PIUS RECEIVES PAPAL CROWN

60,000 Crowd St. Peters to Witness Ancient Catholic Ceremonial.

SCENE IS IMPRESSIVE

Old Romans Say Reception Accorded New Pope Has Never Been Equalled In Their Memory—200,000 Fail to Get In Church.

Rome—Pius XI was crowned Pope in the basilica of St. Peter's Sunday amid scenes of pomp and enthusiasm and in the presence of princes and dignitaries of the church. The diplomatic representatives of all the nations, members of the Roman aristocracy and a vast assemblage filling the great structure to the very doors. The ancient custom was revived with impressive ceremonies and the newly elected pontiff now occupies the throne of the first pope reported crowned, Leo III, who reigned from 795 to 816.

Ancient Tradition Observed With the exception of Leo XIII and Benedict XV who owing to the strained relations existing between the papacy and the Vatican in 1878 and at the beginning of the World war, preferred to be crowned in the Sistine chapel, the coronation of the pope elected since the erection of the basilica has been celebrated there.

Pius XI again blessed the crowds from the other balcony of St. Peter's. This time nearly 60,000 people cheered "long live the pope" and waved handkerchiefs, many waved colored, and many tickets to the Vatican, which had failed to find their room in the great church.

Blessing From Other Balcony. It had been officially announced that "only to the old tradition" the pope would not bless the crowds from the other balcony but such was the insistence and warmth of the cheering, having three quarters of an hour that the pontiff finally decided to lead the call of his children.

This, it was long after 1 o'clock in the afternoon when the Holy Father appeared on the balcony, accompanied by Cardinals Vanthall, Gaspari, Merello, and Moore and blessed the apostolic benediction, again waving with his hands. The great shake of the hand as he disappeared into the interior of the basilica.

Previous to this 6,000 people in the edifice, rising thousands, had cheered the Holy Father as Cardinal Lega blessed the crowd. The head the stars emblem of supreme sovereignty. The cheers continued for so long that Pius XI was obliged to make signs with his hands as if seeking silence in order that the ceremony might continue. "Old Romans" who had witnessed the coronation of several popes, say that the enthusiastic reception accorded the present pope has never been equalled in their memory.

CHICAGO'S "PONZI" ARRESTED

25-Year-Old Speculator Charged With Loss of About $4,500,000.

Chicago—Edward J. Bonini, taken into custody after involuntary proceedings in bankruptcy had been arrested Monday. He is charged with embezzling about $4,500,000, representing the savings of 6,000 Chicagoans mostly foreigners. He had received from them more than one million dollars' worth of oil and gas stock of doubtful value in available to meet the obligations. It was announced.

Blackford, whose financial operations apparently rival those of Ponzi, the Boston "wizard" brained a huge pile of gold when taken into custody by James Marshall. He had received there from those he is alleged to have duped, he said, and now stands in jeopardy in the south and west side districts where most of his victims live.

DRY DIRECTOR UNDER FIRE

Rep. Gillivan Stresses Mounting Cost of Law Enforcement.

Washington—The United States for two years has tried the experiment of having prohibition enforced by the army and the only appreciable development has been the increasing cost of enforcement. Representative Gillivan, Democrat, Massachusetts, declared, "It is in the interest of the nation to have a general amnesty on Commissioner Hayden for what he has accomplished as far as enforcement."

Don't Miss This One

There is a light in the up air on the latest Charles Ray feature, distributed through Pine City, shown at the Family Theatre for two days, beginning Friday. It is probably the most realistic fight scene on the screen of the market. Truly, one would naturally imagine that the logical end of the story had arrived. As a matter of fact, the picture is not over until the very last scene, which follows the interval, until the very last scene. One after another the friends of the market will see up until the relief comes at the last moment, and it is close to say that the last scene is a close-up showing of the mother and the boy, who will be long remembered by those who see the picture. It is a radical departure from the accepted style of a feature.

Raid Moonshiners At Kingsdale

Officers from Sheriff Hawley's office, assisted by Federal prohibition agents, made a raid on alleged moonshiners at Kingsdale, Monday morning. Deputy Sheriff John D. Wilcox of Pine City, Frank Koon of Hinchey and Jim Henson of Sandstone accompanied Federal Officer John T. Wheeler of Minneapolis with five other officers conducted the raid.

