Secretary of Treasury Says Plan to Use Interest of Foreign War Debts Unwise

WOULD MEAN NEW TAX

Payment Must Be Provided for Through Taxation, Mellon Declares—New Borrowings Held Dangerous

Washington—Treasury opposition to adjusted soldier compensation to be exchanged, but if the compensation, it must be provided through taxation in addition to taxes imposed by existing law...

Mr. Mellon's letter was in response to a request from Mr. Fordney for an expression of the views of the Secretary and Treasury departments on the governmental financial outlook for the coming year and a survey and suggestions as to legislation...

Submitting detailed estimates of government receipts and expenditures for the fiscal years 1922 and 1923, and the Treasury plan for refunding the short dated debt...

The figures," he said, "show that there will be available surplus, but more probably a deficit and a very small, the enormous refunding operation which the treasury has to conduct, it would be dangerous to attempt to attempt to finance the expenditures involved in the compensation through new borrowings...

Fights For Bonus Bill

"The decision of the Senate Caucus to make the Adjusted Compensation bill a part of the administrator's legislative program will be taken up following the debt refunding bill, makes it certain that this bill will be passed to take effect July 1, 1922...

"This is exactly what the American Legion of Minnesota asked for its last convention, and Senator Kellogg is probably entitled to as much credit as any man for this result...

"I know that for some time past Senator Kellogg has been unobtrusively working with Administration and Congressional leaders, in favor of the adjusted compensation bill...

Political Pot is Simmering

Joe Therrien May Oppose L. C. Pedersen This Fall

Candidates, and friends of candidates, are beginning to buzz around and feel that the political pot is simmering. The most noted of these is the activities of friends in behalf of Judge Oscar Hallam, who are seeking his endorsement by the State Republican convention...

Congressman Schall seems to have everything his own way, in this part of his district as yet. The vote picked up by Mr. Schall at the last election will make anyone doing a lot of thinking, before deciding to oppose his reelection...

Announcement of candidates for the coming year and a survey and suggestions as to legislation. Tuesday the question of adjusted compensation again came before formally to the Senate through introduction by Senator Simmons...

There is considerable talk of Joe Therrien, this year, making an independent run for representative, and opposing L. C. Pedersen. His friends are striving him to make the race, but he has made no definite announcement...

Two members of the county board came in for reelection this fall. One Oakland looks like a sure winner to succeed himself in district three. Gust Anderson, commissioner of district one, will probably be in the race again this fall...

Deputy Collector Coming

For the purpose of assisting tax collectors in filing their returns for the year 1921, a deputy collector of Internal Revenue will be assigned to Pine City...

The End of a Perfect Day

Sees Handwriting On The Wall

The following letter was received by the Editor of The Pine Beker. "Please want you desire from our attacks upon Mr. Anderson and the other Commissioners? Would it be asking too much as far as to divert your energy to a more worthy cause? Just that good are you expecting to derive from this matter of discord among the taxpayers, what is the use to recently refer to matters here as the County Board Farm buildings, do you expect the Commissioners to remove the buildings to suit you? Are you taxes, so anxious that you are going to be forced into bankruptcy on account of the buildings and the closing of the county printing job? At that is not the printing costing less than last year? Where were you last year before the County Board was honorable as you would be in a like position? Remember that the man whom you are so mercilessly handling, if they are men of farmers, you do your family honor to protect them from the sneaky which you and a few others seem to want to wish upon them."

Co. Republican Convention

At a meeting of the Republican state central committee held at St. Paul, January 17th, the dates for the county and state conventions were set. The Pine County convention was set for March 18th. The place of meeting and number of delegates from each precinct to be announced by the county committee, before February 11th...

