

SIX ARE KILLED IN HERRIN WAR

Factions Arrive as State Troops Arrive in Mining Town to Preserve Order.

Herrin, Ill.—Thirty-two warrants charging murder in the first degree were issued against alleged participants in the pistol battle between alleged Ka Klux Klansman and anti-klansmen.

With state militia on guard following the bloody riot between klansmen and anti-klansmen, in which six were killed and seven injured, one perhaps fatally, Herrin views a "business as usual" look.

Nine men, all alleged members of the Ka Klux Klan, arrested in connection with the riot, were taken to the Saline county jail at Harrisburg. The jail immediately was surrounded by a force of deputy sheriffs to guard the prisoners.

Although Herrin presents a tranquil outward appearance, the riot was believed to be the usual calm before the storm, but it almost certainly is so.

It was probably due only to the presence of troopers with menacing bayonets and hand grenades which another outbreak was averted.

Considerable industry was manifested in a parade of members of the 13th Illinois Infantry through the streets of Herrin. Platoon from several rifle companies marched with fixed bayonets. Soldiers from the headquarters company had been supplied with hand grenades, which were carried to benches suspended from their belts.

Many Auto Accidents

Many automobile accidents occurred near Pine City last Saturday afternoon and it was a fearful day for the week here over at the Pine County State Fair.

John Peterson and George Eylon were there to look in the cars when a man and a woman came along in a Ford. The driver was watching the woman's car and in some mysterious manner his car upset into the middle of the road, rolling over and injured Eylon by a few feet. The woman was struck under the eye and neck and released and rushed to Dr. Wagoner.

Miss Mrs. Peterson and Mr. Eylon were getting the first car that was driven by a few feet. The woman was struck under the eye and neck and released and rushed to Dr. Wagoner.

Pine County Fair September 8-10

The management of the Pine county fair has looked at additional stellar attraction that will make this year's program the best to be offered by any fair in this section of the state.

This new feature to be booked is a balloon ascension by Dave Devill Reynolds of Bersleville, Illinois, who is in Minnesota playing some of the larger fairs in the southern part of the state. Mr. Reynolds will make a balloon ascension on both Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon with a double parachute drop each day.

Reports from other fairs where the flying circus has shown state they have a thrilling show. Their show consists of three acts. The pilot loops the loop, does spirals and other thrilling stunts with the plane.

This gives the public two parachute drops each day, one from the plane and one from the balloon.

In addition to the flying circus and the balloon ascension each day there will be two horse races, an automobile race, four big platform sets and a baseball game each day.

Four farm clubs will compete in trot or pace, and some of them are pretty fast. Eight jumpers have been entered in the running race.

This year's show will probably exceed it in the quality of stock shown. Practically every lot of space has already been reserved for the stock show.

Hugo Tesch breaks arm. An accident which might easily have resulted in the death of two men was taken to her home in Kufe Lake township—Kenabe County.

Three cars were closely in line, just South of the Snabo River bridge, opposite the E. A. Hall place, and one of them stopped; the second drove up beside the first, but on observing the approach of a third car, occupied by Hugo Tesch and Miss Rena Sundin, pulled ahead to give him room, but did not have time to get far enough ahead to avoid a crash.

Straight Outline Paris Fall Mode

Opinions have been the chief attraction in Paris for the past few weeks. At the openings, says a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, an observer, perhaps annoyed at a slight waistline on a Lavinia model, would immediately broadcast the return of the directorate waist—another will be so impressed by a garishly-colored Patou frock that she will announce, with some show of positiveness, that this dress will dominate the fall styles. The general confusion is emphasized by the deliberate efforts of professional propagandists, each of whom persistently assured to anxious world that no new frock can be as smart unless it exploits some perhaps unheard-of or long-defunct accessory.

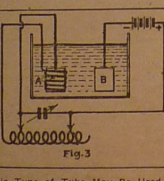

The Action is Different for Amplifier Circuit.

Two circuits for using the tube as an amplifier are given. The first is for a simple two-electrode "tube" circuit, and the second is for a more elaborate circuit using a vacuum tube and a coil. The action is different for amplifier circuit, and the results obtained through these developments are very interesting.

