Considerable Criticism on Steel Shaft Markings

It appears as if the United States Golf association has left itself open to considerable criticism for the standard it has taken with regard to the steel shaft.

Football "should be shoved back in its place," says the leading editorial in the Arctic, monthly literary magazine at the University of Chicago.

The editorial declares that collegiate gridiron football has reached a stage of abnormality when "thousands of dollars are spent in preparation in the two and one-half month period devoted to football."

George W. Greenwood, writing in the Golf Illustrated, tells of a new invention in England which seems difficult enough to provide much of the tantalizing elements of the out-of-door game.

It is called "target" and is not played with a shotgun. On a set 50 feet high are placed four small targets, A, B, C and D.

A and B are the marks for wooden clubs and C and D for irons. To hit the target constitutes a bull and great usually left the procession, and the target is the only way to the business heart of every town visited.

"Speed-Trap Justice" Killed by Car

CHICAGO—Justice of the Peace Fred Belsawanger of Niles, Ill., was known to thousands of motorists as the "Speed-Trap Justice."

Most motorists know what that implies. Well, Justice Belsawanger was just that. He was the terror of speeders and nonbelievers alike—all motorists in the trap looked alike to him.

The old justice, past sixty, was almost instantly killed as he walked toward his home in Niles, just west of Chicago, by a speeding motorist who did not stop.

Belsawanger's death was seen by Fred Braid, who lives on the Milwaukee road. He said the old man was struck from behind by a black touring car that sped on. He was dressed 40 feet.

Sergeant Gilbert Kelling and Officers McKenna and Adams of county highway police started search for a car with a broken windshield and a broken left lamp.

Tragedy of Inane Mother and Daughter

ANKAREE, ILL.—Here is a tragedy—a tragedy of a woman, mother and daughter, who can clasp hands, who can look into each other's eyes, who can speak to each other and be heard, and yet cannot find each other.

Each has sought the other through years of heartache and despair, and now they have met, but without recognition. The mind and the heart of each still grope in vain.

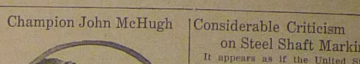

Both are patients at the Kankakee insane asylum. One is Ruth Tieketa, nineteen, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pickers, 277 East Central boulevard, Chicago. A few years ago she learned she had a real mother, somewhere in a distant land.

She was a hunt for her mother—a persistent search that at last became an obsession. Then, her mind weakened by the strain of long and fruitless search, she became deranged.

The other is Mrs. Maryanne Hartington Leech, a melancholic case, going away, say the doctors, because Vacuum Cleaner Saves Time and Labor.

Save labor in the weekly house cleaning by having a definite plan. The United States Department of Agriculture says. When this is done, the same work will not need to be repeated.

For example, when rooms near together are to be cleaned on the same day, it is often easiest to get all of them ready, then clean them all, and finally put them all in order.

Dust Small Things First. Small pictures and bric-a-brac should first be dusted. If not removed from the room entirely they should be placed in a pile and covered.

Furniture, mirrors, and pictures should be dusted and covered with cloths. Draperies and portieres should be taken down or pinned up.

Use of Vacuum Cleaner. When a room is cleaned with a vacuum cleaner, the order of proceeding is different. The room is first dusted, then the vacuum cleaner is used on upholstery, hangings, walls, and carpets or rugs, and finally the windows if necessary.

The covers may then be taken from pictures and furniture. They should be shaken out of doors if possible. Then the room and furniture should be dusted thoroughly beginning at the top of the room and working down.

Use of Vacuum Cleaner. When a room is cleaned with a vacuum cleaner, the order of proceeding is different. The room is first dusted, then the vacuum cleaner is used on upholstery, hangings, walls, and carpets or rugs, and finally the windows if necessary.

Woman Heads Home Economics Bureau

Dr. Louise Stanley is recipient of Unusual Honor.