Fire Destroys Beroun Store

The Beroun Cash Store was burned to the ground, last Sunday morning, the building and stock being a total loss, nothing was saved. The fire, discovered by Jim Deery and John Noy, about eleven o'clock in the morning. The fire had already gained considerable headway, as the smoke was pouring around the doors and windows. The two boys rushed to the building where they heard what sounded like hammering inside. Thinking Mr. Delem, the proprietor was inside trying to get out, they kicked in the door, and afterwards found the noise was made by a bunch of cartridges which were exploding. A crowd soon gathered, but there was nothing they could do except watch the building burn, as the interior was a mass of flames. Mr. Delem had been in the store about thirty minutes before the fire, when he had been a pair of mitts for Henry Chalmers. There was a fire in the stove, when he left, but it seemed perfectly safe, and not enough to keep the building warm. It is thought the fire started from the stove, although it was impossible to tell the cause.

TIME LIMIT FOR AUTO LICENSES FEB. 15th

As permitted by law, Mike Holm, Secretary of State, announces that the penalty for delayed registration of cars will be waived for the first fifteen days in February. In other words, motor vehicle owners will be allowed until February 15th in which to make application for registration without penalty for delayed registration.

Where Was That Word 'Economy'

Editor of The Pine Beker: As one of the tax payers of Pine County I wish to say a few words in regard to the rewording of the county printing job. It is said I say just what could be done to accomplish anything along this line, but I do know what should be done when the time of next elections comes. Railroad out of the commissioners that do not work for the interest of the public. In conclusion I venture to say that we can expect nothing else but ourselves are to blame in our own political and economic work when it comes to choosing our representatives who have the power to tax us as they see fit, unless we come to our senses and choose men that can recognize the golden rule and work for the common good and for the interest of the common people we can expect nothing else but to carry and struggle under the burden of taxes.

Locals Defeat Rush City

Last Saturday night at the armory the City square a surprise by defeating the last Rush City squad by a score of 42 to 30. Rush City went into the game as favorite, but after a few minutes play, Pine City started going and they were ahead of Rush City all the time.

Farm Bureau News

We have just been informed that there is more picnic available. Two carloads have been allotted to this county and if we get our orders in early enough, we can possibly get a carload. The picnic is now 100 pound boxes with 250 sticks in the 100 pounds. The acid that is now available is about at Pine City, Minn. and must be shipped from there. This will mean that the freight will be considerably higher than last fall. The rates we have received indicate the freight will be 6 to 5 1/2 cents per pound. This will mean about 12 to 13 1/2 total cost per pound.

District Court Adjoined Today

Four Jury Cases Heard During the Past Week

The district court adjourned this morning after a week's session, during which four jury cases were disposed of. The case of Mrs. J. W. Toussay and Frank Toussay vs. The First National Bank of Pine City, took up the most time of the court and lasted for nearly three days. Fifteen witnesses were heard during the trial. The case created quite a little interest locally, the court room being filled with spectators practically all through the case.

Mrs. Toussay brought suit for $1,000, the plaintiffs claiming money owed by them, had been sold under a mortgage given by J. W. Toussay to the bank, which included the same along with other personal property.

Slesky Leases Store Room

Phil Slesky, proprietor of the City store, has taken a lease of the store room vacated by Sam Hoffman in the Glasgow block and will move in by the end of next month.

Although Mr. Slesky owns the building which he now occupies, his business has outgrown the space, and he found it necessary to secure a new place to house his stock of merchandise. He will probably rent his present location, or he may be temporarily for a warehouse.

Elected For Four Years

According to a decision of the state supreme court in a test case brought before it, whether or not the probate judges elected at the last election, should have a four year term under the constitutional amendment passed in 1920, the court held the amendment applied to the judges elected at that time. Under this decision, Judge Wilcox will hold office until January 1926.

POPE'S ILLNESS PROVES FATAL

Illustrious Head of Roman Catholic Church Called From His Labors.

SHORT TERM IN HIGH OFFICE

Benedict XV Elevated to Papal Throne in 1914—His Career Since Ordination Marked With High Distinction—Was 68 Years Old.

Rome—The death of Pope Benedict XV is announced. The end came with appalling suddenness, since his illness was believed to be suffering merely from a severe cold which was expected to yield to treatment.

Christini Gasparri, papal secretary of state, made public the fact of the death of the pope.

His illness had been suffering for some days, having contracted double pneumonia, and treatment began too late.