They arrived at Kingsdale on the early morning train from Detroit Monday, armed with search warrants, and started in immediately searching the premises. Evidence was found in practically every class. Only one moonshiner, E. Benson, was brought to Pine City on the early morning train Tuesday, and was given a hearing before Justice Stephen that day. "Oakerling" waived examination, and Benson pleaded not guilty. They were bound over to the grand jury.

A still with a quantity of mash was found on the Oakerling place. Benson had the finished product with a small whiskey glass in his possession, and was evidently doing a little bootlegging. Evidence of moonshining was found on the premises of five others, and they will probably be given a hearing tomorrow. One of the men, charged with moonshining, was confined to his bed, and remained up from bruises which he received in a scarp, a short time ago.

When the officers arrested Oakerling, he put up quite a scarp, and they had a wrestling match in the room before he was subdued. When the suite case, containing the evidence, was opened up in the Sheriff's office, quite a quantity of booze was brought to light, some from mash to mold old "leaves," and included a few bottles of good clear "moonshine."

Recommend New Tax

Charles M. Babcock, state highway commissioner, this week jointly with the state board of revenue of the present motor vehicle tax rates.

The schedules not only are unworkable, but also are of the nature of a tax on the motor vehicle. Babcock said, but they can be made to work. The general complaint is not against the amount of the tax, but against the manner in which it is levied. He said that the rates are not fair and equitable. "Scores of people express their readiness to pay larger sums to get better roads in better shape because they will gain through savings in car up-keep, tires and gasoline in the use of the roads and can support their own organizations. The creamery is considering enlarging their present factory to give them the space greatly needed in the plant and more refrigerator space. If they do this they will put all of the butter in pound tins for a short time that has been trying to get their butter for some time. They will pay premium prices for this butter which is believed will more than offset the cost of alterations and new equipment required in the very first year.

There were three directors elected at this meeting: E. G. Kick and A. W. Star were re-elected. Frank Drimm was elected to succeed Ira C. Holt who has completed the term caused by the resignation of J. A. Dunn during the past year. Mr. Holt has resigned his position as bookkeeper to accept his appointment in the local postoffice. S. A. Steigel who has been Sec. for the past two years and was re-elected for the coming year was employed to fill the position. The other officers were re-elected unanimously and are P. H. Anderson, Pres., Paul Drimm, Vice Pres., E. G. Kick, Treas. & Manager.

Fire Destroys Harness Store

The Ben Haas harness and tire store was completely destroyed by fire, last Saturday evening, the building and contents being a total loss. The building, adjoining the one occupied by the Omer plumbing shop, was badly damaged, and while still standing, there is little to salvage except the walls.

The fire was discovered about eight o'clock, and the alarm turned in. By the time water was turned on, the building was a mass of flames. It was impossible to get near enough to use the chemical department did send a tank in keeping the fire from spreading to other buildings. It looked for a time like the Pine Furniture store might catch fire, but the snow on the roof in addition to the work of the fireman kept the fire under control.

Mr. Haas had been working in the shop and stepped out, being gone but a very few minutes. On his return, he noticed smoke coming from the attic. He took a step ladder and started up to investigate, but his balance fell and broke three ribs. He rushed to the pool room for help, and Fred Jordan turned in the alarm. Eric Hime went back with Ben. When they entered the repair room at the rear, they found the vulcanizing machine a mass of flames.

Mr. Haas succeeded in saving his books and records, which was all they had time to get out. He has a $6,800 stock on hand, which is a lot of new tires. There is $4,000 insurance.

Mr. Omer had about $2,500 of plumbing fixtures and tools in his store. A number of bath room fixtures were carried into the street. These were damaged to some extent, and what was left in the building was practically ruined. His loss is about half covered by insurance.

Over 100 telephones were put out of order by the fire, Saturday night. The cross arms on two poles close to the building were burned off, letting the cables drop to the ground. Jim Wandel, local telephone manager, has had a crew of men repairing the damage this week.

This has been an unfortunate corner in regard to fires. A harness shop, owned by Mr. Schels, burned out there a number of years ago. Five or six years ago Mr. Haas suffered a bad loss from the fire, that time, was caused by an explosion and Mr. Haas was quite badly burned.

The two buildings are owned by Wan Gissow and are covered by a $2,000 fire policy. He has not decided whether he will rebuild this year. This corner is now in the fire zone, which calls for a fire proof building, when a new one is constructed.

Friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mrs. Ernest Hine, south of town, last Tuesday to celebrate their 30th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Hine was married at Millerden, Neb., and has eight children, all of whom reside in this region, and all were home Tuesday to help their parents celebrate the happy event.

