TURKS, ALIES OPEN PARLEY

Kemal's Demands Declared Discussable But Not Acceptable.

Athens—French troops opened fire with machine guns at Turkey who attempted to halt the departure of refugees from Smyrna, according to word received from that city. Details were lacking.

London—The Turkish Nationalists were to lay before the representatives of the Allies at Mudania the terms which they are willing to agree to a suspension of military movements.

Constantinople dispatches say the Kemalists proposed an outline of which has reached the Allied headquarters there, were deemed discussable but not acceptable by a council of the Allied high commissioners, generals and admirals.

The Turkish proposals are said to include formal guarantees concerning the evacuation of Thrace by the Greek army, recognition of the demarcation of Allied troops and transfer of the civil administration to Kemalists in that area.

Constantinople reports say that only military matters were to be taken up at the conference of heads of Allied and Turkish Nationalist commanders at Mudania, the political aspects of the situation being discussed at a later meeting according to Henri Franklin-Bouillon, whose recent trip to Smyrna, where he conferred with Mustafa Kemal, was responsible for the announcement of the conference.

The two important questions to be discussed in detail were the demarcation of a new neutral zone on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles and at land, and the evacuation of Thrace. He was confident an agreement would be reached.

The Turkish cavalry has retired from its advanced positions in the Chanak area, decreasing the danger of conflict there.

The withdrawal, which is described in messages from the Dardanelles as "flight," was supposed here to be in consequence of word received by the Turks that the Mudania conference was in session. The Turks, however, were said still to be well within the neutral zone.

WIND SPREADS FOREST FIRES

New Blazes Springing Up in North Woods Make Headway.

Duluth—Wind of high velocity directed to cause the forest fires in the Kelsey, Sax, Meadowland and Frappay districts of northern Minnesota. Spruce from the forest fire fighting crews is a quarter of a mile away.

This was the report received from forest fire fighters at the office of the state forester in St. Paul.

Serious fires, edging close to Pine river, were reported by A. B. Finley, in charge of the forestry fire fighting. Settlers are moving out of the vicinity of Bayou Deer River and Jenkins Pine near Hamlet.

Other fires causing considerable difficulty are burning near the mouth of Sugar river, in the vicinity of Big Lake, west of Bemar, two fires south of Lench lake, west of Boy river, north of Crosby and north of Deerwood.

There are 17 fires burning in these districts which were caused by a strong wind, almost out of control of the fire fighters. Some of the fires have got out of the log piles and are running in the high lands.

MARTIAL LAW IN ATHENS

Stern Military Measures Are Evicted by Armed Patrols.

Athens—The revolutionary committee still continues all-powerful, and there are daily reports of military martial law, armed patrols marching through the streets.

M. Politis, a Yunist, has telegraphed from Paris refusing the port-folio of foreign minister, but consenting to help the government abroad. At Domodivri, another prominent Yunist, has accepted the ministry of finance.

The term of the political wheel has brought a Greek who is well known in America, and whose mother is an American, into the political position of director of the press bureau and chief censor. This is F. Demostriou, who was a member of the faculty of Massachusetts and who himself was graduated from Harvard class of '98 and for seven years was connected with the American legation here.

The former ministers under arrest are being removed to an island near Piraeus where they will be released in pairs under military supervision until their trials before special courts.

General elections to constitute a new Parliament to succeed that deposed by the revolution will be held November 13.

Seven in Auto Killed Overnight.

St. Paul—Seven persons were killed and one probably fatally injured when a train struck an automobile at the Atlantic street crossing of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha road in St. Paul. Five of the dead were members of one family, including husband, wife and three children. Another child is in a critical condition at the St. Paul city hospital.

The two other victims were men and wife. The state railroad and warehouse commission have begun an investigation into the grade crossing accident.

Pine City Man Takes Own Life

James Dvorak ended his life by shooting himself through the head in front of his home at Pine City, last Monday afternoon about 3:30. The shot was heard by Louis Volzme who was working at his place across the street. He took a look up and saw Dvorak lying on the ground face down. Mr. Volzme notified Sheriff Hawley. The sheriff got the coroner and Dr. Wiseman and rushed to the home, but life was extinct as the unfortunate man had died almost instantly. He used a .32 caliber revolver, the bullet entering the right side of the head, in front of the ear, and lodged in the skull on the left side.

