

COMPLETE TARIFF GIVEN HOUSE

Conferees Agree to Foreign Valuation in Measure, Two Years in Making.

Washington—The Fordney-McCumber tariff bill, designated officially as the "tariff act of 1922" was returned to the house from conference.

The bill is regarded, in general, as the highest tariff ever imposed by an American congress.

A provision in the elastic tariff clause gives the president authority to change from foreign to American valuation, if foreign valuation does not justify differentiation between cost of production in America and abroad.

Conferees also eliminated the "free trade zones" into which materials could be bought, manufactured and shipped out without payment of duty.

U. S. WINS FIRST SKIRMISH

Chicago—The first skirmish in the battle over making permanent the Daugherty injunction to break the railroad shopmen's strike was won by the government forces in federal court here.

Judge James H. Wilkerson, who granted the temporary restraining order, turned down a request by Donald Richberg, representing the union officials, that he be allowed to present arguments first on his motion to dismiss the injunction.

The confidence of the court has been betrayed by the chief law enforcement officer of the nation, Richberg declared.

Richberg, however, representing the shopmen's officials, attorneys were in the courtroom in the interests of the four Daugherty injunctions. They announced, however, they would take no part in the controversy.

Attorneys for unions, bitterly attacked and denounced the writ as an unlawful and unconstitutional assumption of illegal power by the courts.

MRS. HARDING STILL GAINING

Operation Deferred "Awaiting Localization of Infection."

Washington—The improvement shown in the condition of Mrs. Harding was maintained, according to the official bulletin issued by the attending physicians. The patient enjoyed a "most comfortable day" the state department said.

No official statement has been issued since 10:05 p. m. Monday when Dr. Carl Sawyer said Mrs. Harding was getting along very nicely.

While her temperature remained at 100, Mrs. Harding's pulse had decreased to 96 and her respiration in 22, official bulletins showed.

Several official callers at the White House remarked on the effect upon President Harding of the continued optimistic reports.

"You can't kill me, when I haven't a loaded gun," Durand answered between dry lips.

The other man nodded an admission of that point. "That's an advantage you've got of me. You could kill me if I didn't have a gun, because you've got a gun. But I can't kill you. That's right. But I can beat hell out of you, and I'm sure glad to do it."

"Talk cheap, when you've got a loaded six-gun in your fist," jeered Jerry.

With a flirt of his hand Clay tossed the revolver to the top of a bookcase, out of easy reach of a man standing on the floor. He stepped onto the buttons of his overcoat and slipped it on. He then moved forward with elastic step.

"You or me now, Jerry Durand?"

The prize-fighter gave a snort of derisive triumph. "You do--no! I'll eat you alive."

"Mebbe. I reckon my system can assimilate any whittin' you're liable to handin'. Go to it."

Durand had the heavy shoulders and swelling muscles that come from years of training for the ring. Like most pugilists out of active service he had taken on flesh. But the extra weight was not fat, for Jerry kept always in trim condition. He had his own ship physically at least because of his partial prowess. No touch in New York would willingly have met him in a road-and-tumble fight.

The younger man was more slightly built. He was a Hermes rather than a Hercules. His muscles danced. They did not bulge. But when he moved it was with the litheness of a panther. The long lines of shoulder and loin had the flow of tigerish grace.

The clear eyes in the brown face told of a soul indomitable in a perfectly synthesized body.

Durand dashed out with a swinging left, all the weight of his body behind the blow. Clay stepped back, shot a hard straight right to the cheek and ducked the counter. Jerry pushed him, lifting at his toe blow on foot, intending to wear him out by sheer hard hammering. He baited with his head and knee, and every foot trick he had learned in his rotten trade of prize-fighting. Active as a wild cat, the Arizona silt-scoped, scored a left in the eye, ducked again and fought back the furious attack.

The gangman came out of the rally swelled, perplexed and dazed. His chest was bleeding, one eye was in distress, and he had hardly touched his agile opponent.