During the early hours of the morning, toward 4 o'clock, there was a sudden change for the worse and the bronchial affection from which his illness had been suffering for several days, spread to his lungs.

The pontiff asked for and received the last sacrament, insisting upon this, "I only to give a good example," he said, despite attempts by his attendants to dissuade him.

The pope's physicians were in consultation at the Vatican at an early hour and the morning bulletin issued afterward indicated an extremely serious condition. Dr. Bazzani, however, stated then that while the condition of his illness was grave, it was not hopeless.

Pope Given Oxygen. Soon thereafter, however, the pope's condition became aggravated and the administration of oxygen was begun.

The sudden change for the worse in the pontiff's condition seemed to have come as a great surprise, even to those who had been observing him.

Pope Benedict XV, two hundred and sixtieth in the list of Roman pontiffs, served as pope for about seven years and five months, having been crowned at the Vatican Sept. 6, 1914. His reign was shorter than that of any of the three popes immediately preceding him, Pope Pius X, his immediate predecessor, served 11 years before he died in 1914.

HAD FILLED HIGH POSITIONS. Pope Benedict prominent in Church Councils Before His Elevation to the Papal Throne.

Pope Benedict XV rose to the supreme head of the Catholic church Sept. 6, 1914, less than six months after he was elevated to the cardinalship. He was born of noble parents at Poggi, near Genoa, Italy, Nov. 21, 1854. His father was Marquis Della Chiesa.

Educated at Caprisano college and the Academy of Ecclesiastics, he was ordained to the priesthood in 1878. He was taken to Madrid, Spain, by Cardinal Rampolla, and for four years was secretary of the legation in Spain. In 1901 he was appointed coadjutor of the holy office and in 1907 Pope Pius gave him the appointment of archbishop of the see of Bologna. He was made a cardinal in May, 1910.

Saddened by Horrors of War. Pope Benedict was much affected by the horrors and sorrow of the World War and many times tried to bring about peace negotiations. His violation of Belgium's neutrality filled him with great sorrow and after the sinking of the Lusitania, he telegraphed to the German emperor telling his abhorrence of the deed.

Pope Benedict's first appeal for peace was made in a message to the pope on the occasion of the anniversary of the signing of the armistice. The appeal failed to bring results, as did his later plan for an armistice in 1918. In January and in July, 1918, he again tried to bring about peace negotiations. In March, 1918, he repeated his attempts and in June of the same year suggested that America should act as conciliator between the warring nations. His note was received at the Vatican in which he reached Washington when Germany and the United States were involved in a diplomatic crisis. The Vatican approved of President Wilson's peace note in 1917, but three months later the United States entered the war.

Made Appeal for Peace. The pope's most memorable appeal for peace was issued in his own hand during the August 8, 1917, and which he addressed to the warring nations. During the peace conference his plea was issued in behalf of weaker nations.

Just before the conference President Wilson had a private conference with Pope Benedict at the Vatican in which many questions of a social and international nature were discussed. The settlement of the war was the main problem was resolved with great pleasure by the pope, who issued a message congratulating the principals in the negotiations.

Port Arthur, Ont.—Major Jay Miller, who was dispatched by Governor J. A. Ford of Minnesota to search for James Baker, Cook county convict, missing for more than two weeks, returned to his home after two hour flight, but failed to bring any news of the missing man.

Minnesota—Edward A. Purdy, postmaster here since May 13, 1914, who has been called the best postmaster in the United States by W. H. Hays, retiring postmaster general, announced he will resign from office about April 1 to become a vice-president of the Wells-Dickey company.

Minnesota—Friends of former President Woodrow Wilson through out Minnesota opened a statewide campaign to raise $50,000, Minnesota's share of national fund of $1,000,000, to perpetuate the ideals of the war president. The plan is to raise the money in small amounts to the individual or group that renders the most meritorious service in connection with the war, peace through Justice. George H. Purdy, Minnesota chairman, said that $25,000 has already been raised and $25,000 more is being raised at home here at the age of 92.