Mr. Dvorak had been very depressed over his health and has suffered from asthma for some time. It was difficult for him to get his breath and he was under considerable pain. It is thought that worry and brooding over his suffering led to the rash deed which ended his early pain.

James Dvorak was born in Bohemia November 26, 1840 and was married to Katherine Blecha there 54 years ago. They came to America Oct. 4, 1888, settling on a farm in Renelle county. They moved to Pine City 9 years ago, and have made their home here since then. One daughter is left, Mrs. Frank Sindelar of Pokokrama town.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Buckton, assisted by a Holy line pastor, yesterday morning, and the remains laid to rest in the local cemetery. The pall bearers were Frank and John Vojta, John Hejny, Peter Wisneck, Adolph Black and J. Herman.

The sympathy of all is extended to the bereaved wife and daughter.

Show Dairy Development

Development of the dairy industry in the northwest from the scrub cow and the old-time dasher churn to the high producing purebred and grades and modern co-operative creameries will be part of the Minnesota Co-operative Creameries Association's exhibit at the National Dairy show, St. Paul, Oct. 7 to 14.

The Association has appropriated $1500 to cover the cost of the exhibit. Of this amount $500 will be distributed as special awards to Minnesota co-operative creamery butter-makers, whose products displayed at the show score more than 95. It is felt that this added money will do much toward making Minnesota to win the grand prize.

The exhibit as a whole will stress the importance of the co-operative creamery in the dairy industry of Minnesota and show the farmers, the dairymen and the consumers the advantages which they should do to make their local creameries outstanding successes.

The show will also be used to show the merit of co-operative creamery-made butter to visitors from the larger cities of the state. The Twin Cities and Duluth is a marketing field that as yet has not been entered extensively by farmer owned companies.

Giants, Yanks Tie 2nd Game

The second game of the world series being played in New York today between the New York Giants and the New York Yankees was tied at the end of the ninth inning on account of darkness. The score at the end of the 10th stood 3 to 3.

Earl Muesel of the Giants took a home run in the first inning and Ward of the Yankees made one in the fourth inning. The Giants scored 3 runs in the first inning and the Yanks scored one in the first, one in the fourth and the score in the ninth.

Bauser and Snyder as the battery for the Giants and Shawkey and Schang for the Yankees. Each pitcher allowed 8 hits.

Supreme Court Affirms Verdict

Two cases of importance to Pine City were recently by our Supreme Court decided. Both of these cases were what is known as "imported" cases that is, cases brought to this state from the outside and away from the state where they originated. The verdicts speak well for the members composing the jury of our county and indicate that they used sound judgment in their deliberations.

The first case was that of Clark vs. the C. B. & Q. Railway in which the widow of Clark sued for damages in the sum of $65,000.00. Clark, an employe of the railroad, was killed at Aurora, Ill., while in the employ of the company. She recovered a verdict of $28,815.00. The company made a motion for a new trial which was denied by our Court and the company appealed to our Supreme Court where the verdict was affirmed. This is the largest verdict in a death claim ever sustained by our Supreme Court.

The second case was that of Herman vs. the Wabash Railway in which Herman, an employe of the company was injured while in its employ at Council Bluffs, Iowa, and asked for damages of $50,000.00 and was awarded $120,000.00, and the company made a motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict. This was denied by the Pine County court and the company appealed to the Supreme Court where it was also denied and the lower court affirmed.

The attorneys for both Plaintiffs were Lewis & Michel from Minneapolis and Otear Sobitka of Pine City.

Booster Trip Next Thursday

All those from Pine County who are going to the National Dairy show next Thursday, will meet at Pine City at 7 a.m. when the boosters will leave for the city. Boosters will be furnished for the cars. There will be a big county hand-out to be hoped there will be a large number of cars in line, so that Pine county will be properly represented at the big show.

BUY PINE CITY BAKERY

J. H. Woehle and Mrs. Bertha G. Chapman have purchased the Pine City Bakery from Louis Lesard and took possession last Tuesday. They will conduct the business along the same lines as it has been operated by the former owner.

It was rumored a short time ago that Mr. Woehle was planning on leaving Pine City, and his many friends will be pleased to learn that he has come into business here. As a member of the council and at present Mayor of Pine City, he has been a hard worker for the best interests of the village and will be a substantial addition to the business men of the town.

