their sex, that through the fitness of his perception and his gentility toward everyone and everything, that he "might have been a woman." It is a high compliment.

In the first place, he was born of a good woman. Nancy Hanks, his mother, neglected in the neglect of her social status at the time she was born, must have in the sublimity of maternity engendered in the life-blood of her illustrious offspring the nourishment that made the great achievements of Abraham Lincoln possible. Yet, to her is due, but the honor of instilling, with her own blood, her own spirit, the character that enabled Abraham Lincoln to become the first American president, to scrawl his name in the annals of the world, "the land of the free and the home of the brave."

Nancy Hanks gave Lincoln birth. She was the daughter of supposedly illiterate and superstitious people, but she was comely, intelligent, knew how to read and write and taught her husband, Thomas Lincoln, father of the president, to scrawl his name in the annals of the world.

The great Lincoln always believed that he got his intelligence and powers from his mother.

The family moved from Kentucky to Indiana when Lincoln was seven years old. Two years later Nancy Hanks Lincoln succumbed to a pestilence known as milk sickness. She died in October. Her husband saved a coffin out of the forest trees and buried her in a field clearing. Several months later a wandering frontier clergyman preached a sermon over her lonely grave. No wonder the countenance of the great emancipator moved all who beheld it by his deep melancholy. He knew what sorrow was 45 years before he passed his office in the White House all night, with white face and bowed head, sorrowing over the defeat of Chancellorsville, wondering whether he was to be the last president of the United States and praying for the victory that came at Gettysburg.

All that year the sensitive boy grieved for the mother who had gone out of his life; but in time the father went back to Kentucky, and in Elizabethtown, near the big South Fork of Nolich creek, in Hamilton county, where Lincoln was born, he married the widow of a town jailer. Presently thereafter a four-horse wagon cranked up to the door of the Lincoln cabin in the Indiana forest and Sarah Bush made his first acquaintance with Sarah Bush Lincoln, who next to his own mother, was to become the second incentive of his youthful life.

Sarah Bush Lincoln was a woman of thrift and energy, tall, straight, fair and a kind-hearted, motherly Christian. The American people owe a debt to this noble matron, who did so much to influence and develop the character of the boy who was yet to save the nation from destruction. She was good to the Lincoln orphans, whose mother lay out in the wild forest grave. She gave them warm clothing. She threw away the mat of corn husks and leaves on which they slept and replaced it with a soft feather tick. She loved little "Abe" and the lonely boy returned her kindness and affection. In a primitive cabin, set in the midst of a savage country, she created that noblest and best result of a good woman's heart, a happy home.

The young Lincoln grew rapidly. Always an inviolent reader, he ever found time for reading. In this pursuit he appears to have been tireless, but it seems not to have caused him to isolate himself from the social life of his primitive neighborhood. By 17 he was six feet four inches tall. His legs and arms were long, his hands and feet big and his skin dry and yellow. His gaunt face and melancholy gray eyes were set in cavernous sockets above his prominent cheek bones. He was not, therefore, a "ladies' man," but at the same time the mysterious something that made him beloved above the average of prominent Americans stood him in stead. He was always popular with his fellows, even as a spraddling boy.

A girl schoolmate has described him as he appeared at this early time:
"His shoes, when he had any, were low. He wore buckskin breeches, linsey-woolsey shirt and a cap made of the skin of a squirrel or coon. His breeches were baggy and laced by several inches meeting the tops of his shoes, thereby exposing his shin bone, sharp, blue and narrow."

But this girl cared for him, even as, much later in life she was proud to have known him. Trivial as it may seem, the verse penned by him when he was 17, at the time of his sister Sarah's marriage to Aaron Grigsby, may give some insight into his lifelong estimate of the attitude of man toward woman. These are the concluding verses:
The woman was not taken
From Adam's feet we see;
So he must not be taken
The meaning seems to be,
The woman was not taken
From Adam's hand we know,
To show she should not rule him—
It's evidently so.

The woman she was taken
From under Adam's arm,
So he must not be protected
From injuries and harm.