Senator Kellogg Makes Statement

To the People of Minnesota: I have received many generous invitations urging me to come to Minnesota and make speeches during the pre-convention campaign. Consistent with my duties, I do not see how it is possible for me to do so. We have before the Senate the Cooperative Marketing Bill, in which the people of Minnesota are deeply interested. The treaties framed by the Conference on the Limitation of Armaments are now before the Foreign Relations committee of which I am a member. Following that will come the Bonus Bill, the Tariff Bill, the Farm Credits Bill, and other matters of great importance.

I think the people elected me to stay here and attend to my duties instead of making a campaign for reelection. I regard exceedingly the want of opportunity to meet with them and speak to them. I think this is useful to the senators as well as to the people. But in these times I cannot, merely on my own account, leave the senate. I should be pleased, if it were possible, to place before the voters my views heretofore expressed and which I hold upon the great public questions confronting the nation; but beyond the generosity of the newspapers, it is not possible for me to do so.

By my failure to visit Minnesota I do not wish anyone to feel that I am indifferent or unappreciative of the generous support and confidence which have been given me. The only compensation a public man has, is the confidence and esteem of the people whom he represents, and as I must rely upon their votes in the coming election, I shall appreciate it very much if you feel that my record in the senate justifies my re-election.

Frank B. Kellogg

String of Victories Broken

Last Friday, the Pine City high school team met its first defeat of the season at the hands of the East Forest Lake unit. The game started with Pine getting the tip-off, and after a few short passes, came a basket. Forest Lake soon started counting by scoring a free throw. During the first quarter, Pine City had the ball for territory, most of the time. Many lone shots were tried but only two baskets and one free throw were rung up, making the score 1 to 1 in Pine's favor.

In the second quarter, Forest Lake speeded up and tied the score. The second half started with a basket by Forest Lake. Pine City outplayed their opponents but when it came to shooting baskets, they were at a loss. Pine City had about 25 shots at the basket, and made only one count. Forest Lake made nearly all their free and made thirteen points in the second half, winning the game.

After the game, the Pine City team was entertained and treated to a big feed.

The party was a complete surprise to the Hines, but everything had been prepared by the children, and the guests sat down to a table laden with good things to eat. The Piker joins with other friends in wishing them a very happy celebration.

"He's Counting the Days Till Spring"

"I'm taking everything with me so there will be no delay if I leave California. I expect to sail from New York early in the spring."

Here is the latest photograph of Alister McCornick, whose love affair with Mary Landon Baker has kept the Smart Set in half a dozen cities ever since January 2 last. They were to have been married on that date at the Fourth Presbyterian church in Chicago. Alister was waiting at the church but Mary didn't appear. Then Alister sailed for England, tarrying long enough at the dock in New York to telephone another offer of marriage to Mary. And now Mary has left Chicago and gone to Montecito, Calif.

"I've just received a letter from Mr. McCornick, written on the Pacific, on his way to England," said Mary, as she got on the train. "He's counting the days till spring." And the slim girl in close-fitting suit of midnight blue divined her hand deep into the squirrel-rimmed pocket and drew out a small white card and read it. "There will be no delay if I leave New York early in the spring."

Extra! All About the $825,000 Pearls!

If Mrs. James H. R. Crowell (nee DeLoe) of Philadelphia had hired a clever publicity agent to tell the world that she had the $825,000 pearl necklace that once belonged to Catherine II of Russia—why it couldn't have been done better. It all began with a sale in New York brought by Beaumont Brothers, Paris jewellers, and Arthur Carter, Inc., Paris and New York jewelers. The Beaumonts alleged that they put the necklace in the hands of Pierre Carrier for sale, received $300,000 and agreed that all profits over $300,000 should be divided. Then Carrier from congress, received $250,000 instead of $250,000, as reported to them, and asked for a division of profits.

"I'm taking everything with me so there will be no delay if I leave California. I expect to sail from New York early in the spring."

"Bartholomew's who got the button?" Such an ad as there was to find who had bought the necklace. Then Uncle Sam wanted to know if the import tax and the luxury tax had been paid, etc.

Well, step by step, the necklace was traced to Detroit and to Mrs. Horace E. Dodge (portrait here), widow of the automobile maker and to her daughter, Delphine, who became Mrs. Crowell in 1920. It was Mr. Dodge who bought the necklace shortly before his death. Uncle Sam also learned that $300,000 duty was paid on the necklace.

