Minneapolis Millionaire Lumberman Is Called

Thomas H. Shevlin, President of the Shevlin-Carpenter company, who died in Pasadena, Cal.

T. L. SHEVLIN DEAD

Minneapolis Lumberman Expires at Pasadena, Cal., Age of 60 Years.

AMASSED A BIG FORTUNE

He Had Been Republican National Committee-man in 1900-1904—Liberal Donor to University of Minnesota.

Minneapolis, Jan. 16.—Thomas Henry Shevlin, president of the Shevlin-Carpenter company, died in Pasadena, Cal. He was 60 years old. It is said his death probably was due to arsenic poisoning. He had been ill for some time before his death and his active interests in business had been assumed by his son, Thomas H. Shevlin.

Mr. Shevlin was taken seriously ill about a year ago and was under the doctor's care until the time of his death. He recently took a trip abroad with Hovey C. Clarke. His death was hastened by the death of his wife in April, 1910. According to his associates in business, Mr. Shevlin had been a different man since her death.

He had been identified for many years with the lumber business. He leaves an estate estimated to be in the neighborhood of $10,000,000. Thomas Henry Shevlin was born in Albany, N. Y., Jan. 3, 1852. He was the son of John and Matilda Shevlin. His mother survives him. He is survived by three children, Thomas Leonard, Florence and Helen.

Mr. Shevlin's boyhood was spent in Albany. Until he was 15 years old he attended the public schools of that city, acquiring a common school education. He then entered the employ of John McCraw & Co., a lumber firm of Albany, and with them began his training for the business with which he has been identified for years.

He was connected with this firm for two years, and was one of the important interests in several New York towns. He then went to Chicago, going from there to Muskegon, Mich., where he took charge of the lumber interests of R. W. Harvey. About a year later he associated himself with the Stephen C. Hall lumber company and in 1881 started a branch company in Minneapolis under the name of the North Star Lumber company.

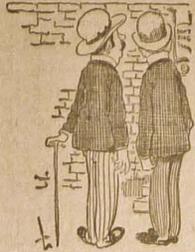

Came to Minneapolis. He moved to Minneapolis and soon organized the Hall & Ducey company.

"Every wife," he said, "loves to see her husband turn over for her sake a new leaf—in his check-book."

Why He Couldn't Sit Down.

Harry, aged six, is an orphan, but an indulgent grandmother and kind maiden aunt have taken care of him. The first pair of knickerbockers were secured recently, and it was a proud moment for the boy when his aunt put them on him on Sunday morning and he was permitted to go to church with his grandmother. Naturally the maiden aunt knew very little about the arrangement of knickerbockers, and there was a suspicious fullness in front and an equally mystifying tightness in the back to be observed, as the little chap trudged happily along in church Harry sat down, but did not appear comfortable and stood up. "Harry, sit down," whispered his grandmother. He obediently climbed back on the seat, but soon slipped off again. "Harry, you must sit down." "Grandma, I can't. My pants is choking me." She looked more closely than her dim sight had before permitted, and discovered the new little knickerbockers were on hind side before. Harry stood up during the remainder of the service.

Why They Scout. Mrs. Forward—And so two of your sons are Boy Scouts? Where do they do their reconnoitering?

Mrs. Howard—In our refrigerator.

RECOGNIZED THE ACTION.

Mamma—What do you mean, my child?

Little Nell—Why, the preacher said "Let's Play," and everybody held their hands up for their faces.

The annual per capita fire waste in Europe averages 23 cents, while in the United States it amounts to $2.51.

A Hold-Up

An Oppressive Trust.

Before the Coffee Roasters' Association, in session at Chicago on Thursday, Thomas J. Webb, of Chicago, charged that there is in existence a coffee combine which is "the most monstrous imposition in the history of human commerce."

There is very slight exaggeration about this statement. It comes very close to being literally true. There is a coffee combine in Brazil, from which country comes the bulk of the coffee used in the United States, which is backed by the government of Brazil and financed by it, which compels American consumers, as Mr. Webb said, "to pay famine prices for coffee when no famine exists."

The worst thing about this is that the consumers of the United States have been compelled to put up the money through which this combine, to further clinch them, has been made effective. There were formerly revenue duties imposed upon all coffee entering the United States. Those taxes were denounced as an imposition upon the people; as taxing the poor man's breakfast table; and like. The taxes were removed. Immediately thereafter Brazil imposed an export duty upon coffee up to the full amount of the former customs taxes in this country. The revenue which formerly went into the treasury of the United States was diverted to the treasury of Brazil. The poor man's breakfast coffee continued to cost him the same old price.

But this was only the commencement. The "valorization" plan was evolved in Brazil. Through this plan the government, using the revenues derived from the export duties for the purpose, takes all of the surplus crop in a season of large yields and holds it off the market, thus keeping the supply down to the demands of the market and permitting the planters to receive a much higher price than they would otherwise have done.

The United States consumes more Brazilian coffee than does the rest of the world. We are the best customers of Brazil, and Brazil buys little from us. Now Brazil is promoting, financing and maintaining a trust designed, and working effectively for the purpose, to compel American consumers to pay an exorbitant price for the coffee they use. What is the remedy?—Seattle Post-Intelligencer—Nov. 19, 1911.

Standard statistics of the coffee trade show a falling off in sales during the last two years of over two hundred million pounds. Authenticated reports from the Postum factories in this city show a tremendous increase in the sale of Postum in a like period of time.