For the first time in the history of the United States Department of Agriculture a woman, Dr. Louise Stanley, has been recently made chief of a bureau—the newly created bureau of home economics.

The desirability of appointing a woman to this position will be appreciated when it is understood that the work of the Department of Agriculture is intended to serve the needs of the whole farm family in agriculture and home economics.

While many of its bureaus give their attention to matters which chiefly concern the farmer, such as crops, live stock, soil conditions, insect pests, or general advantage of the whole family, and that what a mother does should be recognized and appreciated. At the same time, with more information about household management, the proper feeding of the family, the best utensils and equipment to buy or the most desirable materials for clothing, every mother can render better service to her family with less effort on her own part.

To supply information on all these questions and to make investigations which will lead to continued improvement in household methods, the new bureau of home economics was established.

Printed leaflets, known as "Farmers' Bulletins" and dealing with a great many topics of interest to housewives, may be had free upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture. Those on food subjects contain good recipes which have been thoroughly tested.

For the present year the new bureau of home economics will continue work already begun in nutrition, food preparation and other household problems. After next July scientific studies will be made to learn how the family income should be spent, what woman's work in the home is actually worth, what wages were paid, how to select clothing and dress materials to best advantage, how to choose the most nourishing foods, how much housing ought to cost, the best kind of equipment to buy, such as furnaces, hot water heaters, stoves, refrigerators, the best plan for a kitchen. As these studies are completed information relating to them will be circulated in newspapers and magazines and in the form of farmers' bulletins.

Cook Rabbits Like Chicken

Those Raised Especially for Market Are Apt to Be More Tender Than Wild Ones.

Rabbits may be served in any way chicken is liked. Fried, broiled, steamed, baked, in a casserole, in pie, croquettes, or hash. While wild rabbits are often roasted, those especially raised for the market are apt to be more tender and will cook in less time.

The bureau of home economics, United States Department of Agriculture, recommends the following way of preparing an excellent casserole of rabbit: Clean and disjoint the rabbit into as many pieces as desired. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Fry in a delicate brown, preferably in sausage or lardon fat, though any clean cooking fat may be used. When cooking is done, put the pieces in a casserole and pour over them a gravy made from four tablespoons of fat, four cups of stock or boiling water, and seasoned well with salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. If the casserole is prepared early in the day it may be reheated in the oven for dinner. It should be boiled in the casserole for half an hour to an hour, or until the meat is very tender.

When boiling a haddock fasten the lead to the tail, and add only sufficient water to cover, and boil slowly till cooked.

When blanching handkerchiefs that have become soiled, use a little cream of tartar in the rinsing water, and they will come out as white as snow.

Sticking the points of the scissors into a cork bag will prevent tearing your bag and cutting your fingers.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Don't have the stove soot. It is necessary to cook the food, and this is a waste of fuel.

A $50,000,000 Loan

There has been presented to Congress a plan for agricultural relief in the Northwest that has been unanimously endorsed by leading farmers, agricultural experts and business men as the soundest and most far-reaching relief measure yet proposed.

Promulgated originally by John Lea Coulter, President of the North Dakota Agricultural College, it has been adopted as equally applicable and necessary in Minnesota, South Dakota and Montana.

The enhanced plan provides a $50,000,000 revolving livestock loan fund to be advanced by the government.

Loans up to $1,000 each to farmers and tenants and available to nearby farmers irrespective of present indebtedness.

The money to be used for the purchase of dairy and beef cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry.

Livestock so purchased and the increase therefrom to be collateral for the loans.

Loans to be made for three purposes:

1. To secure fourteenth herds of livestock for farmers who have none.
2. To replace scrub stock with higher grade animals that will return a profit.
3. To enlarge herds containing only a few good animals, enabling farmers to produce milk or meat poultry and eggs for the market.

Loans to be made to those who want and who are competent to diversify, but who are unable to finance the change.