M. B. Madden, Watchdog of Treasury

Representative Martin B. Madden of Iowa as chairman of the house appropriations committee when the latter resigned from congress, is getting to be a regular watchdog of the treasury. He says that government expenditures will not be permitted to exceed government income during the coming fiscal year, although estimates of expenditures for the fiscal year which begins July 1, as transmitted to congress, showed expenditures would exceed receipts by $187,000,000.

On four of the regular annual appropriation bills the estimates have been cut $200,000,000, and there are eight more bills to come. If the average reductions are merely kept up where he has already made out receipts would be wiped out.

When Charles G. Dawes, budget director, submitted to congress his bill for the next fiscal year he stated that appropriations committee decided that it would make them balance during the next year and immediately began aligning the appropriations approved by the budget director.

Hays Resigns to Clean Up the Movies

Postmaster General Will Hays is again in the lime light. This time it's because he's going into the movies and a close-up of his well-known smile shows it to be exceedingly expansive and singularly genuine. And why not? His salary is to be $150,000 a year! He will do a farewell from the cabinet March 4. The President has consented and says:

"It is too great an opportunity for a helpful public service for him to refuse. I shall be more than sorry to have him retire from the cabinet, where he has already made so fine a state record, but we have agreed to look upon the situation from the broadest viewpoint and seek the highest public good."

Which is to say that Mr. Hays goes into the movies with the avowed purpose of doing a regular spring cleaning with the backing of the National Association of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors, the organization which has recently secured his services.

We Shall Meet But We Shall Miss Her

Miss Elsie Hill, chairman of the national council of the National Woman's party, intends to keep right on calling herself Miss Elsie Hill. The woman, she's been and got married to Prof. Albert Hill of the University of North Dakota.

The cat is just out of the bag, though the marriage took place as long ago as the day before Christmas. The couple were married in Chicago a Chicago hotel, the hotel clerk stated the official who performed the civil ceremony being the only person in the secret.

At the end of the week Dr. LeVitt went back to teaching at the University and the wife took on her speaking tour of the Middle West in support of the amendment to the Constitution introduced by the National Woman's party. This amendment would do away with all inequalities of women in all professions and occupations.

But at the eleventh hour Mrs. Henry C. Nixie of Methuen, Mass., raised over the snowy roads to Lawrence in her auto and pleaded with Fire Chief Morris. As a result Black Jack has been paroled in her care and he will be "imprisoned" on her farm for life.

 Feb. 19th and 20th, Norma Talma in "The Wonderful Thing," Tonerville Tangle comedy.
 Feb. 21st, Antonio Moreno in "Three Sevens," Joe Ryan in "The Purple Riders."
 Feb. 22nd, Hope Hampton in "Star Dust," The Laundry comedy.
 Feb. 23rd, All star cast "No Body," Dads and Drygoods comedy, Fox News.
 Feb. 24th & 25th, Pla Negri in "Gypsy Blood," A Game Lady comedy.
 Friday and Saturday, Chas. Ray in "Scrap Iron." The story of a boy who had to fight for all he got first for his job. Then for his mother. Then for his girl—then for himself. Yipie Drama. "Shirine Action! Human Comedy! All in the biggest surprise play Chas. Ray has made. Also on this bill a real comedy "Rab-Rab-Rab."
 Sunday and Monday, Norma Talma in "The Wonderful Thing," Meet the sweetest little American who ever sent Combs crazy. Meet Jacqueline Booge, alias Norma Talma. Her Pop owns all the hares in U. S. A., and she owns most of the beauty. She has everything except—"The Wonderful Thing." And what's that? All in Combs, the heart-break and happiness of Norma's finest portrayal. Then you'll know Julia Hoyt, famous beauty in the west. Here on Fox, too. Also on this bill a "Tonerville Tangle Comedy," "Tonerville Tangle."
 Tuesday, Antonio Moreno in "Three Sevens," Joe Ryan in "The Purple Riders."
 Wednesday, Special Washington Birthday program, assisted by Miss Melba and Geraldine Wiley. Miss Melba representing Washington. Hope Hampton in "Star Dust." When Fanny Hurst first took up her pen and started writing her infatigable heart-interest stories, she never dreamed that her true-to-life characters which gained her fame in fiction would some day be immortalized on the screen.
 She wrote for the sheer love of writing of life as she saw it, not as a playwright or dramatist but as a realist. She did not write with the stage or screen as the object of her writings, and so it was a distinct surprise to her when one day she was approached by a producer who had read her story, "Humoresque," and was told that he thought it would make a great screen drama.
 He purchased the screen rights and the rest is history. "Humoresque," Fanny Hurst's (36), who is to be pictured, has gone down in film annals as one of the greatest dramatic productions ever screened. No advance in price 10 and 25c.
 Thursday, Jewel Carman in "No Body." A drama of "Somebody's" husbands and "Nobody's" wires. On the same bill a comedy, "Dads & Drygoods" and Fox News. Prices 10 & 25c.