He reeled again. Nothing but his temper, the lack of self-control that made him see red and had once put him in the mercy of a first-classing general with stamens and a punch had kept Jerry out of a world championship. He had everything else made knee, and every foot trick he had learned in his rotten trade of prize-fighting. Active as a wild cat, the Arizona silt-scoped, scored a left in the eye, ducked again and fought back the furious attack.

Active as a wild cat, the Arizona silt-scoped, scored a left in the eye, ducked again and fought back the furious attack.

"Say, where's Joey?"

"Piled a stack likely. What's it matter? Listen! What's that?"

Some one was coming up the stairs. The men in the room moved cautiously to the door. The hall light was switched on.

"Lo, Jerry," Gorilla Dave called softly.

He closed the room door and the sound of the voices was shut off instantly.

The uninvited guest dared not step out of the closet to listen, for at any instant the men might make the thirtysix in his hand.

The minutes dragged interminably. More than once Clay almost made the mistake of peeking into the room, but his mind to steal out to learn what the men were doing. But his judgment told him he must await a truce with as many if possible.

The door opened again.

"Now that it does as I say if you know what's good for you," a bullying voice was ordering.

The owner of the voice came in and slammed the door behind him. He sat down at the desk, his back to the closet. Through the creak Clay saw that the man was Jerry Durand.

From his vest pocket he took a fat black cigar, struck a match and lit it. He slumped down in the swivel chair. It took no time to decide that his mind was busy working out a problem.

Clay stepped softly from his place of refuge, but not so noiselessly that the gangman did not detect his presence. Jerry swung round in the chair and looked on with a satisfied smile. He stood without moving, poised on the balls of his feet, his deep-set eyes narrowed to slitting slits. It was in his thought to turn himself headlong on the man holding steadily the menacing revolver.

"Don't you! I've got the dead wood on you," said the Arizona, a trenchant saltness in his speech. "I'll shoot you down, sure as hell is hell."

Durand's face wore an ugly look of impotent malice, but his throat was dry as a lime kiln. He could not estimate the danger that confronted him, nor what lay back of the man's presence.

"What you'd better do," he demanded Clay easily.

"Jerry cursed him with a low, savage stream of profanity. The gangman was not a sight pleasing to the eye.

"I reckon heaven, hell, and high water couldn't keep you from cussin' me, but you're a mind proper. My Durand. Then we'll talk business," murmured Clay in the low, easy drawl that never suggested weakness.

CHAPTER XII

Two Men in a Locked Room.

Some sixth sense of safety—one that comes to many men who live in the outdoors on the untamed frontier—warned Clay that all was not well. The machine had swung to the right and was facing from the wind instead of into it. Clay was not very well acquainted with New York, but he did know this was not the direction in which he wanted to go.

Lindsay opened the door and swung out on the running board. "We're not wrong. Stop the car!" he called to the driver.

The man at the wheel did not turn. He speeded up.

His face worried no time in remonstrance. A moment and the chauffeur threw on the brake sharply. His reason was good one. The blue nose of a revolver was jammed hard against his ribs. He had looked round once to find out what it was protruding him. That was enough to convince him he had better stop.

Under the brake the kick wheels whirled and brought up against the curb. Clay, leaning forward, was flung hard to the sidewalk. The car, however, regained its equilibrium, gathered impetus with a start, and speeded forward again.

As the chauffeur clambered to his feet he caught one full view of the chauffeur's triumphant, smiling face. He had seen it before, at a reception especially arranged for him by Jerry Durand, the memorable night. It belonged to the more talkative of the two gunmen he had surprised at the grandstand polo game. He knew, too, without being told that the man was "Silent" Jim Collins was one and the name. The memory of Annie's attack on her carried this conviction home to him.

The rails pulled down as he moved toward the brighter lighted street that intersected the one where he had been dropped. The lights of a saloon caught his eye at the corner. He went in, got police headquarters on the way, and learned that a car answering the description of the one used by his abductor had been headed into Central Park by officers and that the downtown exits were being watched.

Presently he picked up another taxi. He hesitated whether to go to the address Annie had given him or to join the chase upon. Subsequently, he decided to visit the laundress.

Clay paid his driver and looked at the bus numbers as he moved up the street he wanted. Many of the residences were used to look before. Others were employed for less reputable purposes.