Loans to be restricted to farmers who can give satisfactory evidence of their ability to provide adequate feed and shelter for livestock.

Rate of interest not to exceed 6 per cent. Loans to run from three to five years.

The plan will enable thousands of farmers who are producing food for their own families to save up to $800 annually over their present grocery bills.

Others will be enabled to produce milk, meat and other products for the market in addition to their own family requirements, thus increasing their incomes.

The livestock loan plan offers permanent relief and is the cheapest and most effective way out.

It will advance diversified farming, so essential to the prosperity of the Northwest, by five or ten years.

The plan provides a commission composed of the secretaries of agriculture, commerce and treasury to administer the loan.

Local advisory committees will pass on applications.

County agricultural agents or other agricultural officers will pass on stock to be purchased before loans are made and under this plan borrowers must report to the county agents every sixty days on the condition of the stock. This will bring about a close relationship of farmers with the agricultural colleges and other authorities.

The agents and colleges will show farmers how to provide adequate shelter where required at a low cost.

No gift is asked; simply a loan. Security is provided for the loan.

This plan does not interfere with any of the other relief measures which have been proposed.

President Coolidge's message to Congress recommended action similar to that embodied in this plan.

Official Washington has endorsed it as both practicable and desirable. The only thing that can prevent its adoption is inertia.

Farmers and business favoring the bill should send petitions and resolutions to their congressmen and senators today.

Meetings of farmers and business groups should be called to give resolutions adopted and sent immediately to Washington.

Last Rites for Ida Dosey

Miss Ida Dosey passed away at the home of her father, Julius Dosey, at Pine City last Saturday. Miss Dosey suffered a stroke about five years ago, from which she practically recovered and was in good health until about a year ago, when she suffered a second stroke. She was confined to a twin city hospital for some time and after her return home last spring, she was almost regaining her strength. About December 1st her condition became much worse and she had been confined to bed most of the time since then. Her condition became critical a short time ago when she suffered a third stroke.

Funeral services were held from the Presbyterian church last Monday afternoon at two o'clock and the remains were laid to rest beside those of her mother and brother in the Northwood cemetery. Rev. H. B. Birchwood, pastor of the Presbyterian church here, officiated. The pall bearers were Robert Wilcox M. Hurley, J. J. Madden, W. H. Gottry, R. P. Allen and N. Perkins.

Ida Dosey was born in Pine City September 24, 1876 and spent her life at the home of her father here. She was 47 years of age when she died. She was a member of the Presbyterian church, the Pythian Sister and Degree of Honor lodges.

She leaves her father, two brothers and four sisters—E. H. Dosey of Farmington and William of California, Mrs. Jessen of Ironwood, Mich., Esther of Virginia, Anna of Duluth and Julia of Pine City. All the family were here for the funeral with the exception of Wm. Dosey.

Out of town relatives and friends here for the funeral were Mrs. Drees and daughter Anna of St. Paul, Henry Dosey and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rohlf and Hans Rohlf, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grote.

No word in Pine City was more loved or held in higher esteem by friends than for their kind sympathy during their recent bereavement.

Julius Dosey and family.

Henry Broz Dies Suddenly

Funeral services were held by Father Leo for Henry Broz, of the Monday morning at ten o'clock, and the body was laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery at Pine City. The pall bearers were Clarence Swick, John and Adolph Plesel, Frank Mika, Charles Minar, and John Boudick. Mrs. Joe Broz, living southeast of town. He passed away at the home of his parents last Saturday January 12th at 1 a.m. after an illness of less than a week. He was taken sick with flu pneumonia the Monday previous and his condition grew rapidly worse, with complications setting in, and the end came very suddenly. He was unconscious 3 days before his death. A nurse was brought here from Minneapolis and everything possible was done to save his life, but to no avail. Up to the time of his illness last week he had never been sick a day in his life and was a fine, healthy, robust young man.