One Cylinder Philosophy

By "Big"
 (Taken from the Hinkley News)
 The Pine County "dads" have been caught dabbling in a little high grade politics if the news columns of the county papers are to be relied upon. Nothing serious at all, one must admit, simply awarding the county printing to the highest bidder.
 An old, and highly prized stamp for our city politicians, but one that must be handled with a certain amount of care and discrimination, and I am surprised that the gentlemen (you newspaper men will pardon me) who are so fond of the "country printer" should be so easily misled. I say I am surprised that the gentlemen used such faulty technique. Explanations come difficult as a tendency to appear amiable. The country editors may assume a meek and lowly attitude as they wind his weary way through "the vicissitudes of a newspaper man's existence, but once you take away the crust (you notice I say crust, not cake) once you take away the crust with which he planned to nourish his wife and brood he is an animal at bay and he swings a mean and wicked pen.
 The voter, too, has a disagreeable habit of remembering these things at the most opportune time.
 For as city slickers the honest farmer with checks of tan is the personification of unambiguity and we view with alarm this tendency of the Pine County "dads" to pull a little "high finance" of the voter. The old saying, however, that "a burnt child dreads the fire," is a true one and I will lay an eight to five bet that even mentioning the words "county printing" will raise the blood pressure of the commissioners at all times.
 The Askov American reminds me of the man who kicked up his heels at mistaking it for a kitten. He knows that if he lets go he is going to be an unwelcome guest for several months unless he takes his "Johns" and he is not welcome in polite society while he has it with him. Irrespective of how he disposes of the animal there is going to be an odor around him that will be easily identified and hard to get rid of.
 He may write and publish whatever he will and put the smell of that printing will cling to him still."

 It is said on reliable authority that Commissioner Anderson from the lower end of the county is making frantic efforts to raise what is in the hope that he can walk down the streets of Pine City without being recognized. The commissioner, however, fails to appreciate the fact that he is affecting the editor of the Askov American has got him smelling like menagerie tent on a rainy morning. It is said that no man is as sure to his waist but still it is an unfortunate condition for a commissioner to be in where his own hired man wears he will vote the democratic ticket in the next election.
 An amusing situation has arisen over Commissioner Thomas, the man without a district and since the awarding of the county printing the man with only one friend, and a lot of controversy between the voters of the district where he resides now and his former district in some cases we are informed reaching a point where fisticuffs are engaged in. The voters residing in his present district insist he belongs to his old district and the people residing there just as strongly insist he does not belong to them. Nobody wants to take the blame for his being in office.
 Commissioner Stepan, as you will recall, was the man who made the motion awarding the printing to the Askov American and if present indications are to be relied upon he will never make another motion unless it would be to suppress the Pine county newspapers and with one exception boil the editors in oil. It's a sweet mess, folks, it's a sweet mess, and while I have always considered us men the Lords of Creation, I am going to watch the lead voters of Pine county in the coming election and see the speed and dispatch with which they eliminate the present incumbents on the board of county commissioners.
 E. Z. Mark of Willow River was a business caller in the village, last Saturday.
 Banker Eddy of Brook Park was a business caller in the village, last Saturday.

THE POWER BEHIND THE WORKS

THERE is a Power behind the Works as there is a "Power behind the Throne."

Silently, efficiently, never seen or heard, Electricity from the Generator in the Power House to the Motor in the Shop and Factory—should be the Power behind the Works in modern industrial activity and production.

Electric motors for sectional or for unit drive make for greater efficiency, less overhead, more production, lower cost, more profit in

- The Creameries
- The Printing Plant
- The Textile Mill
- The Sawmill
- The Shoe Factory or Shoe Repair Shop
- The Dyeing and Cleaning Establishment
- The Foundry or Metal Works and in many other representative industries.

We are prepared as electrical engineers with a force of practical workmen to electrically equip—the modern way—completely or in part, any industrial plant whether large or small—to put as we have called it, "The Power behind the Works."