While the sales of Postum invariably show marked increase year over year, the extraordinary demand for that well-known breakfast beverage during 1911 is very likely due to a public awakening to the oppression of the coffee trust.

Such an awakening naturally disposes the multitude who suffer from the ill effects of coffee drinking to be more receptive to knowledge of harm which so often comes as a result of the use of the drug-beverage, coffee.—Battle Creek Evening News—Dec. 19, 1911.

POSTUM

is a pure food-drink made of the field grains, with a pleasing flavour not unlike high grade Java.

A Big Package

About 1½ lbs. Costs 25 cts.

At Grocers

Economy to one's purse is not the main reason for using Postum.

It is absolutely free from any harmful substance, such as "caffeine" (the drug in coffee), to which so much of the nervousness, biliousness and indigestion of today are due. Thousands of former coffee drinkers now use Postum because they know from experience the harm that coffee drinking causes.

Boil it according to directions (that's easy) and it will become clear to you why—

ONLY A MAN.

A FEW days ago there passed away out at Los Angeles, where he had gone to regain health, a man whose life was an exemplification of the best there is in living. Robert C. Bedford, of Beloit, Wisconsin, started life as a poor boy worked his way through the common schools and through Beloit University became a Congregational minister and went to the south as a missionary to the Freedmen. The first Thanksgiving service at Tuskegee was conducted by him and from that time to the date of his death he had been interested in this great educational institution for the colored people. Later he became one of the members of the Board of Financial Trustees and later the Financial head of the institution. He has visited every state in the Union in the interest of the school. He has seen it grow from a hen coop to one of the greatest educational institutions in the land. He has been brought into touch with the people all over the land whose generosity has made the school a possibility. It was largely due to the manhood and sterling integrity of this man that the people had confidence in the enterprise. Next to Booker T. Washington he was the man whose personality has done more for thousands of colored men and women than any other man who ever lived. He was only a man; but he was a consecrated Christian man whose life was devoted to the upbuilding of a race, whose unselfish devotion was given to the blighting of the trail for the recently emancipated black and whose moment must be the success that race achieves. Every man and woman who crosses the threshold of Tuskegee for all time will feel the influence of his life. He was only a man; but he did the work of a God. The highest tribute man could receive is paid him in Booker T. Washington's autobiography "Up From Slavery" in which he says of Mr. Bedford "He is the most Christ-like man I ever knew." To those who knew Mr. Bedford personally his passing is a great loss for his personality was most lovable. He was only a man; but he was great, good and Godlike.

ALL IN A LIFE TIME.

THAT our nation is still young; that we have but hardly broken our acquaintance with those who laid the foundations of our government; that there was but recently a link that connected the present with our nation's past has been forcibly illustrated recently when John Bigelow passed away on the 19th of December at the age of 94. Born in 1817 during the first year of the administration of President Monroe his life covered most of the history of our nation. He saw the country grow from a thin line of struggling states along the Atlantic coast until it embraced the great central part of the North American continent. He saw the nation grow from a struggling republic to one of the great powers of the world. He lived before the railroad, before the telegraph and before the telephone. He witnessed more of the development of the human family and more of its achievements than the whole of the human family had witnessed from the birth of man down to his day. He saw man master the sea, annihilate space, talk through the air and whisper peace under the waves. He saw the light shining happiness and made the weary rest of man. He saw his fellow man fly like a bird, and live beneath the water. He saw industries grow up in all directions where the wilderness had been and he saw man conquer the elements of nature. Not only this but he took an active part in the development of the nation his hand and his part. He was in touch with the thought of the leading minds of world during all these years and was not a mere spectator. He knew what was being done, what was being said and what was being thought during all these years. He not only saw things but he did things. He was not only an interested on-looker but an active builder. He had a part in what was done. He saw more of the world's progress than is given to most men to see. He was a part of the most active part of the history of the human family. He helped do the things that were done, and he enjoyed the happy distinction of doing much. He has passed but to have lived during the time he lived, to have seen what he saw, to have felt what he felt and to have been what he was, and all in a life-time is not given to many.

No man ever failed who didn't know how to give up.

The difference between the man who does and the man who don't is just the difference between the man who says "I will" and the man who says "I can't".

There are more chances for success in the world today than there ever were before. All that is required is for the man to be ready to take advantage of them as they come along. The man who is ready when there is something to be done is the man who makes good.

AND now the report of the Department of Justice shows that instead of being a bill of expense to the government there has been a profit of nearly a million and a half off of the fines and recoveries of the department during the past year. In other words the law department of the government has made the fellows they have prosecuted pay the bills for their own punishment and yield a surplus of over a million with which to continue the good work. Not only this but the government has won the confidence of the people by the manner in which these prosecutions have been carried on. This is just one of the reasons why President Taft's government should be decidedly satisfactory to the people of the United States. The last year has seen the accomplishment of more than was done during the entire seven years administration of his predecessor, and yet because he has not paraded with a brass band and a "big stick" he has not won the plaudits that were showered on the Rough Rider. The difference is just this one man looks after the interests of the nation while the other spent his time in filling the front page of the newspapers with T. R.

Is the man who accomplishes; the man who can afford to live well; the man who accumulates a competence for old age comfort.

In a large majority of cases this man grew to be 'The Man on the Job' through starting a Bank Account in a small way and keeping the account growing until his Bank Credit, together with his accumulations, furnished him a sum sufficient for the making of an investment.