It was after he had passed through many of his earlier vicissitudes that Lincoln encountered his first great romance. The family had moved from Indiana to Illinois. When they migrated from New Salem, Sangamon county, Abraham, who has assisted his father, step-aunt and the rest of the family to passable affluence remained behind. He went, however, to travel down the Mississippi on a horse boat and had his first elucidation of slavery in its most hideous forms and of the uncertainty and irresponsibility of the negro race. He returned to New Salem and became a clerk. In drawing crowds of villagers he proved a popular acquisition. The job "peered on" him as he was elected a captain in the Black Hawk war. His was a bloodless campaign, but he came out of it with honors and increased popularity. All the time he had been reading every book he could find. Later he engaged in storekeeping with a partner, but he was not cast for a mercantile career.

When he first was elected to the Illinois state legislature in 1834 he met and fell in love with great, Auburn-haired Anne Rutledge, daughter of the owner of the tavern in which he lived. His passion seemed hopeless, for the maid of 17 was pledged to a young man from New York. Yet Lincoln loved and waited and hoped, even when his suit appeared entirely hopeless. Finally the lover went away, promising to come back. Lincoln remained a stanch, true friend. After a while he became apparent to the New York-er had deserted his fiancée. Then Lincoln offered the girl his heart and it eventually was accepted. But Lincoln's happiness was short-lived. Anne Rutledge sickened and died. Lincoln was inconsolable.

Following this bereavement he plunged into politics and statecraft and built the foundation for his later life. During this period he met Mary S. Owens. He wrote love letters to her, but later on frankly told her that with her, it were better for her own sake that she should not hold him. She accepted his honest explanation and his second romance withered and died.

Still another woman who was instrumental in framing Lincoln's strong and impressive character was Lucy Olin Speed. Her husband owned the tavern at Springfield, whither Lincoln rode when the capital was changed from New Salem. Lincoln became their guest and throughout his remaining life numbered them as his staunchest friends. He often dined on the sound counsel and sternly cast bestowed upon him by Mrs. Speed. Although he became at this time one of the foremost statesmen of Illinois, his previous experience caused him to doubt his own heart. He became engaged to Mary Todd. After a brief period, doubting his love, he broke the engagement. It even has been charged that he deserted her when she was attired for the wedding. To his bosom friends, Joshua F. and Lucy Speed, Lincoln described the parting:
"When I told Mary I did not love her," he said, "she burst into tears, and almost springing from her chair and wringing her hands, as if in agony, said something about the devil, as being himself deceived. To tell you the truth, it was too much for me. I found the tears trickling down my own cheeks. I caught her in my arms and kissed her."

So great was Lincoln's remorse that he was watched by his friends lest he commit suicide. Here again came in the sound influence of Mrs. Speed. She and her husband

HOUSE IN WHICH LINCOLN WAS BORN

it is still true that Lincoln may have died at the right time for his imperishable fame. He had conducted an immense nation through the most tremendous civil war ever waged and never committed a single serious mistake. He did not possess Hamilton's brilliant genius, but Hamilton never saw the future more sagaciously. He made no pretensions to Daniel Webster's magnetic oratory, but Webster never put more truth in oratorical form for popular guidance. He possessed Benjamin Franklin's immense common sense and that twenty-line address on the battlefield of Gettysburg is the high-water mark of American sentimentality eloquence. It is fitting that after such a career his own life should be lost to be lost in that stupendous struggle. He had called over 200,000 heroes to lay down their lives, and then his own life was laid down beside the humblest private soldier or drummer boy of Gettysburg or Chickamauga.

POISON IN MIDDLE AGES.
In the middle ages so little was known of toxicology that all sudden or mysterious deaths were attributed to poison, but in the light of modern knowledge many of these are now easily explained by such diseases as appendicitis or gastric ulcer. Even the Burgundians can be absolved from many of the poisonings laid to their charge. Nevertheless, says the British Medical Journal, from very early times the Medici introduced poisoning into Italy as an enemy. In England, France and Germany cruder methods of vengeance prevailed and it was not until the sixteenth century that the Medici introduced poisoning into France. The fashion spread with terrible rapidity and poison was employed in every rank of society to get rid of inconvenient persons. The art introduced into France by Catherine de Medici and her followers took root so deeply as to blossom later into the black magic of Louis XIV's reign.