Mrs. Chapman, who is associated with Mr. Woehle in the new firm is a sister of Mrs. Wehrle. She came here from Yalton, Wash., about two years ago and has visited here many times since, making many friends who will welcome her as a permanent resident.

Mr. Woehle expects to go on his road for a wholesale house and will move his family to either Princeton or the Twin cities, in the near future.

Lyceum Number Monday Evening

The first number of this year's Lyceum course will be given in the family theatre next Monday evening, October 9th. It consists of a three-act play called "Atonement" given by the Wells company. In addition to the play, there will be musical and instrumental numbers. This is considered one of the best numbers of the course.

The course this year is under the auspices of the library board. Our library is greatly appreciated by folks of the community, who by buying a season ticket, will not only get their money's worth in entertainment, but will be helping a mighty worthy cause. The tickets are only $1.25 for the four big shows. Be sure and buy one.

Prosperity Returning

VIA THE MILK ROUTE

What can be accomplished in just one year in building up the quality of dairy cattle kept on North Dakota farms will be shown in an exhibit from that state at the 1922 National Dairy Exposition. The ten highest producing purebreds and ten highest producing grades in the states, all breeds included, will comprise this distinctive exhibit to show visitors what concerted effort can accomplish when intelligently directed. Following the 1921 dairy show from 1900 to 1850 of Wisconsin's best grades were shipped into North Dakota and these animals furnished the foundation stock for the grades in this special exhibit. North Dakota's prosperity is returning by way of the milk route. This led to the establishing of grade cow classes at this year's dairy show, which have already proved their popularity by the large entries coming in daily.

A young couple have signified their willingness to wed that evening, and Rev. Buckton will perform the ceremony before the largest crowd of guests that has attended a wedding here for many a day. The newlyweds will receive a fine assortment of wedding presents, which the committee has secured and will present that evening.

Following this article is a coupon which anyone may cut out, fill in the name of the young lady you wish to vote for and mail to The Pine POKER office. Each coupon will count for 100 votes. Do this at once. You may vote for any young lady in Pine City or the surrounding country.

NEW RAILWAY SCALE IS MADE

Settlements Cover All Middle West—Forty-Nine Lines Signed.

Chicago—A new agreement maintaining the old rates of pay and rates and working conditions was signed by representatives of approximately 42 railroads and subsidiaries and the Brotherhood of Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors.

The agreement, which will be in effect until October 31, 1923, besides maintaining old wage levels and rates, including time and one-half for overtime after eight hours, was considered by the employes' organizations as favorable to them. Officers committees of the trainmen's organizations on 19 roads entering Chicago had approved the agreement before W. C. Lee, president of the trainmen, and L. E. Shepard, president of the conductors at their signatures.

The agreement included the principal railroads entering Chicago and traversing territory west of the Mississippi river, and with agreements signed with Eastern lines approximately three-fourths of the railroad mileage of the country.

3 IN STATE MAKE $400,000

Income Tax Returns Filed by 154,000 Persons, Paying $15,000,000.

Washington—Thirty persons in Minnesota reported incomes between $100,000 and $500,000 for the calendar year according to a bulletin on statistics of income for that year just issued by the internal revenues bureau. These were the highest incomes reported by individuals in that state.

The total number of returns in Minnesota was 154,118, and the amount of taxes collected was $15,000,000. The report shows that there are 749 persons in Minnesota who have incomes between $15,000 and $25,000, with a rapid diminution in number of those earning larger amounts, with one person reporting an income of $250,000 to $500,000. Four earned between $200,000 and $250,000, seven between $150,000 and $200,000, and 24 between $100,000 and $150,000. These 14 paid the largest aggregate of tax of any class in the state. Their total contribution to government revenues was $1,222,000.

The report shows that there were 1,241 women heads of families with net incomes amounting to $4,255,868. The number of women not heads of families was 1,223 and their total net income was $2,235,612.

In North Dakota the highest income reported was between $100,000 and $150,000 and only two persons reported that amount of income.

DAIRY POINTS

FEED DAIRY COWS PROPERLY

Animal Requires Food in Accordance With Amount of Milk She is Able to Produce.