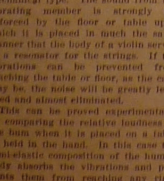

Glass U Tube Apparatus for Making the Test.

is a compound which, when placed in a liquid, absorbs that liquid, similar to sponge, and the particles of the gold are held in suspension by the liquid. When the liquid is driven off from the coil, the particles are deposited on the coil, and the action of two things will occur—the coil will become a hard, solid mass incapable of absorbing a liquid, or will become a solid again capable of absorbing a liquid.

Vernier Potentiometer Will Give Satisfaction

When using a potentiometer in a radio frequency circuit, great difficulty is sometimes experienced in bringing in weak stations without having the constant movement of the particles in the liquid. This movement is given two explanations. One is that each particle of the colloid has a charge of electricity and each particle is charged with the positive polarity. The second theory is that the liquid molecules are constantly striking the colloid particles.

This Type of Tube May Be Used as an Oscillator gives a colloid solution. Its testing and amplifying properties. A rectifier of this kind may be used by using the apparatus shown in the diagram. The coil may be a coil, distilled water and two platinum or aluminum electrodes are necessary. These columns may be produced in a test tube of about 1/2 inch diameter.

White Satin Tunic. A winsome frock seen at Deauville was a Doucette creation consisting of a white satin tunic elaborately embroidered in crystal and jet with white satin flowered skirt. The tunic is very interestingly finished with a narrow white lace trim at the neck, cuffs and hem.

Twelve tablets will be erected in the memory of the members of the Hill and Rock Climbing club who fell in the war, and each will be placed in a mountain peak, says London Times.

Colors Are Much in Vogue. Shaded chifon dresses in several tones of one color, usually yellow or blue, were attractive at Deauville. Several models of this character, designed by Jean Patou, attracted the eyes of the onlookers. Patou's chosen color for these models is a tanish yellow, which gradually shades almost to brown. Models of violet, purple, and blue, which incidentally there is an excessive yellow. Mauves, violets and purples are also combined with other colors. In their own range they often tone to red or blue, emphasizing principally the coolness of the color.

Whimies of Fashion of Interest to Women. Until very recently plaids were relegated to the wardrobe of the juvenile members of society, but this season they have become a staple of the wardrobe of the most decorative designs. In the sheerest stuffs as well as in the most heavy, woolen and cotton, plaids play a most important part in the fashions of the day.

Something New in Blouses. In coming and simple are blouses that are edged with a trimming of the material put on after the fashion of rickrack braid.

Very Smart A frock of brilliant color, large flowered fabric is a very smart thing to possess for country wear.

Why Pay More?

Nothing could be more disappointing than the children's clothes, the present-day and never have the youngest of our nation appear in greater advantage. Parents now realize that a minimum amount of clothing means a minimum amount of health. Nonessentials are dispensed with and the bulk of the modern small person is responsible for serious damage to the healthful rays of the sun.

Plaits add much to the attractiveness of a dress which are shorter than the dressmaker's or, if worn in the season, shirts are rapidly changed. In the length of two seasons ago and it is said that in the future of autumn the shorter length will prevail.

Another exceedingly clever way of adding plaits is in the form of an evening dress of plaid or field pattern in post colors. This is cut on circular lines and is trimmed with a deep fringe that conceals the lace. It is worn over a frock of pale blue tulle.

"IT'S GREAT TO BE BACK ON THE JOB!" How many of YOUR employees return to work with unimpaired morale?

When an employee is injured, great damage may be inflicted upon the healthy spirit of other workers if settlements are slow, doctors' services slighted, or if there is haggling over trivial matters. Every accident, too, takes toll of other employees' productive time, lessens machine return and increases labor turnover.

Under an Aetna Compensation Policy, claims are adjusted in a way that creates confidence among employees. No effort is spared to restore the injured employe to highest possible efficiency at the earliest moment. The free services of expert safety engineers and inspectors tend to reduce industrial accidents to a minimum.

This Agency is equipped to give you wise counsel and complete service in connection with your Compensation risks as well as protection for ALL your assets, - - your life, property and your business.