Lincoln made no mistakes. The Rev. Dr. T. L. Cuyler says in the Homiletic Review: "Terrible as was the tragedy of that April night,

COOPER'S SALES ARE ENORMOUS

HIS PREPARATIONS LEADING TOPIC IN OMAHA—CALLERS AT YOUNG MAN'S HEADQUARTERS INTERVIEWED.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 9.—The most interesting feature of the enormous sale of the Cooper preparations, now going on in this city, is that the medicines are actually being recommended among the people of Omaha.

At the commencement of his visit here Mr. Cooper prophesied that during the later part of his stay he would receive hundreds of callers daily who came simply to thank him for what the preparations had done. He also stated that stomach trouble is the foundation for a great many diseases and that his New Discovery, as it is called, would prove very effective in all cases of rheumatism simply by getting the stomach in working order.

That this prophecy has been fulfilled cannot be doubted after a half-hour spent at the young man's headquarters listening to what his callers have to say.

A reporter, who watched to ascertain, if possible, some light on the reasons for the immensity of Cooper's success, interviewed about twenty of his callers yesterday afternoon. The statements made by those seen indicate that physicians who claim that Cooper is merely a passing fad, have not looked into the facts.

Some of these statements were as follows:

W. J. Grant, a popular cigar dealer at 1034 South Sixteenth street, upon being questioned, said: "After a most remarkable experience with the Cooper remedies, I cannot refrain from saying that anyone who is suffering in any way from stomach trouble, and who does not give this Cooper medicine a trial, is passing up a golden opportunity for restoration to good health."

"For three years I was troubled with my stomach, and what little I did eat gave me distress. Nothing tasted right. I felt weak and listless all the time. I was nervous and allowed matters of small importance to worry me. I treated with two different physicians, but received no benefit. I had about reached the conclusion that medical science had not yet produced anything that would help me."

"However, a number of friends urged me to try Cooper's New Discovery, and they were so persistent that I finally took new hope and got a bottle of the Cooper medicine. After I had begun to take it I would not believe that I had not taken it long ago. Its effect was marvelous—brought me right out. I regained my appetite, took on new strength—I felt, began to enjoy life like a different man altogether. I would not have believed there was a medicine on earth that could do so much in so short a time. I have good reason to be grateful for Cooper's New Discovery which has done for me, and cannot praise it too highly."

The statement of Mr. William Kennedy, advertising manager of the Bennett Company, at Sixteenth and Harney streets, was as follows:

"Long and tedious hours of hard work, and continuous confinement in a stuffy office tended to put my stomach in a condition that has for many months made my life miserable. It is no need of my going into detail, for anyone who has ever had stomach trouble knows the suffering to be endured. I became weakened and run down, and life began to be a drag."

"A personal friend persuaded me to give the Cooper medicine a trial. I procured a bottle of the New Discovery preparation and began taking it. Relief came quickly, and in a short time I was feeling like a new man. I developed a splendid appetite, could eat anything I wanted with no ill effects, and all I tasted good. My strength returned and once more work became a pleasure."

"I have taken four bottles, and shall continue to use until I am fully recovered, which I am confident will not take long. This is a remarkable preparation for any one who is 'all in' as a result of close confinement and overwork. I can only recommend it to anyone in this condition."

Other statements taken from those who had previously used the medicine seem to prove that Cooper's success throughout the country is genuine.

People Realize the Danger.

"As an indication of the force of the crusade against tuberculosis, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, in a bulletin issued recently points out the fact that while 63.5 per cent. of the expenditures for tuberculosis in 1909 were made from public resources, appropriations made for 1910 indicated that over 75 per cent. of the money to be spent this year will be from federal, state and city funds. In 1909, out of the $3,180,621.50 spent for the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis, $4,962,750.03 were from federal, state and city funds, and $3,817,471.47 from funds voluntarily contributed. For the carrying on of state, federal and municipal tuberculosis work in 1910, over $9,000,000 have been appropriated. Of this sum, the state legislatures have granted $4,100,000, the municipal and county bodies, $3,875,500 and the federal government, $1,000,000.

Ruling Passion.

"I knew that smoking would get him into trouble."

"Well?"

"At his wedding, when it came to the ring part, he reached into his pocket and handed the minister a match."