His overcoat buttoned to his neck, Clay walked without hesitation by the steps of the one numbered 248. He rang the bell and waited, his right hand in the pocket of his overcoat.

The door opened cautiously a few inches and a pair of slanting eyes by a woman's face gazed at Clay.

"Who's there?"

"The old man sent me with a message," answered the Arizona promptly, "and everything ready for you."

L. V. Wilson, dairy specialist with the agricultural extension division of the university, has been appointed official superintendent of cattle at the National Dairy Show to be held in the Twin Cities, Oct. 7 to 14. Chapman, poultry specialist with the agricultural extension division of the university has been put in charge of the educational department of the poultry exposition and has also been appointed a member of the executive committee of three. Mr. Chapman is an enthusiastic poultryman and will devote much of his energy and time the ensuing months in making the new poultry undertaking a great success.

The poultry show will be housed in the big Agricultural building at the fair grounds. There will be ample space for all exhibits and demonstrations. Speakers of national reputation among poultrymen will appear on the daily program in the lecture room. Mr. Chapman says:

Spray Your Fruit Trees.
Definite results from the educational program carried on by the agricultural extension service of the university are not often instantaneous. In fact, they are from the nature of things often slow in appearing. J. Corwin of University Farm, an assistant state leader of county agents, makes this fact clear in an experience observed in Carver county. Back in 1914 in that county it was not the general custom to spray fruit trees, but in the good year of 1922 nearly every body sprayed and believed in spraying. The first county agent had difficulty in getting anyone to try spraying, says Mr. Corwin. "The present agent is kept busy answering calls on how to spray and what methods to use."

"I knew him when he was a boy"
What one is there of us that has not felt the glow of satisfaction over the outstanding success of a life-long friend? Offer a surprise—scarcely "all of a sudden." Yet neither surprising nor sudden, when you stop to think back over each step of his progress.
THE United States Rubber Company—makers of U. S. Royal Cord—were first to conceive, make and announce the balanced tire. A tire in which there is such complete unity of action in tread and carcass that neither will give way before the other.
First to conceive, make and announce a complete line of tires—a tire for every need of price and use under one standard of quality.
First to tell the public about the good and bad in tire-retailing. (You remember the phrase "Go to a legitimate dealer and get a legitimate tire.")
First also to arouse industrial and trade minds to the need of a new kind of tire competition. Competition for better and better service. Greater and greater public confidence.
THESE high spots along the U. S. road to leadership indicate the intent—the will to win by the quality route in a price market.
Now that so many car-owners have given the verdict for quality tires in general, and U. S. Tires in particular—a number of dealers and car-owners whose vision has been clouded by "discount," "sales" and "what not, are beginning to re-member that they "knew him when he was a boy."

BILL SAM'S DICTIONARY

By J. L. MARTIN
The old fathers' concept of Happy Hollow Friday night was a sore disappointment to everybody present, as the music was ruined by a couple of city fellows who were allowed to use their mandolin and ukulele in the concert. The fiddlers got so nervous the music sounded like it had palsy, and two or three fiddlers, Bill Dooly, the best fiddler in the neighborhood, took the shillaboo, dropped his bow, and had to pick the strings of his fiddle with his fingers.

SCHOOL NOTES

(Carmen Kelley, Editor)

School opened Tuesday morning, September fifth. The enrollments for the different grades are as follows: First Grade, 25; Second Grade, 27; Third Grade, 22; Fourth Grade, 20; Fifth Grade, 28; Sixth Grade, 29; Seventh Grade, 23; Eighth Grade, 25, making a total of 211 pupils in the grades.

The classes were called together Tuesday and began their usual routine after the enrollment had been made.

High school football practice has been started under the leadership of Mr. Walton.

A High School orchestra has been organized under the direction of Miss Holstrom. This orchestra will be a big feature later on in the year, when occasions for programs and various other entertainments take place.

There has not been an organized orchestra in the High School for several years and his one should be appreciated by all those who are interested in school affairs.

