U. S. Officers Aboard Zeppelin Are Impatient Until Voyage Begins.

Friedrichshafen—The Zeppelin company's pride of the air, the dirigible ZRL-3 left Friedrichshafen for a hop-skip flight to the United States.

The giant airship, built for the United States navy, has the most powerful engine ever prepared for her at Lakehurst, N. J.

According to radio messages received here the ship reached the Bay of Biscay just north of Bordeaux and, aided by favorable winds, was making about 30 miles an hour.

The fact that ZRL-3 returned took place on Columbus day was taken by the Americans aboard as a good omen.

GRAIN TERMINALS BADLY CONGESTED

The unprecedented loading of grain in the States of Minnesota and South Dakota and Montana for primary markets, having surpassed all previous loadings for a similar period, has resulted in the congestion of more than 50,000 cars of grain in the terminal markets can handle.

These terminal markets with a total of 300,000 barrels, and with capacity for unloads of approximately 1400 large grain cars per day, has come face to face with a situation which must be relieved.

For sometime past the average daily consignment of grain to the great markets has averaged approximately 1,000 cars per day, or 500 cars more than their approximate unloading capacity, with a result that a substantial grain is being delayed in unloading, and this delay is also causing congestion on the railroad, which in turn is hampering the present crop.

The Joint Terminal Grain Committee of the Northwest, Regional Advisory Board, after watching the situation closely from day to day, and after a special investigation in Duluth during the entire day of September 30th, concludes that a complete stop of transportation of grain to the present loadings for Duluth and Superior is necessary.

WILLIAM C. ENGLER CALLED BY DEATH

The records as of September 30th, at 9:00 A. M., showed 13,236 cars of grain on hand at the terminal.

William C. Engler passed away at the St. Luke's hospital, St. Paul, last Thursday night, death resulting from cancer of the liver. He had been in poor health for the past year but his condition did not become serious until a couple of months ago.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Paul Indeke from the Lutheran church at Pine City, last Sunday afternoon, and the remains were laid to rest in Hirtwood cemetery. The pall bearers were Gust Meyer, Henry Hoelzer, Henry Burger, Volney Cox, Bert Vail and Albert Neuhauer.

William C. Engler was born in Newark, N. J., November 15, 1871 and came to Pine City with his parents when two years of age. They settled on the farm on Cross Lake which is now owned by S. G. L. Roberts.

On October 24, 1894 he was united in marriage to Louise Kick, daughter of the railroad contractor, George Kick, and they have resided on their farm home 6 1/2 miles east of Pine City the past 10 years. His wife and four sons and two daughters were left to mourn his loss.

He left a sincere desire of the Joint Terminal Grain Committee that the railroad should continue to ship grain in the Northwest as well as all of the grain handling firms in Duluth and Superior in cooperation with these findings to the fullest possible extent, as in no other way can a complete stop of transportation in the North west be avoided.

Too Much Speeding

To the Editor of the POKER:
May I take this opportunity, as a citizen, to bring before you and through you to the people of this community, a situation existing to-day, which if not immediately brought under control, will result in the damage of property and the endangering of the lives of us all.
Briefly, my letter concerns the matter of speeding along the Highway No. 1. Time after time, have I seen cars speed along the Highway and through Pine City at an excessive rate of speed. Time after time have I seen accidents so narrowly avoided that it has seemed nothing short of a miracle. And seeing these things has convinced me of one thing: this speeding, this careless driving, must be stopped. Today, tomorrow, some day, some person, some little child who had as much right to live as you or I, is going to be crippled for life or killed—and then you and I are going to run about like chickens with our heads out of saying that such driving must be stopped. The time to stop it is now.
When we drive in the larger cities of the state we respect the ordinances regulating traffic. We drive carefully, we respect the law. And I say it to our debt, our responsibility, here in our own municipality, not only to respect, but also enforce the law. Let us be called "small town nickels" but let us see that our traffic ordinances are enforced. I am no master of laws. Whether the control of the situation is under the state, the county or the village, I am candid in admitting I do not know—but I believe under state or county or village I call upon those in authority to stop this speeding and this breaking of law. It must be done now—tomorrow may be too late.—Clinton R. Boe

Pulling Together

THE outward and visible manifestations of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) organization consists of certain refineries, buildings, storage depots, service stations, tank wagons and quantities of crude petroleum and its products.

These tangible things any oil company may copy. The refineries of this Company, efficient as they now are, nevertheless may be copied by others. Its system of distribution may be copied. The design of its service stations, with their infinitely practical arrangements for service, may be copied. For all these things are but the work of hands.