The deceased was born in Pine City December 15th, 1908, and was 15 years and 17 days of age. He had spent his life in this community and attended the school in district No. 28, southeast of town, of which Miss Carmen Kelly is teacher. He had a host of friends among the young folks who were shocked to hear of his death and join with the bereaved relatives.

Besides his parents, he leaves 2 brothers and 3 sisters, George, Edward, Clara, Lillian and Caroline. They were all home for the funeral except Miss Clara who is confined to a St. Paul hospital with a severe attack of Scarlet fever and has not been informed of her brother's death, owing to her critical condition.

Pinnacle Conducts Contest

A great many weighty questions have long puzzled both teachers and students of P. C. H. S. but, as opinions differ greatly, the Pinnacle Staff has attempted to settle all inquiries for the rest of the year, at least. On Tuesday, December 19, the votes were cast upon such short notice that class politics were impossible. For this reason the result will, in all probability, be more true. Meanwhile, the students have patiently awaited the announcement of the results.

The most desirable place, that of the most popular person in high school, was given to Galen Weinberger by a very large majority, while Dorothy Carlson and Stacie Polivka took second and third places.

Alice Petschel won the enviable position of the most popular girl with Dorothy Carlson and Grace Halstrom following as a close second and third. One half the student body voted Galen Weinberger to be the most popular boy; the rest of the votes were divided between Cecil Blanchard, Merrill Daniels, and several others.

Perhaps the most debated questions of all were those concerning the prettiest girl and the most handsome boy. The high school beauty is Ella Selman, who received one more vote than Grace Halstrom. Gladys Smith got third honors. It seems that we have beauties of every variety in P. C. H. S. far more than half the girls in school received some votes.

The most handsome boy did not win by so close a contest as did the prettiest girl. Merrill Daniels, Galen Weinberger, Lester Hagen won first, second and third respectively.

Another very close contest came between Galen Weinberger and Stacie Polivka for the most admirable character. Galen took first place by one vote more than Stacie.

Stacie Polivka, of the perpetual smile and gentle voice, was voted to have the best disposition. Royal Hoefler and Florence Erickson tied for second place.

For wit and humor Eddie Erhart, Joe Engel and Ben Cummings take first, second and third places. In this case, too, there seems to be quite a difference of opinion.

Grace Halstrom and Gladys Barnum so impressed the assembly with their airy, graceful steps that they received first and second honors for the best carriage.

P. C. H. S. seems to have such neat students that a great variety of people received votes. Dorothy Carlson and Grace Halstrom tied for first place, Virginia Hot and Lester Hagen are second and third—The Pinnacle.

..International! Engines..

The outstanding feature of the International line of engines that favorably impresses practical farmers is that these engines are made to meet farm conditions. For instance, the enclosed crank case protects the working parts from dust and dirt. This is important because many times it is necessary to place the engine where it will become covered with dust or is exposed. With the enclosed crank case the working parts are not subjected to unnecessary wear caused by the accumulation of dust, dirt, grit, etc. Owners of International engines appreciate the enclosed crank case because it adds to the life and service of their engine. There is also the additional feature of cleanliness which pleases the housewife because there is not the throwing of grease and oil which splatters the floors and spots the walls. There is also the safety feature, especially where there are children.

VETERINARIANS PLAN FOR ST. PAUL MEETING

Leading Scientists of the Country Will Address Association Members.

PUREBRED SOWS NEVER A BETTER INVESTMENT

This Is Good Time to Change From Grades, Says E. F. Ferrin.

Some of the country's leading scientists in veterinary medicine have accepted invitations to speak at the 27th annual meeting of the Minnesota State Veterinary Medical Association, which will be held in St. Paul January 19.

" hog raisers who have been using grade sows to produce pork can find no better time than the present to replace part of them with purebreds," says E. F. Ferrin, director of the University of Minnesota's Division of Animal Industry.