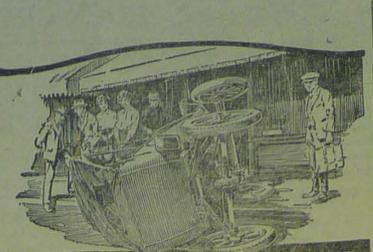

Editor's Note—Miss Carmen Kelley of the Normal department will be in charge of the school department of The Pine POKER. It is the department of our paper of real interest to our subscribers, and of value to the school. We want the students to make free use of this column. If you know anything of interest, hand it in to Miss Kelley.

LIBRARY CORNER

You will have to admit that our library gives you the best return for your money, taking of money one of our latest books just in, in called Mr. Prohak by Arnold Bennett. You must read this book. It tells the story of a normal individual who allied himself to one into a fortune, and the normal of Mr. Bennett least kindly revision of modern society is as follows: Let all pleasantly, ready husbands think twice before they allow a rich friend to die in a be-vevolent frame of mind. We have Great West, Crossways, Nary Mary Brouhart, a good number of who buck up against life hard breaking point to know just what we have to charge you up with the Trail which is a romance of the stirring days when the railroad of the United West with East, Mr. Therien gave us a whole shelf of books, everyone a good story, and book them over. Our traveling library has to be returned and the following books have never been returned: Buddy Fox Dick of Everywhere, Field Primer, Stories of the Great West, Crossways, Nary Mary Brouhart, a good number of who buck up against life hard breaking point to know just what we have to charge you up with the

Tractors Increase Farm Yield 25%

A recent report from a large number of Kansas farmers shows that they were able to plow an average of 2 inches deeper with tractors than with horses. Those who kept records claimed that this deeper plowing resulted in an increased yield per acre of 25%.

Power—petroleum power—is revolutionizing agriculture. Henry Ford says: "In the tractor, truck, automobile, and stationary gas engine—we have facilities that make farming enjoyable, profitable and worth while. Of all modern machines the tractor is one of the greatest blessings that has been devised for mankind. Fields cultivated by tractor-drawn plows produce more than fields turned by horse-drawn ones. Tractors make deeper plowing and sub-soiling possible. This, in turn, enables the ground to renew itself instead of gradually wearing out."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) appreciates the value of the tractor on the farm, and realizing that the use of the tractor is now in its infancy, is preparing to meet the resulting demand for gasoline, for highly specialized lubricants and other petroleum products needful to successful power-farming.

When the power-farmer needs petroleum products his need is urgent and the entire community is interested in seeing that these needs are supplied promptly.

One of the most vital services rendered by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is that of assuring the farmer at all times a constant, dependable supply of high quality petroleum products.

This Company is able to guarantee such a supply because of its modern, constantly expanding manufacturing and distributing facilities, its efficient organization and its knowledge of markets and economic conditions.

These are conditions under which great expansion, coupled with high centralization are indispensable to the performance of a service essential alike to the farmer and the general public.

Dances Must Be Orderly

There have been two dances in the new dancing pavilion at Beroun and two visits by Sheriff Havelock, have been necessary. The visits do not mean that they were made necessary by the management of those dances, but they have been made by a few who don't seem to realize that Mr. Volstead fathered an amendment to our constitution, that fighting is regulated by a state commission.

If many more visits are made by our sheriff, it will probably mean the closing of the pavilion. This would be an imposition on the men who have invested their money in the undertaking and are entitled to an opportunity to conduct a good clean place of amusement for the young folk of the community.

Nordgren Has Fine Record

Elias Nordgren, representative of our neighboring county, Chicago, who is a candidate for re-election this fall, has a record, to be proud of. During his four terms as state representative, he has ably represented his district, and the state as a whole, in being the motive power behind the passing of a number of bills, that have been of material benefit to the agricultural interests of the state.

Mr. Nordgren is recognized as one of the leaders of the House, and is chairman of one of the committees of direct value to the farmers, that of Markets and Marketing.

As head of that committee, he has had the opportunity, and made good use of that opportunity, to push legislation that has been the means of saving farmers many hundreds of dollars. Perhaps none of more importance than that legalizing co-operative movements.