But back of all these material possessions is something else—something fundamental, intangible—whose workings cannot be imitated. This is the will and the energy to create; the ideal which inspires and animates intrinsic service. This determination, this will and enthusiasm of heart cannot be copied. It is the unique possession which gives character to the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

This character is expressed in ideals of management. A prominent industrial engineer well says: "It is the part of management to manage. It is the part of science to overcome difficulties. Anybody can accept things as they are."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has never been content to "accept things as they are." It will never be satisfied until petroleum is made to yield the greatest possible number of products which shall render a useful service to society.

This Company believes that an industrial organization exists and is permanent only because it renders an essential service.

It is the enthusiastic, wholehearted determination to serve, on the part of the 27,160 employees, which has made this Company a constructive force.

It is the harmonious pulling together of this industrial army that has enabled the Company to build a great business upon a foundation of fundamental service.

This spirit, which is imbued in the heart of every Standard Oil employee, is the key to the success of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). You will find it manifest at every point. It is inherent. It is imitable.

A. W. Piper has had a new plate glass front installed on his furniture store building. The floor of the show window was also levelled to the store floor, which will make it much easier to make displays of heavy furniture. Mr. Piper carries a high grade of furniture seldom seen in a store in a town the size of Pine City, and his stock is kept new and up-to-date.

Wm. Koenitz had Jack Wobber's large radio installed in his billiard parlor during the world series and the baseball returns were received there each day. It was noticeable that Pine City, as well as most of the ball fans elsewhere wanted Washington to win. The crowd gathered to listen to the returns, last Friday for the final game of the series, was tense with excitement, and when Washington won there was a whoop of joy and a buzz of conversation that demonstrated just how tense had been the feeling of the local fans.

Lawrence Therrien was a week end visitor with friends in Zumbrota. The roughest program and the best party held for a long time is the verdict of those who attended the Royal Neighbor Lodge party last Friday evening. hall was prettily decorated in Halls' own colors and designs. The program given was extremely humorous consisting of many impersonations throughout. A humorous treat was spread following the program, and the evening's entertainment came to a close in the wee small hours.

McCORMICK-DEERING MANURE SPREADERS

1 Authorities have estimated that from 1-3 to 1-2 of all our barnyard manure is absolutely wasted, the annual loss totaling about $800,000,000. This loss is not alone on poorly managed farms, but it includes many that in other respects are operated efficiently.

2 McCormick-Deering manure spreaders put fertility into the soil as it should be done. They are light in draft, strong and simple, yet with the right adjustments so that owners can spread all kinds of manure, as heavy or as light may be required.

3 A Nebraska farmer reports this result of an experiment in Manure spreading over a three-year period:
Six acres, manure spread by hand from a wagon box, average number of bushels of corn raised per year: 336.
Six acres, manure spread evenly by a manure spreader, average number of bushels of corn raised per year: 420.
Three-year gain in bushels of corn by the use of a good manure spreader, on 6-acre area: 257.

Note these McCormick-Deering Features:

1. Auto Steer.
2. Front Wheels Track with Rear.
3. Two All-Steel Beaters.
4. Wide-Spread Spiral.
5. Narrow Tread.
6. Self-Aligning Bearings.
7. Steel Main Frame.
8. Six Feed Speeds.

"Those indications" were the letters of one John Anderson, who described himself as a prominent officer in the American army. The letters were written to Sir Henry Clinton. They were asked for a command in the British army and listed at the advantage to be derived from facts of prime importance, in the writer's possession.

Margaret and her mother called with Sir Roger Waite and his regiment on the tenth of March and arrived in New York on the twentieth of April. The month of May 1782 saw Washington about the worst place in his career. It was the month of hunger. Supplies had not arrived. Families had entered the camp and begun to threaten its life. Soldiers can get along without pay but they must have food. Money broke out among the recruits.

In the midst of this trouble, Lafayette, the handsome French marquis, then twenty-seven years old, arrived on his white horse, after a winter in Paris, bringing word that a fleet and army from France were heading across the sea. This news revived the fighting spirit of the army. Soon boats began to arrive from down the river with food from the French.

On a clear, warm day, late in July 1781, a handsome coach drawn by six cream-colored King's Feet horses pulled up to the highway road. It carried Benedict Arnold and his wife and their baggage. Jack and Solomon passed and recognized them.

"What does that mean, I wonder?" Jack queried.

"The news," Solomon answered.

"To search about," said the younger man.

"There's his name," said Solomon.

"I didn't feel the general half that he had said to me. It was so bitter and yet I believe it was true.

"The two horses rode on in at a trot. It was the middle of the afternoon of that memorable day when they were bound for the neutral territory between the American and British lines, defeated by "cowboys" from the British and "soldiers" from the North who were raiding the farms of the settlers and driving away their cattle to be sold.

"You are John Irons, I see, and you are Henry Thornhill, old boy. I saw you at Helderberg where I used to live. I liked you and you liked me. The best I have seen and you the best."