Too many cows are underfed. A cow weighing 1,000 pounds needs each day, for the maintenance of her body, an amount of food equivalent to that supplied in 8 pounds of clover hay and 20 pounds of good corn silage. She must have this food regardless of whether she produces any milk. Feed used for milk production must be in addition to that required to keep the cow's body. A 1,000-pound cow producing 20 pounds of 4 per cent milk a day, if properly fed, devotes about half of her feed to maintenance and half to milk production. Obviously when a dairyman has gone to the expense of supplying that half of the food required for maintaining the cow's body, it is poor economy to withhold any of the other half, all of which goes to milk production. She must have some grain. Therefore, to feed with the most economy the following rules must be observed, says the University of Missouri College of Agriculture.

1. Feed all the roughage a cow will eat. She will eat more if fed three times a day instead of twice.
2. Feed grain in proportion to the pounds of milk produced.
3. To a Jersey or Guernsey cow feed one pound of grain for each one to three and one-half pounds of milk produced.
4. To a Holstein, Ayrshire, or Short-horn feed one pound of grain for each four to five and one-half pounds of milk produced.

PREVENT SCOURS IN CALVES

One of the Most Common Causes of Illness in Dairy Cows—Feeding in Wooden Troughs.

Calves may get scours from several causes, but one of the common sources is dirty pails and the practice followed of feeding in wooden troughs. A good rule is to keep the calf buckets as clean as the milk pails. The farmer who uses a small pail for feeding calves or who hangs the pail on a post between feedings without washing it will be looking for a cure for calf scours. With warm weather and the fly season at hand extra precaution must be taken in caring for the pails. They should be washed thoroughly after each feed and sterilized either with steam or hot water and then inverted in a clean place until used again.

GIVE CALF SOME ATTENTION

Stunted Heifer Will Never Develop Into Profitable Cow—Provide Shade and Water.

The calf is often very much neglected from the time it is six until it is twelve months of age. A heifer stunted by the lack of suitable food will never develop into as good a cow as one kept growing from birth to maturity. During summer while the young animals are on pasture not much attention is needed, as pasture grass furnishes the best and cheapest food available. Shade and an abundance of fresh water are two essentials which the careful herdman always provides.

HOME-MIXED MEAL FOR CALF

A very good home-mixed calf meal is made up of equal parts by weight of old-process linseed meal, hominy feed, red dog flour or wheat middlings, and high-grade dried blood. In raising calves in the dairy herd at the New Jersey agricultural experiment station, both the home-mixed and commercial calf meals have been used with equally good results.

Fresh Grass for Cows.—How the pasture to be used. Fresh grass, free of weeds, makes it possible for your cows to produce more and better milk.

Is Your Kitchen Infested With Evil Spirits?

It so, a Monarch Range will clear them out. And what's more, they will stay away, for a Monarch is not subject to the many ailments most ranges suffer when they get to be a few years old.

The way to prevent trouble in future years is to build a range RIGHT to start with, so it will stay right.

We sell the Monarch because we know it is built right. If you will come in, we will be glad to show you exactly what we mean. We will show you the only way to build a range for permanent satisfaction is with unbreakable malleable iron and hand treating at every joint. There is only one right way to do anything—and that is the right way to build a range.

You will be delighted at the handsome appearance of the Monarch—and also to know how easy it is to keep it clean and looking the new. The moderate price will surprise you.

The Cash Value of Tractor Power

"TIME is the essence in good farming", writes Frank I. Mann, one of the most successful farmers in the United States. "To judge the value of a tractor on the farm it must be considered in relation to its ability to do farm work at the time to give most profitable return from the crops grown."

Mr. Mann goes on to show that farm work is subject to continual delays from adverse weather conditions, and the one great advantage of the tractor is in enabling the farmer to handle peak loads on time.

In one case cited, tractor power enabled the farmer to sow a good acreage of spring wheat on March 23, which early seeding gave him a return of 44 bushels per acre, thus illustrating the cash value of tractor power.

A tractor to do its work must have petroleum products.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) takes great pride in the fact that its organization is able to supply the needs of these tractors in 10 Middle Western states with petroleum products of superior quality.

No matter how unexpectedly the farmer's peak load may arrive, he will find that this Company has ever ready at his call such gasoline, kerosene and lubricants as he may need.

Owing to the isolation of many farmers and farming districts, this task of supplying petroleum products at dependable intervals is a big and often an exceedingly difficult one.

Nevertheless, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), inspired by its obligation to the community, has always met rural needs for petroleum in a big way. The Company constantly is extending its operations to provide facilities which under all conditions enable it to meet the demands made upon it, and to guarantee a reliable and sustained service even in periods of stress.