Chicago—The Hon. Frank A. Bump, who, as the representative of the American Independent, had as the distributor of relief in Italy and Austria, and who visited Pope Benedict XV, has said: "History will write with glowing his great mission during the war and his great work for Christianity and mankind. His greatest exercise was in the missions and his recent letter on that subject showed his interest in the work. He demonstrated the loving of native Italy in Africa, China, Japan and, in fact, everywhere."

"The starving children of Poland and the people who suffered there in doing his powerful pleas for them, by his powerful contributions, by his prayer about April 1 to become a vice-president of the Wells-Dickey company."

and Austria, I realized that Pope Benedict showed all was in truth the holy father of all people, and one who in the name and in accordance with the teachings of his Master, was trying to help them all. Everywhere there was one of his generous gifts to help the needy everywhere was addressed of his interest in the situation. His all-around and Christian charity were his real motive of a true Christian love. I had seen a true Christian in a true and unadorned of his own communications."

U. S. School for Postmasters

A school with Dr. Hubert Work of Colorado, the first assistant postmaster general, acting as "superintendent" will be conducted by the post-office department for all newly appointed postmasters of the second and third classes. The purpose is to improve the postal service.

The new postmasters of the two classes mentioned will have to attend a school of instruction to be held at certain large offices known as the central accounting postoffice in each state.

Upon receiving his commission each newly appointed postmaster will be invited by Dr. Work—Professor Work, if you please—to spend a week at one of these offices to be instructed on every phase of work of a postoffice.

Among the many things that the newly appointed postmaster must be taught are, how to meet the public, what a postmaster's place is in the community, how to educate the public in the use of the mails through publicity, how to handle complaints, guarding the mails, and his relationship with the department.

Anne Stillman in Limelight

Anne Stillman, eldest of the Stillman children, (portrait herewith) holds a large part of the limelight thrown on the famous divorce case from the fact that she is a friendly and is credited with the belief that she can effect a reconciliation.

In the meantime it is a poor day when the case does not get the newspapers a headliner. Soon after Anne announced her purpose to try to reconcile her parents Mrs. Stillman ("Fifi") announced it was "a fight to a finish" as far as she was concerned.

She emphasized this by setting forth with "Bud" Stillman for the main party to interview witnesses in the St. Maurice valley of Quebec.

These witnesses, she charges were approached with bribes by agents of Mr. Stillman who, it is alleged, attempted to secure from them testimony to show intimacy between "Madame" and the bronze Apollo, Fred K. Beauvais.

The value's excitement over the Stillman case, known as the "affaire Stillman," or the "affaire de Madame," was great. Whether agents of the other side were totally absent, or whether the valley was honeycombed with them, "Madame's" difficulties in the journey were innumerable.

Hill Sees a Flaw in Treaty

The exclusion of Holland from the treaty signed by Great Britain, France, Japan and the United States to preserve peace in the Pacific, is termed an outstanding defect in the covenant by Dr. David Jayne Hill, formerly United States minister to the Netherlands (portrait herewith).

He spoke at a farewell dinner to Dr. H. A. Van Karnebeek, head of the Dutch delegation to the Washington arms conference, given by The Netherlands-American foundation.

Dr. Hill said he was disappointed that the four-power treaty had not been made a five-power treaty with Holland included, for her colonial empire in the East Indies deserved recognition.

President Harding sent a telegram regretting that Dr. Van Karnebeek was leaving the country and expressing the esteem in which he held Dr. Hill and his associates as held in Washington.

Dr. Van Karnebeek told the assemblage that Holland had sent her delegation to the arms conference as a demonstration of her status as a colonial power and to evince it by trying to be helpful in the great international effort.

The New Premier of Canada

This is the latest photograph of W. L. Mackenzie King, the new premier of Canada. His victory was in some respects a landslide, Liberal party being swept into power in nearly every district. Reciprocity with the United States and a tariff with Australia were big issues in the campaign.

Arthur Meighen placed the resignation of the government in the hands of the governor general, Baron D'Elgin. The resignation, it was then announced, would not be formally accepted until such time as W. L. Mackenzie King had completed his cabinet and had declared his readiness to carry on the administration of the Dominion.