The Case of the Red Beard

Solomon took the lightning hurler out of the pack and unwrapped them and tried the springs above the hammer. Earlier in the day he had one to Jack and the other in his pockets. Each examined his pistols and adjusted them in his belt. They started down the lowly ridge above the little valley of rock creek. It was now quite dark and looking down through the thickets of hemlock they could see the freight of the Indians and hear the wail of the creek water. Suddenly a wild wailing among the red men, savage as the howl of wolves on the trail of a wounded bison, ran beyond them, far out into the forest, and sent its echoes traveling from hilltop to mountain side. Then came a sound which was not a yell or a shout, as Solomon was wont to say, "a wail on his own woe which was not crying, but the wail of a man." "That was the death cry of a captive," Solomon had said when he had known it. He knew what it meant. The wail was talking loud and smoke had begun to smolder from the throats where like the stabbing of a knife and the recollection of them like blood stains.

They hurried down the stark, branching through the thickets, the sound of their approach being covered by the appalling cry of the wail. The demon-like tumult of the drunken hawks, the two scouts were racked with pain and they went on so fast that they could scarcely hold their peace and their feet from running. A new sense of the capacity for evil in the heart of civilized man, the mind of Jack. They had come close to the frightful scene, when suddenly a deep silence fell upon them. Then God, the victim had gone beyond the reach of pain. Something had happened in his mission—perhaps the hawk had thought it a sign from heaven. For a moment their clamor had ceased. The two scouts could plainly see the power behind the wail of flame. Suddenly the white leader of the rangers approached the pyre, limping on his wooden leg, his stick in his hand, and pointing to the face of the victim. It was his last act. Solomon was taking aim. His rifle spoke. Red Snout stumbled forward into the fire. Then what a hurly-burly among the Indians! They vanished and so quickly that they seemed to have derived where they had gone. Solomon reloading the rifle barrel had had them snatched. Then he said:

"Come on around they had come near. Then he jumped from tree to tree, awaiting an opportunity to survey the ground beyond him. This was what he called 'swapping cover.' From behind a tree near the fire he shouted in the Indian tongue:

"Red men, you have made the Great Spirit angry. He has sent the son of the thunder to stop you with his lightning."

No truer words had ever left the lips of man. His lightning and wailing back of his shoulder and shot forward the round missile sailed through the freight and behind it and sank into black shadows in the heart of the forest. Rock creek—a famous camping place in the old times. Then a flash of white light and a roar that set the hills a-buzz of gravel and dust and debris aloft upward and petted down upon the earth. Bits of rock and wood and an Indian's arm and leg were scattered in the air. A number of dusky figures scrambled out of the mouth of the cavern and ran for their lives shouting prayers to Manitou as they disappeared in the darkness. Solomon pulled the embers from around the feet of the victim.

"Now, by the good God Almighty, 'pears to me we got the skeer shifted as the red man't be the rabbit for a while an' I wouldn't wonder if you, Solomon, as he stood looking down at the scene. "He ain't a goat!" he said. "The look of a man, he ain't a goat, nor his teeth, them things that got gray 'n' never stop running till they've reached the middle of next week."

He seized the foot of the victim and pulled his head out of the fire. "You of hellion! Solomon exclaimed. "You dog of the desert! Tumbled into hell what you're doing an' didn't you? Jack you take that lumber bucket an' bring some water out of the creek an' put out this fire. The Indians on this woe of wooden leg is with a hundred pounds."

Solomon took the hatchet from his belt and hacked off the end of Red Snout's wooden leg and put it in his coat pocket, saying:

"What is it other captive?" he asked in the Indian tongue. "That was a wail down the trail. It's a woman and a boy," said the wailer. "Take us what they be," Solomon commanded. The wailer started slowly down the trail, the warrior leading them.

CHAPTER XVIII

The Voice of a Woman Sobbing

Over the ridge and more than a mile away was a wet, wild meadow. They found the cow and horses feeding on its edge near the trail. The meadow, crowded since dark, had come out in the clear mid-morning and thrown its light into the high windows of the forest above the incident that outflung of the Indian. The red guide of the two scouts gave a call which was quickly answered. A few cows and horses were seen grazing on the farther side. A few red Indians sitting in blankets near a pile of black timber. They could hear the voice of a woman sobbing near where they stood.

"Where do you live?" the Morog asked. "In the south on the shore of the Mohawks," they saw a pair of old women. When he was a wife troubling with emotion.

"What's your name?" "Bill Scott's wife," she answered. "What's his name?" "Bill Scott's wife," she answered. "What's his name?" "Bill Scott's wife," she answered.

"What's his name?" "Bill Scott's wife," she answered. "What's his name?" "Bill Scott's wife," she answered. "What's his name?" "Bill Scott's wife," she answered.