His standing with fellow members of the legislature, and his recognized ability as a law-maker, make him a valuable member of the House. This value is undoubtedly appreciated by the voters of Chicago county, and will assure his being returned to office in the coming election this fall.

Vance Chapman, freelance political writer of the state, who is well posted on the work of the legislature, and legislators of the past few years, has the following to say regarding Representative Nordgren: "The hope is generally expressed that the voters of Chicago county will see fit to return Elias Nordgren of North Branch to the legislature this fall. The agricultural interests of the state have need of his services. As chairman of the house committee on Markets and Marketing, Representative Nordgren gave substantial aid and leadership to the co-operative movement and out of his activities came the creation of a State Department devoted solely to the protection of the farmer and the advancement of the state agricultural interests. Rural Minnesota owes Representative Nordgren much and he should be returned."

Slippery roads are blamed for many automobile accidents, but slip-py brains cause still more.

Recently automobiles used to smell of gasoline, but how many of them have other odors?

So far none of the corner loafers has expressed approval of the long skirt styles for women.

Another thing needed in this country is fewer people picking the jazz instruments and more milking cows.

Many cities are having a "most beautiful girl" competition, but what the moon want is the best peaker.

Some people seem to think they are better off on Sunday getting smashed up in the motor roads, than they would be sitting quietly in a church pew and listening to

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH NEWS T. J. Buckton, pastor

Services are going right along now and there was a one added at Beroun last Sunday evening. The service of course is to get every one to turn to the right. Come to the service and sit where you like. The service is planned to give you the greatest uplift. The topic of the service will be "The University of Jesus." We shall have to discontinue the evening service if the great crowds continue to come because we haven't the seating capacity!

The Electric Range

Possesses Every Good Point of Other Fuel Ranges, and has None of Their Serious Defects

Electric Cookery on the Twentieth Century Hughes Range

Gives you every advantage of cooking possessed by other ranges, plus many that no other can have. With an electric range your kitchen will be cool; it will be clean and free from smell and grime; it will be wonderfully convenient; your foods will taste better, and will be more digestible; difficult baking and canning operations are simplified by reason of the Hughes Masteroven with its heat-retaining walls and its upper and lower oven units. And above all, you will have in your kitchen a range that will be the envy of your friends and your chief pride as a successful and practical housewife.

Be modern. Install this time and labor-saving convenience. Learn its manifold advantages. Test its greater ability as a modern successor to ranges using other fuels.

There are six vital reasons why you should own an Electric Range: It is modern, cool, cleanly, convenient, cooks better food and does it in a more scientific manner. If you will call at our office we shall be glad to explain the many points of superiority of the Hughes Range.

Better Dairying Results Where Sires Like This are Used

Many records have been kept during the last few years to prove the actual value of a purebred bull in dollars and cents.

Some of these actual figures were obtained recently by the Department of Agriculture through an inquiry sent out to more than 500 farmers throughout the United States.

They men gave it as their opinion that in all kinds of farm stock purebreds have an average power more than 40 per cent better than common stock.

It is noteworthy that in the case of dairy cattle, whose productive power can be easily measured, purebreds were considered to be 47.8 per cent better than common cows. The lowest percentage given for any kind of stock was 30.8 per cent.

FLIES DECREASE MILK YIELD

The irritation of cows caused by flies not only lessens the milk produced, but, due to the restlessness of the cows, is a frequent cause of inefficient milking.

The fly spray furnishes a means of relieving the cow for a time at least of the annoyance of the pests.

Four and one-half quarts of coal tar oil, 4 1/2 quarts of fish oil, 3 quarts of whale oil, 1 1/2 quarts of oil of tar and 5 ounce of oil of peppermint. Dissolve the oil of peppermint in water, add the ingredients of the spray and bring the whole up to 30 gallons with lukewarm water.

This quantity will spray 40 cows twice a day for 10 days. The spray should be applied in the morning after milking and after milking in the evening.

RELIABLE SOURCE OF PROFIT Dairy Cow Is More Dependable Than Beef Steer Because Her Products are Steady.

The dairy cow is a more dependable source of profit than the beef steer, because her products are but slightly affected by market fluctuations and because she is a continuous source of income.