A De Laval brings prosperity

Butter-fat is the most valuable product of the farm. Twice a day, every day in the year, gravity skimming or a poorly designed or cheaply constructed separator wastes this high-priced food.

A De Laval Cream Separator stops this loss of profit. It supplies the extra money that you need.

A De Laval Cream Separator will make your farm more profitable, and put money in the bank for you. It has done it for more than 2,500,000 other farmers.

You can buy a De Laval on such terms that it will actually pay for itself while you are using it. Come in and talk it over.

De Laval has won 1921 grand and first prizes at all important exhibitions.

OUR COSTLY NEGLIGENCE

"Co-ordination" is a tired, harassed, nervous word of war that was nearly worked to death at Washington during the early days of the war. It was the brain of the dollar-a-year work to come forward to do war work and it was worn to a frazzle. I hate to drag the poor word through it from the quiet retrospection in my diary where it has been resting and recuperating...

I submit pleas of avoidance and confession from both Democrats and Republicans. It is a matter of proved and confessed negligence on the part of the men we have hired to run the machine...

The administrative branches of the government have a business man or two mental change since the organization was devised by Alexander Hamilton.

No other government in the world could do this as well as we do. We have paid the bills in advance on our wasted methods of administration. We have been able to do it because our country has had resources and wealth untrammelled.

When he said these things Mr. Smoot was writing a concrete proposal for the government to give to the people...

WE'RE COLD TO REFORMS

We have not had in our time a President who was a business man or who had close acquaintance with business methods. The Chief Executives have, for the most part, not been men of business as that term is now understood.

Mr. Taft did sense the fact that he was at the head of an organization whose activities are almost wholly in the line of the entire business world.

The constitution of the six auditing offices of the treasury and the inclusion in the auditing system of the seven naval officers who audit the accounts of the principal bureau was urged.

From this modest start other changes and reforms and savings were to be made. But we weren't interested in the high cost of government of the high cost of living eleven years ago.

Mr. Taft pointed out all this and made a earnest effort to change it. With what result? Why, exactly nothing. Congress was not interested.

Washington as an Object Lesson

PHILIP P. CAMPBELL
(Extracts from an address by Representative Philip Pitt Campbell of Kansas in the House.)

Mr. SPEAKER, governments do not spring up, by their creation. They do not endure; they may be perpetual. Is history a picture gallery of conquests? Do the animals and many of the plants and minerals of the earth, periods set the example for the people of posterity that follow? Is there a destiny that chooses one over another, independent and free people may be made, and republics shall own their phas, and republic shall own their phas. This hour is full of interest to those who are concerned with questions affecting the welfare of the people and the future of the republic.

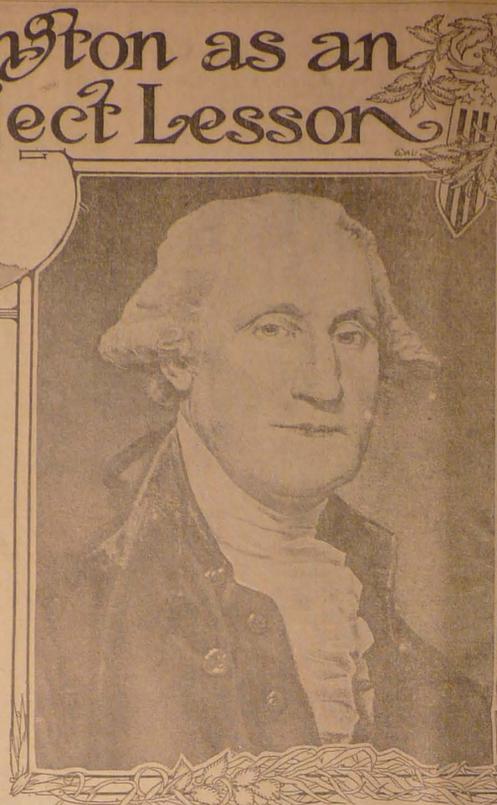

So it is not my purpose today to attempt to extend the fame or add to the renown of Washington. His fame is secure even to the remotest of the world. The wisdom and the achievements of those who have served mankind and hearts of men to all ages. (Applause) I shall therefore take occasion on this anniversary of his birth to note the government established by the fathers, the achievements made under it by the American people, and the lessons to be learned, and at the same time consider the principles that have been made from its fundamental principles and purposes that endanger its perpetuity.

