There are three common types of tuned radio frequency receivers in use today; the type that uses a resistance in the grid circuit to control oscillation, the neutrodyne method in which the capacity within the tube is balanced out by the use of condensers of small capacity, and the desmoderay method.

The use of neutralizing condensers reduces the volume and quality of the signal somewhat and is usually difficult to adjust properly.

With present types of apparatus it is only possible to use a certain amount of energy to be generated in the plate circuit. The result is that the receiver loses a beautiful quality and freedom of modulation.

One great merit the desmoderay appears to be very similar to the neutrodyne, but the following will show that it operates on fundamentally different principles.

For a great many years, having found the price of a good loud speaker prohibitive, are now using a pair of speakers in a cabinet.

LILLIAN

BYRONIA—Ellen and Joe Latro... make their home in the heart of the city...

CHAPTER V—Continued

"Joe? Joe's a great fellow," he said. "We're very fond of Joe at my house..."

"Mr. Lathrop was talking so nicely about Joe, Gibbs."

"Joe is clever, and steady, and sensible," Lillian said, "and George doesn't care about anything else..."

"It was said so abundantly, in her good-natured, indifferent manner, that the oddity of this sentiment, coming from Lillian, did not occur to Ellen..."

He treated his wife with unvarying courtesy, but he grew deeply fond of Ellen, and little Tom became the joy of his life...

CHAPTER VI

Ellen kept the two families in the city hotel for more than a week of luxury and pleasure...

"You do like it?" "Like it?" Gibbs merely echoed. And Ellen said honestly: "I think it's the loveliest hotel I ever saw..."

"You designed it?" the old man said exultantly. "I'm struck to everything I wanted," Lillian conceded...

"I must be wonderful and fearful to behold," Gibbs said later to his wife. "I have a vision of turreted and Mission oak and black-and-white stripes..."

"I congratulate you, my dear! I've not seen anything better in my life!" She looked up at him with smiling eagerness...

"I hope you're going to be comfortable," she told them, with a wistful smile. "It means so much to you and Tom to be in the city..."

The Message of the Bells

RING, ring, O bells of Christmas-side,
Your joyful message far and wide,
Through all the land proclaim
This is the blessed Day of days
When here, to walk earth's troubled ways,
The Lord our Savior came!

O not with pomp and splendor fine,
But bringing the lowly, sheep and line,
And cradled in the straw,
He came, and low the path He trod
Always—the greatest gift from God
An erring world He won.

As in the dawning eastern skies
The Wise Men watched the Star arise
That heralded His birth,
Thus we await God's Kingdom come,
When man and all God's creatures dumb
Shall dwell upon this earth.

In brotherhood, when war shall cease
And Love and Universal Peace—
Their banners white and gold—
With tenderness and gentle eyes,
Their watchword "Mercy," shall for aye
Preval throughout the world!

Fling out your message, O ye bells,
Your cadence silvery fell,
The gracious times to be
When sweet Compassion, angel fair,
O'er the our land and everywhere
Shall brood perpetually.
—Laurie C. Pook

When Old Santa Comes

COME, ye happy girls and boys,
Lend a hand for Christmas joys.
Christmas-time is well begun
With our jolly loads of fun.
Blow the horn and scoot the sled
Till it's time to go to bed.
Christmas must not pass away
Without sports both glad and gay.

Christmas Land

Oh, Christmas Land is not so far,
It's just across the hall
Within the little living room
Where holly decks the wall.
Right in the middle stands a tree
With crimson tinsel gay,
And orange and windmills in the fruit
It bears on Christmas day.
An apple and an orange grow
Upon the same green bough,
A rosin and a rocking horse,
A sled and spotted cow;
And rye and sparkling sugar plums,
And doves and doves and doves,
And dolls with flaxen tresses drop
Like tears on a windy storm.
But only little boys and girls
That always mind at school
And know their daily lessons well,
And try to keep each rule,
And say their prayers every night,
Can hope to join the band
Of happy children 'round the tree
That grows in Christmas Land.
—Miss Irving, in Kentucky City Star.

The Nativity

IT WAS Christmas Eve and bitter cold,
The wind had ceased to blow;
I sat a window looking out,
Half buried in the snow.
An upper window showed a light,
And over field and fen,
A bright spot of light announced
The birth of Christ again.
Low from the highest window came
A newborn baby's cry,
And far from setting home,
A star shone in the sky.
I felt as if some angel stood
O'er my head, and said,
Perchance I may be able
To burn on earth once more.