"I shall be glad to hear of it," said he.

"You know as I know light and darkness."

"I have not yet announced my intention," said Washington. "Who told you?"

"I reached the Corlies farm far down in the neutral territory, at ten o'clock and a little before noon, with Coltes and his relatives. I carried a handful of cattle thieves, and a boy were seriously disabled by my pistol. We had a herd of twelve and so were able to shoot from our hides. The French had left the road, their courage had been broken."

"I had often thought of Nancy, the fairest maid of the north-west, from Governor Reed and traded to Mr. Paulding. I was again reminded of her."

"I did not realize how much he had bettered by his overcharging. He was better at it than I am."

"The offer for my another horse was made to me to overtake the boat."

"I intended to keep the mare," said she.

"I shall be glad to hear of it," said he.

CHAPTER XXV

Love and Treason. Margaret and Solomon returned to headquarters. Arnold and his wife were settled in a comfortable house overlooking the river. Colonel Irons was his chief. The company, in the young man to make a tour of the north and south.

Evening Song

The mode has never known a season in which the fashion and costume guidance were so essential as this of our autumn. As a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald-Examiner has said, the Paris couturier, appearing the strong attractions of the simple styles of recent seasons, and recognizing at the same time the persistent undercurrent which demanded radical changes, has timidly promised the question and offered a line of costume. Surely even full of talent—there are a few notable exceptions—has adhered to the straight and slender manner and has placed science by introducing in addition new fashion types such as the dretrore and other popular effects.

Jeanne Lantier's collection is distinguished by exquisite workmanship, a wealth of detail and a clever combination of color and material. She calls upon several periods of fashion history. There are the long-waisted gowns of the Louis XV period, the robes of the early Nineteenth century and the medival dresses and tunics which are seen in the early eighteenth century.

"There is less use of ottoman than in the styles of the past. The ottoman has a sort of nelson shape, rounded from the elbow to the wrist and adorned with an applique pattern of fur, but still styled after the cut of the straight skirt."

Blacks, velvets, furbies, featuring Circular Fur, Tight Sleeves. Caps are made in every conceivable material and of every purpose. In tweed they are colored and edged with fur such as gazelle, squirrel and rabbit.

Worth is enthusiastically adopting the exceedingly short skirt this season. The most daring frocks of the day are almost 17 inches from the ground and the afternoon and evening gowns are all of this length.

There are two types of tailor-made suits. One features a short coat to the hips, fitting below the waist, and the other features a long, straight, lined coat, or even a suit with a long, straight, lined coat, or even a suit with a long, straight, lined coat.

Insects Lead All. It is computed that there are five times as many different kinds of insects as there are of plants. There are about 130,000 species of insects on the earth. It is estimated that there are 75,000 species of insects on this continent.

Workers of Lancashire Prove the Best Spinners. It's a common saying in the cotton country. The machine spins faster every day. So the machine spins faster every day credit for the production of cotton. The beautiful fabrics which are now made from cotton.

made it possible to get Collins at second. That throw just about saved the game. After the contest Perkins remarked: "Although I have been in the American league a number of years, that is the first time I can ever remember throwing out Eddie Collins. It has always seemed that every time he started to steal on me, something always happened to make the attempt unsuccessful."

How the Tuner is Connected to Aerial and Ground.

By F. H. ARMSTRONG A vibrating wire has mechanical properties almost analogous to the electrical properties of a radio receiving circuit.

Showing the Variometer and Condenser Adjustment.

Suppose that we have a tuner connected to an aerial and ground, as shown in the accompanying diagram. Suppose further that this tuner is adjusted to a wave length of 370 meters, or in other words, that it will respond to this wave length.

One of the Tuned Type. Suppose that the condenser "C" and the variometer "L" are so adjusted that the instrument is tuned for the wave length of 370 meters, as mentioned.

Simple and Efficient Switch Stops Easily Made Switch stops are mighty cheap, but they can, however, be considerably improved, as there are several faults with the ones now on the market.

Neat Switch Stop is Made From Piece of Sheet Metal. You would use a lower ratio transformer for the second stage, if the second stage amplifying tube is the same as the first.

Way to Make Grid Leak That Will Give Results. A very satisfactory home-made grid leak may be made by scraping off the wax between the terminals of a Dablier micon condenser and filling this space with a light coat of India ink.

Your Amplifiers Would Do Better Work If— You would ground the cores of the transformers, even if they are shielded, separate the transformers about 2 or 4 inches and place the cores at right angles to each other.

C Battery Important Addition to Your Set. The use of a C battery is considered by the majority of radio fans as a nuisance.

Efficiency of Batteries. Recovery transformers will not satisfactorily when the storage battery or B batteries are nearly run down.