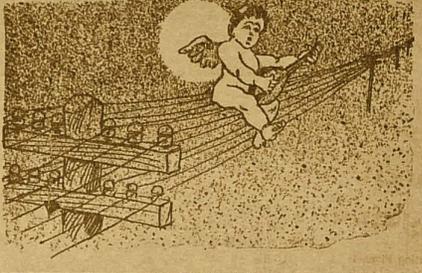

De Day and De Deed

N VALENTINE HIS MERRY MORN
Dan Cupid rose and arraigned him,
For impish chase of lads forlorn.
A sport which ever charmed him.

But reckless—he shot here and yon,
Economy disdaining,
Until success depended on
One little shaft remaining.

With naughty skill a plan he wrought,
Ye while—their footsteps trailing—
He rounded up ye game he sought
Beside your garden paling.

Then, as you blushing—oped ye door,
(Good luck, ye path was narrow!)
He spitted seven hearts and more
Upon that single arrow!

Stories About St. Valentine's Day

Old and New

LIKE many another of our Christian customs and observances, our "Festival of Love," which we celebrate on February 14, originally was a heathen festival. Long before the Christian era the Romans celebrated a feast of the Lupercalia—the joint festival of Juno and Pan—on February 15 each year.

Pan, who was a rustic god, formed in similitude of nature, whence he was called Pan, which means "all." It was believed by the poets that he struggled with Love and was conquered by him and it became proverbial that "Love conquers all, Omnia Vincit Amor." Juno was the goddess of marriage, and the feast of the youths and maidens. In the year of our Lord A. D. 496 Roman youths and maidens still were celebrating the Lupercalia, at which the names of young women were cast into an urn and drawn by the blindfolded men. The maid thus drawn was the young man's "valentine" and the drawing of lots usually lasted for a year. The festival ended in an extravagant feast, and quite often, this became offensive to the church.

Now, it so happened that one of the most austere saints in the Christian calendar, good Bishop Valentinus, had been put to death, during the Christian persecution, on February 14, A. D. 270, for the simple miracle of opening the blind eyes of the daughter of a leprosy sufferer. Accordingly the day of the festival was changed to February 14 and the name of the good bishop substituted for the blind eyes of the daughter of leprosy. The names of maidens in the public drawings and such youth was enjoined to imitate the virtue of the saint whose name he drew.

How long the Christian youth "stood for" this Valentinus' name attack to the day henceforward. It seems, however, that in the sixteenth century, in France, the boys were choosing girls' names and the girls boys' names, so that each had two valentines; and again we find the church interestingly bringing to the love which is inscribed in it.

press this survival of Paganism by the same old device which Pope Gelasius had tried. But good St. Francis reckoned with due consideration for human nature, the spring of youth and love making, which after all exists in Christian youth as well as pagan. And so the young people triumphed over this saint and returned by degrees to their heathenish practices and carried their love letters, by exchange of smiles and silken favors. Bells and fetters were given in honor of the festival day and in some places the tender bond endured for a year, according to the old Roman custom.

Even St. Valentine's day is powerless to interrupt the reign of the picnic and the most popular of the valentines to be sent out this year are those which bear picture or sentiment or both on the reverse side of a postal. The effect of nature study in the schools is also reflected in the valentines and children are especially fond of the designs in which birds are conspicuous. Jolly little Teddy bears continue strong favorites and Bire's Rabbit grotesquely beseeches:

On bended knees, I beg you, honey,
Let me, let me be your bunny.

It behooves the man, woman or child who expects to send out love messages this February 14 to do the shopping at once, for the valentine trade is not only heavier this year than ever before, but it began earlier, the middle of January seeing purchases made, while at the more popular book shops orders were placed before the stock arrived. Foregathered hostesses, making plans for valentine parties, made purchases by the dozen, and the result has been that many of the novelties have been snapped up before they were unpacked. The variety remaining is a large one, however, for the trade proves to be one of extremes, and, while the postcards are the prime favorites, at least 40 per cent. of the business is attracted to the lively, hand-drawn valentines of lace paper, encolored and satin. Teddy bear postals are nice to have, but, after all, there are many children who still cling to the old-fashioned idea of a valentine and there are many parents ready to gratify the preference, thinking nothing of spending several tens on the exquisite designs which represent the old-fashioned lace and tinsel valentines. In an elaborated form, butterflies of the designs, hearts and Cupids and other such valentines really artistic and beautiful creations.