The premier-elect found the task of selecting a ministry a difficult and delicate one. He encountered his chief difficulty in connection with reciprocity representation for his cabinet. In Manitoba there were two Liberals, one of whom was an Independent Liberal with Progressive leanings, A. R. Hodson of South Winnipeg.

Fletcher to Go to Belgium

Henry Frasher Fletcher has been named by President Harding to be ambassador to Belgium to succeed Brand Whitlock. This disposal of the reports that the undersecretary of state would be appointed a senator to fill the remainder of the term of Senator Bailey Thompson. It was said that Fletcher would be sworn in as a member of 1922 and then to be sent to Belgium.

Fletcher is a "native son" of Pennsylvania, having been born at Greensboro in 1878. He began life as a lawyer. He is a veteran of the Spanish-American war and was a "Tough Rider" and having also seen two years of service in the Philippines. He then entered the diplomatic service first in Germany, then in Austria, and saw service in Cuba, China, Persia, Chile and Mexico. He entered the diplomatic service in second secretary of the American legation in London in 1904. He was ambassador to Chile in 1914 and ambassador to Mexico in 1919, resigning from the latter post in 1920. He married in 1917 Beatrice Bond of New York City.

You wouldn't put on hobble to run a foot race

Then why load up on handicaps for the day's work?

A good deal of food, unwisely chosen, does weigh the body down and clog the digestion, and dull the brain.

Why put on the hobbles?

Grape-Nuts is a breakfast or lunch-time dish for those who want food efficiency, and mind and body efficiency.

Grape-Nuts satisfies and nourishes. It delights the taste. It is ready to serve whenever you are ready to eat. And it digests easily, quickly and completely—leaving no handicap of heaviness and drowsiness.

Grape-Nuts is the food for health and action.

The high school team defeated the fast Mora high school team in a game staged at Mora, Friday, January 20th.

Pine City entered the fray, the favorite, but at the end of the first half it looked as though the Mora boys would take the "bacon," the score being 10-7 in Mora's favor.

In the second half, however, Pine City "came on" and realized that the game meant either Carlton or stay at home, so they started playing what we call just natural playing for them, and they came out of the dust at the end of the game with the long end of a 32-10 score.

The game showed what they can do when they try. In the first half, offensive playing was off, but their guarding was excellent, holding Mora to 10 points. In the last half the Pine City lads played real 60 per cent basket ball, caging 25 points to Mora's none.

Klieler of Pine City was high point man, scoring 17 of the 32 points. On the defense both Babcock and Therien played well.

Library Notes

We are indebted this week to Lynn Harold Hough's remarks about two books we have in our collection, the Bent Twig and The Brimming Cup. Picking up The Bent Twig we remarked to his credit, "Here's a really significant document on the philosophy of education which manages to be a rattling good story at the same time. A good deal of education has consisted in a process of making up student's minds for him. In this tale you see some children gradually trained in those arts of analysis and those capacities to respond to the real meaning of things which prepare them to meet the days of crisis with a certain creative energy and strength they do not have sets of rules by which to meet life. They do have a vital and trained personality which can be trusted to get into the meaning of things and act in the light of it.

Take The Brimming Cup, I was most afraid to read it. I knew it was a study of the day when a happily married woman begins to feel the wear and strain of her own life and suddenly sees an open door leading to a life of infinite artistic and aesthetic enjoyment. It is a sort of book in which an author might make mistakes in making one shabby, the book might be merely conventional, saying the proper things without ever lifting the real problems. It might be an expression of subtle lawlessness, over-emphasizing the burdens of life of the home and never facing its responsibilities. It might be an honest analysis which never leads to a solution. It might leave us with our own loyal and yet leave her spirit-clogged and heavy and without true inspiration. It might be guilty of a dozen sorts of bad traits and more sorts of bad portrayals of character. And all these things "The Brimming Cup" triumphantly escapes. It deals with a problem with out being a problem novel. Right in the midst of multitudes of people whose emancipation takes the form of believing that the home cannot survive this book is thrown as a triumphant challenge. Every married woman in Pine City ought to read this wonderful adventure, but the hour of its wise and gracious maturity.