It is safe to say that the creation and adoption of the constitution of the United States mark the world's greatest achievement in the history of government. The fathers under the leadership of Washington undertook the difficult and difficult task of creating a government, a republic, which principles as would make it susceptible of being perpetuated. It was provided that each citizen who lived under it should be equal to the political and equal of every other citizen and that every man should have the opportunity of obtaining individual reward for individual effort. The government was created by the people, for the people and by the people. Its purposes and powers are simple, plain and direct. It offers protection to the citizen in his right to free property, and in the pursuit of his happiness. The power granted is limited to such other powers as may naturally be implied from the written instrument.

These powers intrusted upon the government created the duty of dealing with national and international questions affecting the life, the character and the honor of the people and its people by their national and international relations. It offers protection to the citizen in his right to free property, and in the pursuit of his happiness. The power granted is limited to such other powers as may naturally be implied from the written instrument. These powers intrusted upon the government created the duty of dealing with national and international questions affecting the life, the character and the honor of the people and its people by their national and international relations. It offers protection to the citizen in his right to free property, and in the pursuit of his happiness. The power granted is limited to such other powers as may naturally be implied from the written instrument.

This leads me to call attention to the important duties of the hour. It is our duty to be vigilant and to ascertain how far we have already been beguiled to depart from it and divert and multiply the activities of the government in matters foreign to its original purposes, and to contemplate the effects of such departure on the life of the government and on the opportunity of the individual citizen.

It would be difficult to enumerate all the departments, bureaus, and commissions of the government at Washington that have been created to exercise bureaucratic authority and paternal guardianship over the people in every part of the republic. There is no activity, business, social, or domestic condition that is not the object of their supervision, their solicitude, or their care. Over 650,000 civilian employees make up the army that oversees and directs the affairs of the people and assumes guardianship over them. Government agents and inspectors, exercising every variety of authority, are found on every Pullman car and in every street. Government reports on every subject from agriculture to the files of offices that cover acres of floor space in Washington. The mahogany and quarter-sawn oak office furniture already installed has cost many millions of dollars and more is being purchased. A yearling dies of blackleg on a farm in Kansas, the government at Washington acts on the case. If a log dies of the checker in a log lot in Iowa, the government at Washington takes charge. If a weevil borrows through a hole of cotton on a plantation in Texas, the government at

REPRODUCTION BY STEVENS, 1757

Washington is stirred to action. Nothing escapes the vigilant eye of the government and its innumerable functionaries. If the price of one article goes up, let the government take charge of the sellers; if the price of another goes down, let the government take charge of the buyers. And thus the central of government activities goes directly on. Government control is the remedy for every ill, and government regulation the source of every good. The people pay all the expenses. In some instances they pay it all through the government at Washington. In the case of other activities they pay half through the government at Washington and the other half through the government of the state. But the people pay all the expenses of this complicated machinery of government, that has its agents looking over the shoulders of every business man and directing affairs of every citizen. The fathers embodied with rare wisdom those elements of strength and endurance which were essential if the government was to be perpetuated through the ages. They avoided what the history of the world has shown to be the fatal error of appointment and discontent among the people. The fathers studied the experience of mankind in self-government. They studied the lessons and profit by the teachings of history. They sought and found the causes of failure by other peoples in the history of the world. They knew that the things that wander into the realm of fancy. They were creating a government for human beings whose nature has remained the same through all the centuries of time. They knew that the things that in other ages had invited criticism, provoked discontent, and resulted in disappointment and revolution would lead to the same end in future ages. They therefore created a government adapted to the nature of man, a simple government of laws to be enacted and enforced by the chosen representatives of a free people. The purpose of the government was to protect them in their natural rights, and to enable them to meet their national and international duties and obligations. Its powers were limited.

The fathers did not contemplate at any time under the Constitution they gave us a government by man. It was not in the scheme of the fathers that at any time the people should be beguiled into using the government at Washington for supervising and directing their private personal and domestic affairs. They knew that in a government of free people no man is big enough or wise enough or good enough to command another, his political equal, in what he may or may not do. It is fundamental that a free people may not be expected long to endure the dominions, the vexations, the arbitrary regulations, the restrictions, or the disappointments that are incident to government by man acting as the functionaries of a central authority, directing the affairs of and exercising control over the liberties of the remotest parts of their territorial limits. Even the assurances of government bureaus that the citizen who for his own good will not long beguile the citizen into a surrender of his right to live under a government of laws enacted by his authority and consent, that merely protect him from injury by others and protect others from injury by him.