Distinct of all the valentines, though among the most impressive are the shape cards, quaint little silver-bonnet babies and pretty Dutch girls respectively fetching. The Dutch girls resemble water carriers, but their hair is filled with blossoms and in the folds of their full skirts are such sentiments as "Lof but me, I lof but see, or 'This dainty maiden brings to thee the love which is inscribed in me."

LIVE STOCK

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

Nowadays draft horses must be matched to sell well.

It is a mistake not to grow the pigs rapidly from birth to market.

If a pig has a languid appetite there is something wrong somewhere.

A variety of feed is advisable but radical changes are to be avoided.

It is a mistake to feed pigs sour milk when they are learning to eat.

Chose for the breeding man a solid color—dark bay, black or chestnut.

In countries where colts run out the year around, the mature horses have much longer legs.

The sheep barn must be dry and well ventilated. Foul odors and too much heat bring on pneumonia.

In selecting the brood sows avoid those with low weak backs for they usually indicate weakness of constitution.

The fact that a hog will eat almost anything and turn it into meat does not imply that anything will do for the hog.

All straw, stalks, etc., used for litter in the sheep barn should be run through a cutter to increase the power of absorption.

One must give some thought to the feeding methods of the farm these days. The stock should have excellent care for two months yet, in order to die over the most severe part of the year.

If you are in doubt, kill the bigger hog, for it makes better meat and the ham of a light hog is hardly worth curing if you are fond of meat, for it divides far too rapidly.

A good rack for feeding sheep can be made by almost any sensible farmer. About all that is needed is a support for the hay so that it shall not fall to the ground and be wasted and also be handy for the sheep to get at.

Water is as much a necessity for stock as in the winter days of summer, if you would keep the stuff thrifty and comfortable. Some people forget the poultry water supply, even if they are careful about the tanks and troughs that afford water for the larger animals of the farm.

Attention Sick Women

If you had positive proof that a certain remedy for female ills had made many remarkable cures, would you not feel like trying it?

If during the last thirty years we had not succeeded in convincing every fair-minded woman that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured thousands and thousands of women of the ills peculiar to their sex, then we long for an opportunity to do so by direct correspondence. Meanwhile read the following letters which we guarantee to be genuine and truthful.

Hudson, Ohio.—"I suffered for a long time from a weakness, inflammation, dreadful pains each month and depression. I had been doctoring and receiving only temporary relief, when a friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and wrote to you for advice. I have faithfully followed your directions and now, after taking only five bottles of the Vegetable Compound, I have every reason to believe I am a well woman. I give you full permission to use my testimonial."—Mrs. Lena Garwood, Hudson, Ohio. R. F. D. No. 7.

St. Regis Falls, N. Y.—"Two years ago I was so bad that I had to take to my bed every month, and it would last from two to three weeks. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in dry form. I am happy to say that I am cured, thanks to your medicine and good advice. You may use my letter for the good of others."—Mrs. J. H. Breyer, St. Regis Falls, N. Y.

There is absolutely no doubt about the ability of this grand old remedy, made from the roots and herbs of our fields, to cure female diseases. We possess volumes of proof of this fact, enough to convince the most skeptical.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. It has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Tint Your Walls with Alabastine

Why? Because Alabastine is better than wall paper—does not harbor insects nor disease germs like wall paper.

Because Alabastine is far better than any kind of Kalsomine—kalsomine rubs off and flakes off. Alabastine does not.

Because Alabastine is clean, stylish, costs little and is easy to put on.

Alabastine The Sanitary Wall Coating

is a powder made from pure native alabaster. It comes in all sorts of rich, soft, velvety shades that enable you, at a small cost, to decorate your walls in the same style as the handsome city homes.

Alabastine adheres to the wall of its own cementing quality. It needs no other glue or paste as wall paper or wall paper. Always use decorative wall paper—just mix it with cold water and apply with a flat wall brush. It is sold in 5 lb. packages, in 10 lb. packages, in 25 lb. packages, in 50 lb. packages, in 100 lb. packages.