Dr. V. A. Moore, dean of the veterinary department at Cornell University, will speak at the only evening session, Wednesday, January 19, on "Important Facts to be Carefully Considered in the Control of Tuberculosis." Dr. Moore has long been a foremost figure in the profession.

Mr. Ferrin believes there is very little chance of overproduction of pork will occur in 1924 as it did in 1923. "Apparently pork will soon again take its place as the biggest money crop of the United States," he says. "Production has a habit of operating in cycles. In 1923 more pigs were farrowed than the demand for pork justified. Consequently the corn-hog ratio was unfavorable to the producer. Considerable contraction is now evident in the plans for farrowings in 1924. Many dry sows still young enough to be efficient mothers have gone to market and thousands of pregnant sows have journeyed with them."

For all that Joan Prosper tied the house and went across the country, now forming a good habit, she was now wandering through a drift snow walking on spring soil, unaware of the soft spring coming beneath her feet in his house. He suffered and he resented his suffering, and he would have killed his heart if he could. He was so tired, so that for very exhaustion his brain had stopped its tormenting work. He lies in a bed, his head against his pillow, his eyes closed, but he is not sleeping. He is not sleeping, he is not sleeping, he is not sleeping.

"With purebred sows selling at the figures and the superiority of the purebreds and the farrowing of the average number of sows," Mr. Ferrin says that tests and experiments have repeatedly demonstrated that a good purebred sow is a more economical pork machine than a grade sow of average quality. At least as many pigs per litter, and in most cases will have more pigs at weaning time than a grade sow of average quality. Large litters that are behind the purebred," he says.

DR. W. A. MOORE,
Dean of the New York State Veterinary College, Cornell University, who will address Minnesota veterinarians at their annual association meeting in St. Paul January 16 and 17.

MOTHER! GIVE SICK CHILD "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

Harmless Laxative for a Bilious, Constipated Baby or Child.

Joan had made her plans. She would tell her mother, but she would not tell her father. She would tell her mother, but she would not tell her father. She would tell her mother, but she would not tell her father. She would tell her mother, but she would not tell her father.

"Purebred pigs come from larger ancestors, they are able to make rapid growth and will finish for market at younger ages than grades or scrubs. The purebred sow is larger, she weighs more pounds of pork when she eventually goes to market. The Iowa Experiment Station after six years of work finds that big type sows raised larger litters of pigs than either medium or small type sows. The average number of pigs per litter was 12.5 for the big type sows, 9.8 for medium type sows and 8.4 for small type sows. It should be mentioned that the big type sows were not as rangy or leggy as the more recent so-called 'extreme' type sows. The big type sows gained more in weight per day and made one hundred pounds gain on less feed per pig than either medium or small type sows. These figures were reported last November by the Iowa station in its Studies of Swine Types."

Joan had made her plans. She would tell her mother, but she would not tell her father. She would tell her mother, but she would not tell her father. She would tell her mother, but she would not tell her father. She would tell her mother, but she would not tell her father.

Dairy Aims for 1924.

Some dairy aims worth consideration in 1924 are thus listed by E. A. Hanson of University of Minnesota, who is the secretary of the following association work in Minnesota:

- Keep better cows and alfalfa hay.
- Feed more clover and alfalfa hay.
- Feed liberally of a good mixture which is largely home grown.
- Feed either soybean meal or linseed meal for the high producing cows.
- Build a silo to save all of the corn fodder.
- Grow lots of clover and alfalfa.

COWS RELISH SOYBEAN HAY IN THEIR RATIORS

Most Economical Way to Feed This Forage Plant, Says Hodgson.

Experiments at the Waseca station of the university have shown that soybean hay is relished more by the dairy herd than alfalfa or green clover. Robert Hodgson, superintendent of the station, Mr. Hodgson had more than 30 acres of soybeans and he has been very successful in his work. He has been very successful in his work. He has been very successful in his work.