NEW AUTO FENDER DESIGNED TO SAVE LIVES AND PROTECT CAR

J. L. Hyland of New York is the inventor of the new automobile and truck fender shown in the photograph, which he claims will prevent at least 75 per cent of the accidents which now damage automobiles and will save 75 per cent of the people now killed and injured, either by being run over or by being in autos which are wrecked when the front axle breaks.

The fender is made in two styles, a heavy one for trucks, with a cross netting of strong chains to protect the radiator and a regular "cowcatcher" that drops nearly to the pavement, and a light nickel-plated pipe and steel spring combination for pleasure cars.

Both types are designed to protect radiator, lamps, steering gear, wheels, axle and springs. They are attached to and work with the springs and act as shock absorbers.

CAPABLE DRIVER FOR AUTOMOBILE

Skilled Mechanic With Knowledge of Rules and Customs of Road Is Great Need

MUST KNOW ROAD MATERIALS

Should Be Observant and Realize That Children on Wagons Drop Off Suddenly—Standard of Conduct Is Set High.

A motorist needs a driver who is a skilful mechanic, and it also needs a driver who is skilful in manipulating a car on the road. An excellent mechanic is not necessarily a good driver. What is required in a driver besides a general knowledge of his machine is a knowledge of the rules, customs and courtesies of the road and the habits of traffic, also the possession of the qualities of alertness, foresight and a consideration for others. He should have a temperate frame of mind and an abundance from even moderate drinking.

The motorist driver needs to be the best driver on the highway. If he is to drive without offence to the public and danger to others and himself, he has to conduct a vehicle which is more valuable than any other and more speedy.

The complete driver should have a working knowledge of the different materials of which roads are made, of their comparative tendency to cause skidding and of the perils which arise from badly laid street car tracks. He must be observant and realize that children hanging on rear of wagons are apt to drop off suddenly and run across his path. He should also know how to read a road map.

A good driver must know the proper way to drive his car around a corner, both right-handed and left-handed, and the best way to ascend and descend steep grades. Driving at night is another fine art. There is probably greater need for the exercise of patience if driving at night than at any other time.

The driver of an automobile has a large responsibility. The standard of his conduct set for him is high. He must possess exceptional qualities as compared with the driver of horses. That he keep in mind and practice the golden rule is no small part of his job. In this is involved most of his qualifications as a driver.

When valves are badly pitted the operation of facing is best carried out in a lathe. Check the valve stem and clean the center in the valve and support it in the dead center of the lathe. If the valves are so hard that facing with a tool is impossible, they may be ground with a wheel in the lathe.

GOLD WEATHER HELP FOR STARTING AUTO

Manifold Heater Relieves Owner of Much Trouble.

Device Made From Thin Piece of Sheet Copper is Attached to Motor by Clamps—Small Amount of Gasoline Needed.

This heater, made from a piece of one-sixteenth-inch sheet copper, cut and bent as shown, and permanently attached to the motor by the clamps that hold the exhaust and intake pipes, goes far toward freeing the car from cold-weather starting troubles. A squirt-can of gasoline is conveniently carried under the engine hood, and if the car has been standing long enough to become cold about two centimoles of gasoline are shot into each trough.

Heating the Intake Manifold With a Gasoline Film Provides an Easy Start in Cold Weather.

A match is touched to it, and the hood lowered. In about one minute the manifold is heated sufficiently to vaporize gasoline drawn up from the carburetor and, on cranking, an explosive mixture is formed. There is but little danger involved in using this attachment, provided the fuel pipes are tight, as they should be—probably not as much danger as there is from back-firing in the manifold of a cold engine.

CONDENSED CLASSICS

VIRGIL'S AENEID

Condensation by Prof. William Fenwick Harris

AENEAS and The Man of Destiny are the subject of Virgil's story, in which he portrays the birth of a nation.

The author goes far back into history as Homer told it, to find a national hero for his people.