Ling, Paul Benda and Willard Norton, were on their way to Pine City about supper time when the car skidded in the loose sand at the edge of the road, near Brown's hill, and turned turtle. Herb was pinned under the car, being caught across the waist. The other occupants were able to lift the car and get him out. He was released just in time as his wind had been cut off, and if he had laid there very long, he would have been suffocated. They righted the car, and Herb drove on into town, where an examination by the doctor found a couple of ribs broken. One foot was badly cut, and it was necessary for Dr. Wiseman to take a few stitches in the injured member. The other members of the car were unharmed, although a couple of them were thrown under the car when it upset.

The ball game between Hinckley and Pine City at that place last Sunday, was a sad affair as a ball game. Hinckley romped away with her game by a score of 19 to 7, or thereabouts. Our boys couldn't seem to get to going, and while they would get men on base time after time, they couldn't score many runs, while the Hinckley bats were hitting them in all directions. Spieker pitched the first two or three innings, and then handed places with Kowalski for a short while. Most of the small crowd that was there, were out to see Ray Hoeller and Bernie Lambert perform. Ray played left field and Bernie was on the receiving end. Ray entertained the fans with his base running, and it sure was amusing to see him steal bases. He had the Hinckley men up in the air and would romp around the bases as though he had the field to himself. The two teams will play a return game at the fair grounds, next Sunday.

and her father of their strange infatuation for Lindsay. A plan to begin to unfold itself for him. It was one which called for expert assistance. He called up Jerry Durand, got him on the telephone, and made an appointment to meet him secretly.

CHAPTER XV

"No Violence."

The ex-pugilist sat back in the chair, chewing an unlighted cigar, his fish eyes fixed on Bronfield. Jerry said decorated the colorless face, soured with a man he hated. Durand had a capacity for silence. He waited for this exquisite from the upper world to tell the business. Clarence discovered that he had an unexpected repugnance to doing this. A fatuous smile of the obligatoriness of class served him for a seal and the thing he was about to do could not be justified even in his loose code of ethics. He examined the ferule of his Malacca cane nervously.

"I've come to you, Mr. Durand, about—about a fellow called Lindsay." The bulbous eyes of the other narrowed. He distrusted on principle all most ambitious reformers. Furthermore, any stranger who mentioned the name of the Arizona became instantly an object of suspicion.

"What about him?" "I understand that you and he are not on friendly terms. I've gathered that from what's been told me. Am I correct?"

Durand thrust out his salient chin. "Say, who the hell are you? What's your name? What do you want?" "I'd rather not tell my name."

"Nothin' doin', no name, no business. That goes." "Very well. My name is Bronfield. I've told the lady Lindsay—gets in my way. I want to eliminate him."

"Are you askin' me to crack him?" "Good G—d, no! I don't want him hurt—physically," cried Bronfield, alarmed.

"What do you want, then?" The tight-lipped mouth and the harsh voice called for a showdown.

"I want him disgraced—disgraced." "Why?" "Some friends of mine are infatuated with him. I want to unmask him in a public way so as to disgust them with him."

"I'm hip. It's a girl." "What girl?" "The tight-lipped mouth and the harsh voice called for a showdown." "I want him disgraced—disgraced." "Why?" "Some friends of mine are infatuated with him. I want to unmask him in a public way so as to disgust them with him."

and we'll get him right." "Oh, of course. My violence of course." "Was there a covert but derisive look concealed in that smugly assented Bronfield did not know, but he looked away with him an unease that disturbed his sleep that night.

Before the chairman was out of the hotel, Jerry was snapping instructions at one of his satellites.

"That'll follow. Find where he goes, who he's with, get his number on all about him. See if he's looked up with Lindsay. And how? Hop to it. Did you get a slant at him as he went out?"

"Sure I did. He's my meat." The trap was sprung.

Jerry stood at the window, still silently chewing his unlighted cigar, and watched his late visitor and the trailer look themselves in the hurrying crowds.

"White-livered snip. No violence, Mr. Durand! Hunt different here." An evil grin broke through on the thin-lined, cruel face.