"There's about nothing about everything, isn't there?—but there—Mr. Gael? Why, there's books about love and sickness and about cattle and what-not, about women and men and what-not, she was thinking the knowledge of her case, but at last she pressed her lips together and opened the book. She felt a reading, growing anxiety, possessed her face; she sat down on the nearest chair, she turned page after page. Suddenly she gave him a look of anger.

Black and White in Ladies' Apparel

The disappearing waistline characterizes the collections of mid-season dresses that Paris dressmakers have prepared for their private trade. There are no waistlines—no belts and no ornamentation of any kind to mark the dividing line. At first sight, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune, these extremely straight dresses appeared to be trying, but tested on many types of figures they have been found generally becoming.

This form is particularly well adapted to the street dress coat with heavy bands of fur on the edge of the skirt to weight it. It also adapts itself to the sport style dress, where one robe secularity slips on over another. Handsomely embroidered and appliqued evening dresses frequently have no waistline. In fact, many of the newest models now recall the famous tube dress of pre-war days launched by Paul Poiret and the dominating factor in the fashions of 1911-12.

The Parisienne evinces great interest in black and white at the present time. Many of the loveliest winter dresses have a touch of ermine as a tulle from their sombre black. It is also quite the fashion to use the lighter fish at the neck and sleeves, which may be of fine lace, a fold of white georgette crepe or of white organdy. Many black dresses that are bordered with fur, notably with caracul or broadtail, have inside finish of white ingetie; that is to say, real lace, hand embroidery, hand-drawn organdy or handkerchief linen.

Touches of White on Black. Floating panels of white are often half concealed under dresses which have overlapping fronts. Tiny plippings of white and inside fabrics are also much noted on black dresses.

White lids fair to be a big winter vogue at the Southern courts. Many of the new tailored suits are in white velours de laine and white broadcloth trimmed with brown or black fur. Viennese has a charming coat, prepared for Monte Carlo, in which the entire upper part is of seashell and the skirt and lower half of the bell sleeves are of white broadcloth.

Madeline et Madeline show a lovely new white suit in their most recent collection. This suit is trimmed with lapin ombre, a beautiful new finish in rabbit fur which gives it an appearance of dark sable. Across the front of the jacket is a deep border of this dark brown fur. It forms a sort of triangle shape just where the front laps. This house has another white coat and fur combination in the form of a full-length coat of broadcloth. The fur is introduced in the form of a band of lapin ombre on the long scarf of white broadcloth, which passes around the neck and falls the full length of the coat back and front.

White satin evening dresses are being shown with borders and bands of black fur. White crepe de chine and white tulle are the fabrics chosen for the new dresses of black in the form of inside panels or linings to scarf-like crevasses which twist about the neck.

One of Cherutti's Pantalette Dresses Developed From Green and Silver Brocade. The Pantallettes Are of Bright Cerise Taffeta.

White velvet evening dresses are considered in jet and white, in imitation of onyx and almandine.

The pure white shoe is rarely even seen, but black and white combinations are much liked. White slipper shoes with onyx buckles, giving the effect of black and white in evening shoes.

But black and white by no means monopolize the stage. Blue is being taken up strongly in Paris. After almost a surfeit of beige and brown, blue comes as an interesting relief. Callot and Chanel are responsible for the introduction of this color. Both of these important makers have used considerable blue in their recent collections. Women formerly fond of blue and who have been deprived of the pleasure of watching their eyes through fashion's deuce in favor of black or brown have joyfully gone back to wearing blue.

A Dainty Evening Gown. Green-colored lace over rich yellow satin makes an exquisite evening gown. The dress is enhanced with immense bows of wide salmon pink tulle ribbon on each hip of the wide bouffant skirt.

Simple and Useful Gift. Suitable for a simple gift is a guest robe lounge that holds all the necessary things—slippers and towels. The new ones come in several colors.