Mystery in Letter 'O' Found in Windsor Castle

Southern Players Are Making Good

Twenty-Four Stars From Dixie Now in Majors.

The "batman" picks the Southern players. The Southern players have made good in the past few years. They have proven an exception and collected around them a fairly strong major league team.

Approximately 24 players, a stand and big league club, are rated as regulars or near-regulars in the majors today after serving in southern colleges.

John Sewell and Blags Stephenson, with Cleveland, are probably the more notable of the inbellers. Both are from the University of Alabama, Chick O'Connell, of the Athletics, is a South Carolina university student. Joe Evans, of St. Louis, and Frank Elder, of Cleveland are grads of Mississippi A. & M. and Sewasaw, respectively. Del Pratt, of Detroit, graduated from Alabama.

The majors have several southern college outlanders. Chick Hendrick, of the Yankees, was all-american from Vanderbilt in 1920. Red Wingo, of the Tigers, was at Oglethorpe in 1919. Big Fleg, of the White Sox, was a Texas University star. The Boons of Boston was a star at Alabama in 1919.

In catching Alabama furnished Sewell and Tennessee had Hank Deery's services for four years. Pitchers are not so numerous, though Lefty Wingard, of St. Louis, never played professional ball except in the minors, after leaving Alabama. Jim Edwards, of the Indians, was an ace pitcher, Mississippi A. & M.

New Diving Champion

Charles Ledoux, who grows enthusiastically the Florida champion at the least proponent of the sport, is also a fan of the game. He has the best second baseman ever to grace a Detroit team, and the Florida champion at the least proponent of the sport, is also a fan of the game.

UNDER THE FRESH APPLE BLOSSOMS

By MILDRED GOODRIDGE

"LETTER GORDON is coming home," heard Edward Richard Lane, meeting his friend, Levi Barnes, on the village street.

"And her sister Constance with her," was the reply, and then the two men looked at each other, as if they were trying to solve a puzzle. Constance had been away for some time and they had not seen her since.

"What a relief," said Richard, and he went on down the village street. He had been so long away, and he had missed her so much, and now she was coming home.

Richard Lane went on his way, looking down at the letter in his hand, and he felt as if he were walking on a cloud. He had been so long away, and he had missed her so much, and now she was coming home.

NOW WELL AGAIN

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—"After I was completely run-down and sick and nervous and could not do much. Then after the other health means I was worse than ever. I suffered this way for a long time and did not know what to do. I was looking over my cook books, and found one of your books, 'The Pink Bear' and read it every day. Then I bought a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took four times a day before I stopped, and now I am well again. I always recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends."

The Significance of "Cracking"

THE Cracking process was responsible for 1,850,000 gallons or about 21% of all the gasoline produced in 1923.

A large portion of this 21% was produced by the Burton Process, developed in the laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

While the production of crude oil during the past ten years has trebled, the demand for gasoline has far outstripped the increased production. "The real factor in holding down the price of gasoline," says the Oil and Gas Journal, "has been the refiners who produced 6 times as much gasoline from 2 parts as much crude."

"In accomplishing this feat, the biggest single factor has been the use of cracking plants—and in the future, cracking will be an increasingly important factor as the most direct and immediate means of holding down the price of gasoline."

Since so much of the gasoline produced by cracking in the United States, is cracked by the Burton Process, it is obvious that the service rendered by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is great.

Until 1913, when the first patent for the Burton Process was granted, "cracking" was a lost art; an idea that had never been worked out from a chemical standpoint—that had never been developed from an apparatus standpoint—that had never been utilized from an industrial standpoint.

Of the cracked gasoline in the United States produced by other processes than the Burton, it is worth noting that none of these cracking processes had developed to the point of producing cracked gasoline in appreciable quantities before 1920, or even 1922.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has always led the industry in progressive development—in economy of operation—in conservation of oil—and in continually lowered cost of refining.

The result of these aggressive and constructive services is the essentially low price which motorists pay for gasoline.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is a real conservationist. It originated the process which gets more gasoline from less oil and hence keeps consumers supplied at lower cost.

Every operation of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is based upon a deep regard for public welfare—upon the desire to render maximum service to the community. The Burton Cracking Process is but one of many intentions, originating with this Company, to conserve our natural resources—to render a greater service to the thirty million people of the ten Middle Western States.