When Bronfield suggested to Clay with a touch of stiffness that he would like to show him a side of New York, the man probably still unfamiliar to him, the cattlemen felt a surprise he carefully concealed. He guessed that this was a belated attempt on the part of Miss Whitford's fate to overcome the palpable dislike Clay had for her friend. If so, the line that inspired the offer was a creditable one. Lindsay had no desire to take in any of the phlegm spots of the city with Bronfield. Nonetheless, he had to be outdone in generosity by a successful rival. Promptly and heartily he accepted the invitation. If he had known that a note and a card from Jerry Durand lay in the vest pocket of his cynical host while he was holding out his hand, it is probable that the Arizona would have said, "No, thank you, kind sir."

The note mentioned no names. It said, "Wednesday, at Madocks, 11 p. m. Show this card."

And to Madocks, on Wednesday, on his way something earlier than 11, the New Yorker led his guest after a call at one or two clubs.

Even from the outside the place had a dilapidated look that surprised Lindsay. The bell was of that brand you keep pulling till you discover it is out of order. Decayed gentility marked the neighborhood, though the blank front of the houses looked impressively respectable.

As a feeble exemplum of its real reason for being, Madocks's called itself the "Omnium club." But when Clay could not ascertain the door-keeper was at the club when he entered he guessed at once it was a gambling house.

From behind a grating the man peered at them doubtfully. Bronfield showed a card, and after some hesitating process, which his impudently passed the examination. Toward Clay the doorkeeper jerked his head inquiringly.

"He's all right," the clubman vouchered.

Again there was a suspicious and leery scrutiny.

The door opened far enough to let them slide into a scantily furnished hall. On the wall was another guard, a heavy, iron-looking fellow who was no doubt the "checker-out." He, too, looked them over closely, but after a glance at the card drew aside to let them pass.

Through a door near the head of the stairs they moved into a large room, evidently made from several smaller ones with the partitions torn down and the ceilings pillared at intervals.

Clay had read about the maintenance of Cardella's in the old days, and he was surprised that one so fastidious as Bronfield should patronize a place so dingy and so rough as this. At the end of the room was a marble mantelpiece above which there was a defaced, gilt-frame mirror. The chandeliers, the chairs, the wallpaper, all suggested the same note of one-time elegance worn to shabbiness.

A game of Klondike was going. There were two roulette wheels, a faro table and a number of poker players. The cold eyes of a sleek, slippery man sliding cards out of a faro-box, and the robbish curiosity. Among the suckers who came to this den of thieves to be robbed were none of Clay's stamp. Lindsay watched the white, dexterous hands of the dealer with an honest distaste. All along the border from Durand to Calceho he had seen but such soft, skilled fingers fleeing those who tolled. He knew the bloodless, impassive face of the dealer with a touch of uneasiness. "What's your name?" "Jerry." "What do you want?" "I want to see you."

"How much will you need?" "A couple hundred to start with. More before I've finished. I've got to save the cops."

Bronfield had prepared for this contingency. He counted out a thousand dollars in bills of large denominations. "Fit that figure in two. Understand. How not to be hurt. I want, have any rough work?"

"Leave that to me." "And you've got to arrange it so that when the house is raided I escape without being known?"

"Fit do that, too. Leave your address and I'll send you up later to visit you as to the scheme when I get one fixed up."

On a sheet torn from his memorandum book Bronfield wrote the name of the club which he was frequenting. "Don't forget the newspapers. I want them to get the story," said the clubman, rising.

"Fit see they cover it?" Bronfield, unassuming a glove onto his long fingers, added another word of caution. "Don't slip up on this thing. Lindsay's a long way from being a soft mark."

"Don't let me down," mapped Durand viciously. "There'll be no slip-up this time if you do your best. We'll see but two small holes with narrow shelves at the bottom. Back of that was the paraphernalia of the pool-room, another device to separate customers from their money by playing the "numbers."

As Clay looked around it struck him that the person of this gambling den's patrons was a singularly depressing one. All told, there were not a dozen respectable-looking people in the room. Most of those present were derelicts of life, the failures of a great city washed up by the tide. Some were pallid, haggard wretches clinging to the vestiges of a prosperity that had once been theirs. Others were hardened raffishness from the underworld. Not a few bore the marks of the drug viciation. All of those playing had a manner of furtive suspicion. They knew that they staked their money the house would turn them. Yet they played.

Bronfield bought a small stack of chips at the roulette table. "Won't you take a whirl at the wheel?" he invited.

"Thanks, no. I believe not," his guest answered.

The westerner was a bit disgraced at his host's lack of discrimination. "Does he think I'm a soft mark, too?" he wondered. "If this is what he calls me, I've had more than enough already."