In Homer, Aeneas stands alongside Hector as one of the greatest champions of Troy. When the city falls he is one of the few Trojans to escape destruction. With his venerable father, Anchises on his shoulders, his son held by the hand, and his wife following, he makes his way to the shore and takes ship with a large company of his following to seek a new land and found a new kingdom. But he has hanging over him the inevitable hostility of the goddess Juno, the persistent foe of all that was Trojan. It is at this point that Virgil takes up the tale of the Man of Destiny. After the fashion advised by Horace, he plunges into the midst of things.

After some six years of wandering Aeneas sets sail for Italy, after he has lost his father in Sicily. His wife had long since perished. At Juno's orders the winds force a tempest which drives the ships to Africa. His mother, the goddess Venus, does her best to make up for the hardness of Juno, but she fails. The goddess that lies in store for him and his race, and directs him to Carthage, the rising city of Queen Dido. Happy chance brings there to the queen together, a generous and kindly hospitality follows, the ever-watchful Venus produces in place of Aeneas's son Ascanius the little Ascanius Cupid. The queen of Carthage can no more resist.

A regal entertainment is set before the visitors in a scene of vast magnificence. At the end of the banquet the queen demands his story from the royal wanderer, just as King Alcinous asked the same from Odysseus. With all the magnates of her court gathered around, with Aeneas's companions as well, the queen fondles the little Ascanius in her arms, remember that roguish Cupid was playing the part—the prince began the fragment of the last night of Troy, the stratagem of the wooden horse, the story of Laocoon, and all the rest, to follow his own escape with his father and the last night of Troy, his meeting with Andromache in Epirus, and all the events that had taken the six years of his life.

Then follows the famous fourth book of the Aeneid, the great story of the passionate love of Dido for the Man of Destiny. The queen's confession of her love to her sister, the great mourning party for her lover's entertainment; the storm that separates the hunters and drives the royal party to a rocky shore; the flight of the pious Aeneas; the queen's entreaties; the portrayal of all the passion of a self-inflicted death as the hero flees to a higher duty—it is splendidly done. For the hero and the individual that he can be nothing but the most perfect content. His only excuse is that he is the Man of Destiny; individuals must play a subordinate role in the great drama of a race.

For the modern world the interest in the Aeneid grows less after the great tale of Dido's passion is told. The Trojans set sail for Italy once more, and once more are driven to Sicily. There the prince celebrates great feasting on the anniversary of his father's death, after the fashion of those which Homer pictures Achilles celebrating in honor of the dead Patroclus. The Trojan women, weary of the long wanderings, try to burn the ships, but are only partly successful. Aeneas leaves behind him all who wish to tarry, and at last reaches Italy, where he makes the famous descent to the lower regions to consult his father; he perhaps, after the methods of Dido, feels the need of being told again of the great destiny of himself and his race. The journey is, of course, in imitation of Odysseus's descent to Hades, and was the great model for Dante.

Aeneas journeys on to the mouth of the Tiber and forms an alliance with King Latinus, which includes marriage with the king's daughter, Lavinia. If the reader is inclined to murmur, "Why not? Natchy man!" the answer is that good Aeneas has been under the burden from the first of being the Man of Destiny, and the union with the daughter of King Latinus is to produce the Latin race. But not without a final struggle on the part of the gods. Turnus, who rises up as an enemy of the leadership of Turnus, one of the suitors, for the hand of Lavinia. He can compete with fate no more successfully than could Homer's Paris, and after a glorious battle perished in single combat at the hands of the Man of Destiny.

The Surprise. "A posse of the neighbors gave Jim Lutz a birthday surprise party Friday night," related a resident of Straddle Ridge, Ark., "Somehow the word 'surprise' punctuated around to find that they were eating, and on the morning of his birthday he woke up with the grip. He got worse during the day and by night he was feeling nearer than Diabler and plumb hostile. He loaded up his old shotgun and 'loved, bled, it, anybody anywhere else they'll see their selves ragged getting away from there."

"Well, did they sure enough surprise him?"

"You bet! They found out how he felt about it, and didn't come."—Kansas City Star.