Blue satin or Crepe de Chine. Chanel is making afternoon dresses in a lovely shade of medium blue satin or crepe de chine, and at the same time is lining fur coats to match in the same celestial shade. Callot has a great many evening dresses in blue. Callot also uses blue and brocote reports great success in this color.

Paris manufacturers of dress accessories, such as mitts, hairbrush and hair combs, are selling blue fans and corsage ornaments and blue head orders for evening slippers. The deep blue. Many blue kid slippers and low cut shoes are being worn on the street. The navy blue serge suit is coming back into its own.

Another color favorite is old-fashioned flesh pink. Callot, Viennot, and Boudaier, Paquin and Brocote are showing lovely new evening dresses in flesh pink velvet and satin. Many of these are embroidered in brilliant in widely scattered all-over patterns.

Callot also embroiders flesh pink in gold. These are many lovely new dresses developed in flesh pink chiffon and sheer lace dyed to match. One has always associated the idea of pale pink with young girls, but maidens have taken it up now and it is the next favorite to pure white.

Metal cloths are again very popular and many of the most elaborate evening dresses are being developed in metal, usually in the hammered pattern in preference to the ordinary brocade. The plain or fulcrant or brilliant surface metal cloths are also in high favor. The hammered metal cloths are often in patterns from the Renaissance, appearing almost like the work of goldsmiths, imitating as they do the effect of response and hammered metals. Gold and silver embroideries on lace and nets are again noted as well as the all-metal laces.

Cloche Hat Holds Popularity. The cloche hat is perennial in Paris. Nothing yet has been found to displace it in popularity. Everybody professed that it could not last and yet it seems more in favor than ever. Women with shingled hair, of which there are a multitude in Paris, find that the cloche is the only form that can be comfortably worn. The straight brim hat or the upturned brim is hideous with the shingled head. One wonders if a woman will ever go back to long hair again.

It seems as if every woman were shingled nowadays, the grandmother, mother and daughter, ranging from a girl to seventy-five. More conservative women, who care not because of their husband's or some other male's prejudice to crop the hair, are buying shingled wigs. It is a perfect madness in Paris. The cloche hat must survive as long as the shingled head remains the fashion.

Practically every actress in Paris has her hair cut. Almost every role is played with the shingled head. The leading role in "Carmen" in "Loulou" and in all the modern dramas is interpreted by bobbed-hair actresses. In fact, the whole idea of feminine beauty seems to have changed. A woman glories now in the shingled head rather than in long hair.

Lavinia is showing, in addition to her many clothes, hats that are frankly of Oriental turbans. Others adorn with curious brims which turn up look almost like Egyptian and Hindu-Chinese ornaments which adorn the sacred temples. Evidently Lavinia has taken her military inspiration from this source.

For School Wear. Woven velours frocks for girls of college and high school age are being made in an effective blending of plain color and plaid. The skirt, for example, will be dark green and the blouse a novelty plaid in green, red and orange.

Fancy Scarves. Striped scarves of wool or silk are an attractive addition to the sport suit. They add a note of gay color and give an added protection just where it is appreciated.

Cottage Sets of Table Ware. Stores show delightful sets of table ware—either dinner or breakfast. Such a set would make a most acceptable wedding present. The shapes and colors of these are unusually good.

Opossum That Killed Zoo Birds Is Caught

New York—A big opossum which had wandered down the Hudson valley last year was trapped at the Bronx zoo, but not until it had killed two or three wild turkeys, two peacocks and several pheasants.

The heaviest slaughter of fine fowl in the history of the zoo has occurred recently and nearly all employees had been at work attempting to track the killer.

Gray hair near the slaughtered turkey caused the employees to seek a raccoon. They put dogs on the scent several times after fine birds had been slaughtered, but the dogs soon lost the trail among the thousand conflicting animal scents of the zoo. The manner in which several pheasants were killed caused wonder to be suspected. Wounds and rascals occasionally wandered down from the north and destroyed the birds, but nothing ever had committed ravages like the recent ones.