There is no word in the discussion by the fathers of the powers and duties of the government that have been handed down to us leads to the belief that it was contemplated in their plan that the head of any department or the chief of any bureau or the agent of any commission should at any time make restrictions or arbitrary regulations affecting the life, liberty, property, or the pursuit of happiness of the citizen. Such restrictions upon the individual as were contemplated were to be made only by the states, and the lesser political subdivisions having immediate jurisdiction, and then only by the plain terms of statutes enacted by the representatives of the people. The rapidly growing and alarming tendency today toward a centralization of all authority and power incident to government in Washington. We have already ignored the admonition of the fathers, we have defied the laws of human nature, which have never changed, we have overruled the lessons of history. We have abandoned as if they were of no account the principles of simple laws that properly serve of long measure in a country of free people. We have already been led by the false promises of government bureaus, exercising bureaucratic authority and police power, not authorized by the terms or implied by the provisions of the Constitution, are better for the people than a government of plain statutes. We have been lured by the promises of government agents who lead the citizen by the hand into green pastures, beside still waters, into aliyah fields, then on to the millennium. Already the citizen looks about him and finds himself in the midst of a Tolly paradise, entirely surrounded by government bureaus. So many of the numerous bureaus of the government are exercising bureaucratic authority and police power, that they meet the citizen everywhere he turns—in his fields, in his mills, in his shops, in his factories, in his places of business, great and small—where substituting the will and judgment of a government agent for the will and judgment of the individual citizen, he matters in what direction the citizen may turn, to the agent of the government there is to be forbidd or to command. Instead of remaining his protector, the government has become his guardian.

There are many matters that require more than individual attention, matters in which cooperation is not only desirable but necessary. In all such matters the smaller political subdivisions and the states should be resorted to. In that way the portion of the public directly concerned are able to observe and intelligently determine whether or not they require a government of laws, and the things they require are rendering a service that justifies the continuance of the activity and the expense involved in carrying it on. It is a profound truth that that government is best that governs least.

The government of the United States is of a great national and international importance to our people even into the remotest township and no part of the republic that its place in their affection should not be imperiled, nor should it be made the object of common criticism for failure to do for itself. A solemn responsibility and a great duty are imposed upon us. We are the chosen representatives of the American people, sworn to protect and defend the Constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic. It is time to begin the process of reestablishing a government of laws under the Constitution. It is time to limit the activities and reduce the expenses of government at Washington. (Applause) The process of eliminating every element of weakness with which our government has been burdened and which now make the object of criticism should be gradual but persistent, until we can again look upon it as the simple government of laws given us by the fathers for the purpose of guaranteeing life, liberty, property, and the pursuit of happiness, and to the guarantee and the same opportunities that we and our ancestors have enjoyed under the Constitution of the United States. (Applause.)

Beginning and Commencement. The Latin commencing is more formal than the Saxon beginning, as the verb commences. It is more formal than begin. Commencement is for the most part restricted to some form of action, while beginning is for restriction, but may be applied to action, state, material, extent, enumeration, or to whatever else may be conceived of as having first a part, point, degree, etc. The letter A is at the beginning, (and the commencement) of every alphabet.

Brutal Truth.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have vouched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilham's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine. It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do. Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

MORE IMPORTANT TO SAM Accused Man Could Do With One Lawyer and Use the Other One as a Witness.

Not so long ago a Quaker city lawyer found a formidable phalanx opposed to him in the trial of a case. Presumably the other side was not strong, at least in the lawyer's estimation. In point of witnesses, and when he came to sum up, the attorney called the following to the jury as illustrative of the predicament of the other side:

NO STIMULANT ABOUT THAT Fainting Man Not Unnaturally Objected to Poor Imitation of the Potent Spirit.

Observing a poorly dressed man stagger and fall prostrate on the sidewalk, a passing physician hurried to his side and began to feel for his pulse. Apparently the man was unconscious and the physician was about to draw his hypodermic syringe from his medicine bag when a workman with a diamond ring in his hand stepped forward from the group of surrounding spectators. "Here, give him some of this!" he said, exhibiting a whisky flask in his hand.

Examination of old records, especially official records, reveal many humorous writings. On Page 211 of the first marriage record book in the office of the county clerk is one such. In that day, which was 1823, it was the custom for the clergyman or the holder of the peace or whoever performed the ceremony to come to the clerk's office and personally write into the records the fact that so and so had married by him. On this page the following inscription appeared in ink:
