INSANITY CAUSED SHOOTING

Man Who Shot Nephew Suddenly Goes Mad

EXPLAINS BROOKPARK CRIME

The Injured Boy Is Still Alive With Chance for Recovery

George Martin who shot his 14 year old nephew, about a mile south of Brookpark, on Wednesday afternoon last week, was given a hearing before Justice Atkinson of Pine City last Friday morning, waived examination and was bound over to the grand jury, being committed to the Washington county jail at Stillwater.

Sheriff Hawley took him down that afternoon and noticed that he acted rather queerly though he attributed it to fright rather than an unbalanced mind. On Sunday, however, he went completely crazy and by the next morning had become violent. That afternoon he was committed to the insane asylum at Fergus Falls.

This explains the awful crime which at first seemed beyond belief.

The man, a bachelor about 41 years of age, had lived at the home of his brother Wm. Martin near Brookpark since they moved there little over a year ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Martin had left that morning to visit at Virginia, leaving the boy, Russel, who is 14 years of age, and his two small sisters with the uncle.

In the afternoon the uncle and Russel went over to Julius Korsch's.

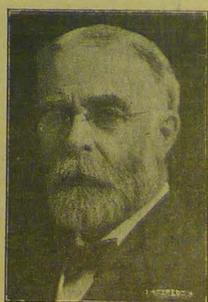

On the way back the uncle shot at the boy from about 15 feet distance as he was climbing through a fence, completely shattering the bones of the right shoulder. When Russel gained his feet he started to run and his uncle fired again. Then Mr. Martin and his nephew returned to Korsch's. Later they went home and Korsch followed them. He found the gun outside the door and asked Martin if he had any more shells to which the attempted murderer replied that he did not and supposed he would have no use for them any way as he would have to go to prison.

Korsch left and went to town, finding Sheriff Hawley who happened to be there on other business. He at once went to the Martin place but was unable to find the man for whom he was in search though a posse continued the search until dark.

The following morning the posse that the sheriff left on the ground while he made a necessary trip to Pine City again took up the search and finally captured Eddy at the Brookpark bank spied the fugitive hiding behind a stump. Eddy at once covered him and called to him to put up his hands. Up went one hand. "Up with the other" yelled Eddy. "I havn't anything" replied Martin. "Maybe not, but I'm not taking chances" replied the banker.

And so the developing mania was captured—quaking like a leaf. The injured young man is still alive at the Asbury hospital at Minneapolis and with some chance for recovery. The many friends of the family trust that this may be realized.

District W. C. T. U. Meeting
The Tenth Annual Convention of

ATTY. GEN. LYNDON A. SMITH
The State hasn't a more efficient nor conscientious officer than Attorney General Smith. He has brought our inheritance tax law to its present condition, by which he is able to collect this year about $1,000,000 from the estates of the very rich. He is absolutely clean, and if you could know him you would admire his personality and as a public official.

The W. C. T. U. of the 16th District, Minn., met at Hinckley last week Wednesday and Thursday, June 3 and 4. The meetings were held in the Methodist church and were conducted by Dist. Pres. Mrs. Carrie Green of Mora.

Good delegations were present from Sandstone, Hinckley, Pine City, Mora, Ogilvie, Brookpark and Carlton. Barnum, Bruno and Willow River were not represented. Morning, afternoon and evening sessions were held both days with splendid programs for each session.

The President's annual report was a fine one and showed great strides in numbers and interest in this district the past year.

Mora reported 27 meetings held for the year—public and special—with much done in the way of aiding the poor and sick. Hinckley union has grown in number and interest. The Flower Mission and Fresh Air work has been a speciality and 23 poor children from the cities were cared for in Hinckley homes last summer. The work will be taken up again this summer.

Sandstone is strongest in point of members and worked hard for the removal of saloons from their town this year. An all day prayer meeting held on election day which it was believed did much to aid this work.

Pine City union has added about 15 names to its membership roll. Special temperance meetings have been held once a month at the churches and several public meetings also held. Temperance sentiment is increasing in the town.

Some excellent papers were given. One on "Anti-Narcotics" by Mrs. Edgar, "Purity" by Mrs. Anderson of Sandstone, Co-operation of Parents and Teachers" by Miss Althea Haugland of Brookpark and one on "Franchise" by Mrs. H. H. Parish of Pine City which we hope to be able to publish in the near future.

Miss Eva Waterman of Elk River, State Vice President and Legislative Supt. was present and assisted in making the convention a success. Her address Thursday evening was well attended in spite of several other attractions in the city.

The ladies of Hinckley proved themselves most hospitable in caring for their guests and a vote of thanks was tendered all who in any way assisted in making the 10th annual convention one of the best.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: President, Mrs. Carrie Green of Mora; Vice Pres., Mrs. Jennie Anderson of Sandstone; Secretary, Mrs. Pryor of Hinckley; Treasurer, Mrs. Florence Gray of Pine City.

FIRST CHAUTAUQUA IN PINE CITY

Will Be Held at Pine City Week of July 6-11—Offers This Region Opportunity

The first Chautauqua gathering ever held in Pine city will be held at Pine City the week of July 6 to 11 inclusive. It doesn't exactly mark an epoch but it shows the progress in thought and tastes of our people and puts Pine city on the map in a way that has never been done before.

The gathering will be a musical and literary feast for the residents of this region with its five afternoons and evenings of entertainment and instruction. The people of Pine City will make ample provision to care for all who attend and the excellent boating, bathing, fishing and natural beauties of the county seat region will give everyone from outside plenty to occupy their mornings and forenoons and aid in making the week an extremely enjoyable as well as valuable one.

The meetings will be held in a monster tent though where this will be located we have not learned.

This Chautauqua offers an unusual opportunity to the people of Pine city to enjoy and improve themselves with a week's outing without going far from home. People who wish, can put a tent into the wagon, drive to Pine City and camp during the week somewhere on the shores of beautiful Crook Lake.

They can buy season tickets by sending to D. K. W. Knapp at Pine City, for $1.50 and can "trade off" in using them or they can pay single admissions and attend as they wish at from 25 to 50 cents per entertainment. It would be the cheapest and best kind of an outing.

This is the best year Pine city ever had—and next year will be better.

FORGER CHANGED HIS MIND

Man Who Tried to Bunco Sandstone Merchants Changes Plea to Guilty

J. Rufus Wallingford Brown who passed three forged checks on Sandstone merchants last week and got caught in the act and was bound over to the grand jury after he had waived examination, changed his mind while counting the fly specks on the ceiling of his cell in the county jail at Stillwater last Sunday and the following day he entered a plea of guilty to forgery in the second degree. The judge sentenced him to St. Cloud for an indefinite period.

The young man is either widely traveled or a lugubrious liar for he talks glibly about his years in Mexico—and he carries quite a air of conviction.

Windemere Leads the County

Windemere town—that is, school district 11 which includes all of the town but about a section, leads the rural and semi graded schools of the county both in the number of 8th grade pupils taking state examinations this spring and in the comparative number of 8th grade graduates.

With a total enrollment of about 125 in its four school the district has this spring sent in about 125 state examination papers and, provided the papers of those attempting to complete the examinations last month are passed by the state board, the district will graduate about 10 eighth grade pupils this spring.

Married at Beroun

Joseph Kubesh and Miss Mary Pavek were married at high noon, Tuesday, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pavek,

HON. O. P. B. JACOBSON

One of the most important offices to be voted on at the primaries next Tuesday is that of Railway Commissioner and Warehouse Commissioner—and it one of which the people know the least. Mr. Jacobson is the man for the place because he has some experience and because in his previous statement he does not make claims that he knows cannot be realized as the others are doing. He only claims that he will do, as at present, the best he can for everyone.

about 3 miles east of Beroun, by Judge Wilcox.

Miss Anna Pavek and Adolph Pavek, sister and cousin of the bride, were bridesmaid and best man respectively. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion and, in the wedding feast that followed the ceremony and the celebration that lasted all the afternoon and well toward morning, the large gathering of relatives, neighbors and friends found ample opportunity to enjoy themselves to the utmost.

Robinson-Kuss Marriage

Miss Eulalia Gladys Robinson and Mr. Edward Cerrill Kuss were joined in wedlock by Rev. Clark, of the Presbyterian church, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Robinson, south of town at high noon, yesterday.

Miss Ruby Robinson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Frank Kuss of Dickinson, N. D., brother of the groom, was best man. The house was very prettily decorated for the occasion and as the bridal party approached the altar, under a mass of flowers and green, the wedding march was played by Mrs. Clark.

The bride was given away by her father and looked very charming in a gown of white satin Messaline. She wore a veil of white illusion bordered with lilies of the valley and smilax and carried brides' roses. The maid of honor was gowned in white silk and carried white roses.

Only relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties were present at the ceremony. Afterward a delightful wedding dinner was served at which more than a score sat.

The happy couple left on the north bound limited for a short lake trip and will be at home at Fairmont, Minn., where Mr. Kuss is engaged in business, after June 15.

The Poker joins their hosts of friends in this region in wishing them "bon voyage" over life's seas.

Cunningham Pitching Good Ball

Pitcher George Cunningham of Sturgeon Lake who is playing with Duluth this season is pitching his usual good quality of ball but his team does not appear to give him nor any other of their pitchers any kind of support—and as a result it is the basement for Duluth.

But everyone knows that if they all played like Cunningham they would be at the top.

MEETING OF SCHOOL OFFICERS

250 Gathered at Hinckley Last Saturday

NEVER A BETTER SESSION

Next Year They Will Meet at Pine City When Good Time Will Be Had

The meeting of the members of the various school boards of the county at Hinckley last Saturday afternoon and evening was the most largely attended and the best one of these annual meetings ever held. There were about 250 school officers in attendance and the entire attendance ran well over the 300 mark.

The satisfaction of those present and their appreciation of the value of the meetings was best shown when Frank Baumechen of Mission Creek moved to discontinue the meetings as causing considerable expense for the districts and to depend upon the newspapers of the county to spread the gospel of education. In a moment Hon. J. Adam Bede was on his feet to reply. He said that every man present liked to write "to his sweet heart real often but that he feels that it is necessary to see her occasionally in order to keep her from sloping with some other fellow. And so he thought that, while much was being and could be accomplished through the newspapers, it is almost necessary for those active in educational affairs to get together at least once a year for mutual benefit. The proposition was voted down unanimously.

H. W. Harte of Pine City was elected president of the association for the coming year—and they selected a live wire who is able and will do lots for the association. Not being a school-officer-member, Mr. Harte was loth to accept the position but when his election went through by a unanimous vote he couldn't help but promise to do his level best to aid in the work—and he will. County Supt. Blankenship remains ex-officio secretary and George W. Empey was chosen treasurer.

The evening program was carried out as planned. Mr. Denfeld's talk was a trifle long but was excellent.

Afterward the Hinckley Commercial Club provided entertainment until train time. There were moving pictures, music by the Brookpark orchestra and a lunch. An excellent time was provided.

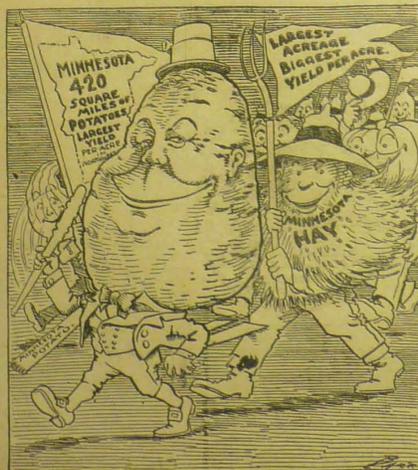

A feature of the meeting was the number of times that local school officers got into the discussions, showing that they are interested in the matters taken up—and have plenty of ideas on them.

There were more teachers in attendance this year than ever before and several made contracts for next year's work at this time. They were able to meet the members of the boards here without trouble. We believe that these meetings will become more popular for teachers in future.

Hydrants Must Not Be Used

Traveling by auto at the rate of 100 miles a day it would take Father Minnesota 420 days, or nearly two months, to completely encircle the area in the state devoted to hay production, in case it was concentrated in one square field. And when it is considered that Minnesota stood second in the yield of hay per acre among the middle western states last year, it is not difficult to imagine how Dad would smile at the end of his trip.

Talk about vegetables, the 420 square miles of potatoes in Minnesota last year produced more tubers per acre than were grown in any other neighboring state, according to the State Board of Immigration. If the superiority of Minnesota grasses and vegetables is doubted, in the face of these figures, a visit to the County Exhibits at the Minnesota State Fair this fall will dispell all doubt forever. Visitors from other states have never ceased to marvel at the excellence of clover, alfalfa, root crops and tubers in Agricultural Hall. Few will be the counties this year unrepresented at the Minnesota State Fair. The efficient advertising given by a county exhibit is worth far more than the money and labor expended in getting it up. Thus there are some valuable prizes to help defray expense. It will be a big year for this fair feature this year.

Washington

The house at Washington passed the three Democratic measures on the president's trust program. The trade commission bill was passed almost unanimously and without a roll call. The Clayton bill supplementing the Sherman anti-trust act and containing the much disputed labor provision, was put through by a vote of 276 to 14. The Rayburn bill, giving the interstate commerce commission control over the issues of stocks and bonds by railroads went through, 325 to 12.

A defiance of the legislative policy of the Democratic party since it assumed control of the national administration and a bitter denunciation of "calamity soviets" and their "socialist" business depression and lay it at Democracy's door marked a speech in the senate at Washington by Senator Reed of Missouri.

Chairman Fitzgerald of the appropriations committee reported to the house at Washington the sundry civil bill, one of the largest and most important bills, which carried for the next fiscal year $107,696,752.90.

Bankruptcy for many of the solvent railroads of the country would follow the enactment of the Rayburn anti-trust bill as it now stands. Robert S. Lovett, president of the Union Pacific railroad, told the interstate commerce committee at Washington.

The United States senate passed the annual naval appropriation bill, carrying about one hundred and forty-one million dollars, providing for the administration two battleship construction program, and authorizing in addition the building of a third modern dreadnaught with money to be derived from the sale of the battleships Idaho and Mississippi.

Domestic

The annual convention of the Travelers' Protective association was held at Houston, Tex., with 576 delegates, their wives and other visitors. Thirty-five states were represented.

A verdict in favor of Governor Hughes, who was sued for $2,310 damages by Mrs. Luella West, was returned by a jury in district court at Topeka, Kan. Mrs. West alleged that the executive attacked her when she tried to take copies of letters from his office. The jury deliberated one minute.

"Fearless" Charley Blake, one of the best-known motorcycle riders in the world, who has dared death thousands of times while multitudes gasped with horror, met with death in Chicago on the Highway. He was trying out a new machine and, blinded by dust, rode into a steam roller at work on the track crushed in his skull and died in an hour.

The body of George W. Strauss, formerly of Chicago, general agent in New York for the New England Mutual Life Insurance company, who had been missing from his Riverside drive home for a week, was found floating in Lake Mohgan in New York. A reward of $1,000 for information concerning the agent was offered.

Indictments were returned at Des Moines, Ia., against 36 officials and members of the National Association of Master Plumbers and officials of state organizations in Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa by the federal grand jury. The indictments charge conspiracy in restraint of trade, in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

President Wilson told 124 graduates of the Naval academy at Annapolis, many of whom leave shortly for Mexican waters, that the mission of the United States is one of service to humanity, not of aggression or conquest. He spoke at the annual academy graduation exercises.

Chief of Police Williams of Newark, N. J., reported that he had arrested and Sheriff Douglas and Chester M. De Witt are slightly injured as the result of the overturning of an automobile driven by Douglas.

A message to Seattle, Wash., said the Canadian government at Ottawa had overruled the chief of the provincial police of British Columbia, who issued "Mother" Mary Jones to be excluded from Canada.

Seventy-five passengers, including a number of women and children, were rescued from the steamer Northland, which was driven ashore on Bartlett's reef, six miles south of New London, Conn., in a gale.

Hundreds of Confederates and Union veterans attended the unveiling at Arlington national cemetery at Washington of Sir Moses Ezekiel's monument to the Confederate veterans who died in the Civil War. The president Wilson accepted the statue on behalf of the United States.

Mexican mediation may end within twenty-four hours in consequence of President Huerta's attempt to blockade the port of Tampico. United States warships will prevent the blockade by force, if necessary, according to information from Washington.

Arms and ammunition for the constitutionalists were disembarked at Tampico from the American ship Sunshine, commanded by Captain Brown, who carried out the operation without opposition.

The next clash of arms between the Americans and the forces of Huerta is likely to take place at sea. Seizure of an American ship bearing arms to the constitutionalists at Tampico is threatened by the federales.

Capt. W. A. Burnside, intelligence officer of Brigadier General Funston's force at Vera Cruz, Mex., estimates the total number of Huerta forces, including police, students and civil service employees at 60,000. The revolutionists he estimates at about 70,000.

Foreign

Suffragists for the first time invaded Catholic churches in London, and created a riot at St. Martin's, where they harangued the congregations. Worship was disturbed in both Westminster cathedral and the Church of the Oratory. Rioting in the women was finally ejected and severely beaten before being rescued by police.

Seventeen Salvation Army victims of the founding of the Empress of Ireland were buried at Mount Pleasant cemetery at Toronto, Ont., in the presence of Commissioner McKie, messenger for the Central States bank, chief General Booth, and a large assemblage of army people.

The London Daily Express asserts that Sir Edward Grey, foreign minister, has notified President Wilson in friendly but unequivocal terms that if General Villa should become president of Mexico the British government would demand and exact satisfaction for the murder of William S. Benton, who was killed in February by the constitutionalists.

Rene Viviani, minister of public instruction, has accepted the premiership in a new cabinet of France.

The king and queen held court at Buckingham palace, London, and the militant suffragist gained access to their presence and caused an interruption to the presentations. As she was passing, the king's suffragist dropped on her knees and shouted: "Your majesty, for God's sake do not use force."

Col. Joseph P. Willard, United States ambassador, and Mr. Willard had King Alfonso and Queen Victoria at their guests at luncheon at the American embassy at Madrid, Spain. Kerensky, Roosevelt and the British and German ambassadors also were guests.

Personal

Harry Baker was killed and Bertin Foster, twenty-one years old, was terribly injured when Baker's automobile struck Foster when the steering gear broke at Rochester, N. Y.

Adlai Stevenson, former vice-president of the United States, remains in a critical condition at the Presbyterian hospital at Chicago. Physicians admitted there was little hope of recovery.

NOMINATIONS CLOSE JUNE 16

INSTRUCTIONS RECEIVED FROM WASHINGTON.

Three Groups of Banks—First Those of $50,000 and Up, Second Above $25,000, Third, $25,000.

Minneapolis, June 8.—Nomination of directors for the Minnesota district reserve bank will be closed June 16, and ballots must be in by July 2, according to instructions received by national banks from Washington.

The state board of directors will be formally organized and running as soon after July 2 as the organization committee at Washington, or the federal reserve board, can count the ballots and announce the result of the election, and name the three appointive members of the directorate. The bank will be in operation some time before Aug. 1, according to the estimates of local bankers.

The instructions say that directors of all the member banks in the district must meet for the purpose of making the choice of reserve bank directors on penalty of losing their votes.

After the nominations close 15 days will be allowed for objections. The official grouping of the banks in the district also was received. The first group includes 231 banks of $50,000 or more capital, the second 232 banks of from $25,000 to $50,000 and the third 231 banks of $25,000 capital each.

According to this grouping the six candidates recommended by the steering committee which met here last month for the reserve bank directorate will be classified as follows:

- Group 1—E. W. Decker, Minneapolis, Class A; F. R. Bigelow, St. Paul, Class B.
- Group 2—G. V. B. Hanna, Fargo, N. D., Class A; F. R. Hixon, La Crosse, Class B.
- Group 3—A. C. Bassett, Webster, S. D., Class A; Norman B. Holter, Helena, Mont., Class B.

VERY BOLD DAYLIGHT HOLDUP

Masked Men Board Minneapolis Street Car and Rob Boy of $500.

Minneapolis.—Two masked men, armed, obtained $500 in silver dollars in the boldest daylight robbery Minneapolis has known for years. Monday morning they jumped out of a street car at Fifteenth and Central avenues northeast, and got the money from Clarence Olson, 19 years old, messenger for the Central States bank. The men, after they had obtained the money, leaped from the street car without being molested by passengers, jumped into a waiting automobile, in which was another man, also masked, and drove down Central avenue. The car was seen to turn off into Broadway in the direction of St. Paul.

Olson had been to the Scandinavian-American bank for the Central bank. He was taking back in a satchel $500 in silver dollars to use in making change. He was sitting about midway in the Columbia Heights-Washburn Park car and there were several other passengers.

STATE MAY WIN $100,000,000

Estimates of Ore Under Lake Beds in Northern Minnesota Bring Total to 400,000,000 Tons.

Chisholm, Minn., June 8.—Estimates of the amount of ore under the lake beds in Northern Minnesota, to which the state claims title in opposition to the rights of riparian owners, bring the total close to 400,000,000 tons instead of the 40,000,000 estimated four years ago, and the people of Minnesota thus stand to win or lose $100,000,000 in a test suit which will be argued in the state supreme court June 30.

The brief is being prepared by Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith and his assistant, C. Louis Weeks, who have spent more than a month on it. It will be finished some time next week.

Slept on Track; Killed. Winona.—William Hutchinson of Plainview, aged 39, returning home Sunday night from Winona, under the look to walk from Eyota to Plainview, Three miles out he was overtaken by a stub train and killed, his head being severed from his body. He leaves a wife, a son and daughter.

Engineer Thrown 100 Feet.

Stephen.—"Tommas Fredericks" steam engine exploded as he was about to start plowing a field near his home, six miles west of here. His engineer, Victor Vickman, was blown 100 feet and sustained several broken bones and is severely scalped. A brother of Fredericks was severely lacerated. The boiler and engine were blown twenty feet into the air. The water tank wagon driven by a stout boy had the front wheel blown off, but the boy escaped.

INTERSTATE PARK FARMERS

Rally of Organizations Will Be Held at Taylors Falls June 19, and 20.

Johnson, department, agricultural college Victor L. Canaday, Joseph E. Wing of Manchester, Ohio, and Henry Groff of St. Louis, Minn.

The Minnesota Stockholders' association will hold a district meeting and has invited George C. Humphrey of Madison, Wis., Professor H. C. Andrews of St. Paul, Andrew Boss, Professor of T. Haacker and John B. Irvine of Minneapolis. The Minnesota Agricultural society will hold an executive meeting and the district boards of the St. Croix Falls, Rush City, White Bear and New Richmond fairs have been requested to send representation with a view of forming a great Grand Valley fair circuit to meet annually hereafter with the Interstate Park Farmers' club.

DEATH STATISTICS COMPILED

Disease Toll More Than Preceding Year—Accidental Deaths Increased.

St. Paul.—An increase in preventable diseases in Minnesota in 1913 compared with 1912, but less than in 1911, is shown in a preliminary report made by Dr. H. M. Dracach, secretary of the state board of health. There were 8,775 deaths from such diseases in 1913, 7,991 in 1912 and 9,017 in 1911. Deaths from accident numbered 2,074 in 1913, 1,792 in 1912 and 1,713 in 1911.

Ten times as many deaths occurred from measles in 1913 as in 1912, the figures being 109 and 10, respectively. Deaths from cancer increased from 1,473 in 1912 to 1,612 in 1913; diphtheria, from 178 to 213; scarlet fever, from 104 to 109. Deaths were shown in 1912 to 12 in 1914 cerebro-spinal meningitis, from 45 to 25, polio-myelitis or infantile paralysis, from 23 to 20.

Typical fever deaths were 334 in 1913 and 233 in 1912. Tuberculosis claimed 2,346 in 1913, an increase compared with 2,266 in 1912, but a decrease compared with 2,456 in 1911.

MAY BE GIRL RAFFLES BAND

Former Litchfield Young Lady Concesses Jewelry Theft in Chicago.

Chicago.—A gang of girls imitating the notorious Raffles as society burglars, the police believe, has been discovered by the finding of a note in the trunk of Miss Hazel Pollock, who is charged with robbing $1,800 of jewelry. Miss Pollock formerly lived at Litchfield, Minn.

The note found in her trunk reads: "Yesterday I stole the best and the best so far this month. Remember tonight, Dickens, Thackeray, Mozart, and Beethoven will be there. Don't be wanted to burn the package. Edna." Many prominent Chicago people have identified the good-looking Miss Pollock, now awaiting trial at the Hyde Park police station, as the person whom they have received into their homes as a guest and whom they believe responsible for countless jewel robberies.

"Overduy is responsible for Miss Pollock's downfall," said W. J. O'Brien, detective.

Wries to Burn Baby.

Minneapolis.—Following a positive statement by Coroner Gilbert Seachore that a baby still abandoned in the street on the morning of June 6 had been brutally stabbed to death, apparently with a pair of scissors, and the story of Mrs. Frank Leonard, proprietor of the baby, that the baby, Harold Martin had laid the baby in the basement in a paper package after asking her for matches, saying that he wanted to burn the package. County Attorney James Robertson said that a warrant charging Dr. Martin with murder in the first degree would be issued.

Shorthorn Association Meet.

Waterville.—The Minnesota Shorthorn Breeders' association, organized April 10, 1907, at Louisville, June 17 and 18. The Shorthorn type will be discussed with animals at hand for demonstration. The Shorthorn market and management and management, as well as topics of general interest, will be considered. The cattle used for the boys' contest Wednesday night will be imported from the grounds and may be looked over by visitors at any time. Several of the show steers from the university farm were brought to Waterville for judging.

Dragged to Death by Auto.

Minneapolis.—Carried seventy feet on the fender after being struck by an automobile, E. H. Hade, a street sweeper, was killed by the street car. He died almost instantly when he was brought to a stop. Buell L. Simmons, assistant manager of the street car line of New York and Co., was driving the car. One of the lights of the machine was broken and the street car was stopped by the street car. Simmons was taking his daughter to high school.

SCANDINAVIAN NEWS

SUMMARY OF IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS IN FAR OFF NORTHWEST.

ITEMS FROM THE OLD HOME

Resume of the Most Important Events in Sweden, Norway and Denmark—Of Interest to the Scandinavians in America.

A great American daily makes the following encouraging suggestions to those who would like to see a united Scandinavia: Norway, Sweden and Denmark, acting apart, have a far less chance of doing anything than if they were united. Norway, Sweden and Denmark if distinct and separate. Whereas Scandinavia has still a great chance to become a Great Power in the next century, every sense which development is bound to come increase in population, and with population and riches will come power. The proper reunion of Scandinavia is not so difficult as the pronunciation which in the last century brought about the unification of Germany and Italy. In those two unions as many prejudices and animosities are buried as would require internment in a free, equal and united Scandinavia.

How wise men do differ! Georg Brundes, the great Danish critic, said in a talk in Minneapolis: "In traditions, race, literature, art and music the Scandinavians are one people. If you travel to Italy, you will find that the people of Lombardy and the people of Sicily speak dialects far more different than are between those of the three Scandinavian languages. Yet they are all Italians and recognize each other as such, while the Scandinavian nations hate and detest each other and try to do each other all the harm they possibly can." At the same time a Swedish journalist who happened to be in the same city declared that all Scandinavians will unite in fighting a foreign foe.

SWEDEN.

The Russian nationalist press assures the country that Sweden already has entered into an alliance with Germany and has bountifully ready to have the Russian German conflict to send troops to Finland. The economic conditions between Sweden and Russia, which had improved steadily for several years, already have felt the effect of this view of the situation. Premier Hammarskjöld's foreign minister, Knut Wallenberg, too advantage of the opportunity to say on behalf of the government: "The reports about a Swedish alliance are false. Our cabinet, like its predecessor, has not deviated, nor will it, from its old policy of neutrality. The dividing line between the two cabinets consists only in the technical question of the extension of the period of military training. We find that a year is required for the more or less satisfactory development of the conscript; in other countries this time is two or three times longer. The military reforms now in preparation are not exclusively on account of the fear of Russia, but are called forth by the necessity of being ready for all eventualities."

Member of the Landthing Johansson is again trying to get the members of the royal house of Sweden into trouble in order that he may prove that a mysterious woman, by the name of Helga de la Brache had enormous sums of money coming from the rulers of Sweden. This time he asks the court to compel King Gustav and his brothers and Queen Dowager Louise to conduct the trial to Johansson investigate the records of the estates of King Carl XIV and King Oscar I. Johansson is not disturbed by the principles, but on the subject of Helga de la Brache he seems to have a loose screw somewhere in his makeup.

Last November the Göteborg Savings bank celebrated its fifty-year jubilee, and the directors resolved to give one krona (37 cents) to every child in the land that entered school that year. There was joy in the heart of many a little tot. Now the national government has notified the managers of the bank that it is contrary to law for said bank to make such donations.

When a boy was dragging a field in Byle, Ostergotland, he noticed that something got stuck on the teeth of three large teeth. The objects proved to be three large teeth from the eighth century. The find was reported to the academy of antiquities, and a reward of $135 was given to the finder when he turned over the ornaments over to the academy.

At the Partille manor, near Gothenburg, a sheep gave birth to a lamb which seemed to be normal, except for the horns, which were like the horns of a hare, but having the shape of a hare. A investigation it was found that the calf mouth was on the throat, right under the chin, and equipped with tongue and teeth. The mother was still-born. The mother, which is on a field where was grazing, had fallen on a field where she was used to keep them. She was scared by them.

DENMARK.

Some of the wise sayings of Georg Brandes during his brief stay in America: American humor, as I have encountered it so far, is largely composed of exaggerated statement. True beauty and true grace manifests itself in American men of every day affairs. The women I have met were delightful. Only as I may protect children will women suffrage count for much. The clergyman is the great potential political power concealed behind the scenes of the woman suffragists. Justice demands that women be allowed to vote, but woman suffrage has no claim to consideration as an act of progress in the world. I tremble for the woman who has to be judged for her mistakes by other and more virtuous women. American men are delighted when they are just themselves. Only when the American man of every day affairs tries to be something that he is not—intellectually—does he fail. Then he becomes merely funny. The Danes in the United States are doing much to make their country prouder of them. They make good use of the American mixture that is to produce the future race type, perhaps.

NORWAY.

William W. Collier, former minister to Spain, and R. A. Nelson, assistant secretary of the department have sailed for Christiania, Norway, where they will represent the United States at a conference of representatives from ten countries to determine on the extent of a department for "No Man's Land," one of a group of seven islands, 700 miles north of Norway. This island is rich in coal and has been mined for seven years. Because of difficulties that have arisen through claims made by squatters which they could take what coal they wanted because no one owned the land and there was no government, the conference will be held. The governments to be represented are, besides the United States, are Great Britain, Germany, France, Russia, Belgium, Holland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark. Companies formed by capitalists from these countries are operating there.

A widower named Olaves Olsen was living with two of his children near Ekeleas, Romerike. A man who happened to pass that way noticed that the children were standing outside weeping. He soon found out that their father was dead. Everything bore the stamp of poverty and misery of the kind. But the children said that papa had money in the house. A search was made, and money and bank books were found in different parts of the house, and in the cellar a large amount of cash. The search brought to light over $6,000. The starving children in the house and the skinny cow in the barn were cared for by the neighbors.

According to a conservative estimate the electric power to be developed during the next ten years will aggregate at least 1,000 horsepower. These improvements will cost it the neighborhood of $75,000,000. This means that for one thing the plain life of Norway for employment is exceedingly prosperous times. Indeed there are many who hold that before the end of the ten-year period foreign laborers will find it to their advantage to go to Norway for employment. One thing seems to be certain, namely, that emigration will be much reduced in the near future.

Norwegians visiting the exposition in Christiania will have a chance to attend large religious meetings. At anonymous donor of Chicago has provided for the erection of a tent seat 5,000 people. The evangelist services will be held throughout the celebration. Dr. A. C. Dixon, pastor of the Metropolitan tabernacle, Spang's famous church, in London will conduct the services on several weeks in June. Dr. Dixon is an American and will be known to many of his auditors. He will preach twice daily, once with an interpreter and once without.

The people of Hallingdal are putting up a number of monuments this year in honor of men who distinguished themselves in the service of their country one hundred years ago. The monuments are plain granite blocks "bautaestene." At Fla, there is one in which the names of 40 men are cut. Another at Goll, contains 40 names, 3 third one at Nes 72 names, and others at Aal, Torpe, and Hol, bearing 122 and 80 names, respectively.

The Christiania street cars carried 24,250,000 passengers in 1913. The company has just installed 44 new cars on account of the increased traffic during the exposition. The light fare festivals, the stockholders received ten per cent on their investments for the past year. Between 7 o'clock in the morning and 5 o'clock in the evening the company carries 2,500 passengers at such a low rate that there is a loss of $35 a day.

The prospects are that the government will contribute to the expense of Captain Roald Amundsen's North pole expedition. It is proposed that the expedition be equipped for its next season, and that the balance of the $50,000 still needed be covered by annual appropriations for five years.

Prof. Christian Birkeland has made a new invention which promises great progress in the mining industry. The invention consists in a kind of product which is used in the production of molten ores for obtaining the metal.

SYNOPSIS.

Joseph Hayward, an ensign in the United States army, on his way to Fort Hammar, meets Simon Girty, a renegade whose name has been connected with all manner of atrocious deeds. He is headed for Hammar, with a message from the Indian general, D'Avoury. He guides him to the fort.

CHAPTER II—Continued.

"I do not trust the villain, but I'll bear his tale. I may need you, Mr. Hayward; remain there in the back room until I call."

I could see no door.
"Where, sir?"
"In the den, beyond the robe hides the entrance. If I need you I will call. The dog is coming now."

The interior of this room which I now entered for the first time was a revelation to me. It was fitted up as a lounging room, a den, yet bearing more resemblance to the temple of a savage than any abode of the tribes of the chase, were everywhere in evidence. I saw all this with a single glance as I shut the door, yet almost with the instant my entire attention was riveted upon an occupant, and I stood motionless, scarcely crediting my own eyes, as I stared at the figure seated at the couch against the farther wall. It was in shadow, underneath the window, draped by a yellow blanket, and in one corner sat a girl, her dark head bent over an open book. So intent was she upon the pages that she had not heard my entrance, or else remained indifferent to my presence, yet the witch never glanced up, turning a page of her book lazily.

"Your pardon, I ventured, and cap in hand, advanced to the table nearest her.
She came to her feet in an instant, the book sliding to the floor, his long black lashes no longer shadowing the dark eyes gazing toward me in sudden interest. She was small, swift of movement as a forest hare, yet for the instant I saw only her face, and the unfathomable depths of those eyes. They were full of bewilderment, surprise, laughter. As though some mysterious message had passed between us, I knew she was glad I had come.

"Why, monsieur," she exclaimed, hesitating slightly over the words, "I am startled. You are French, are you not? My heart beat—so fast. I thought it the general, yes—who else? But I never saw you before, you—you are an officer of the American army."
"Yes, I belong to this garrison. But the surprise of finding you here was mine also. I was not told the room was occupied—and you are French."
"You do not know me, monsieur?" her eyes drooping, then uplifting again.
"An you an officer of the American army?"
"No; I have been absent hunting. I only returned an hour ago."
"Een the woods? Out beyond?"
"An you saw no Indian, no French courier des bois?"
"Not one; only a white renegade I brought in with me bearing a message."
"From the tribes, monsieur? From Detroit?"
"From the tribes, yes," I answered, surprised at her eagerness, yet seeing no harm in a frank reply. "But they were in council at Sandusky."
"Sandusky!" the word seemed to cling to her red lips. "He—he was a Frenchman then?"
"Who?"
"Who? The messenger? Not he. We can understand the relationship between the Canadian French and the savages. They have always been friends, but this cur is of another breed—barring against his own people."
She leaned forward, the laughter all gone from her eyes.
"Who—who was he, monsieur?"
I hesitated, wondering at her insistence, her eagerness. She leaned forward almost touching me with her fingers.
"Please, monsieur; you can tell me." "A white dog named Girty? We know him well."
"Simon Girty!" her hands clasped, her lips unconsciously repeating the name. "And from Sandusky! You say he brought message from the tribes? Mon Dieu! 'Tis strange that he should choose him. He said so, monsieur?"
She chimed to represent the tribes, but his message was from Hamilton.

"An' he is there—at Sandusky—this Monsieur Hamilton?"
"He was there—yes—at least so Girty reports; but I know nothing as to where he may be now—back in Detroit likely, plotting new mischief."
My indignant speech had slight effect on her, for she laughed as I ended. "But was done most well—so Girty left, monsieur. But why you say in this home? Because I am here? In this home of the Americans generally? But we are together, we are alone. My people are yonder in the woods; I saw not those long faces who sing palms. Tell me, monsieur," she touched my hands, her pleading eyes looking up into mine, "why is not you here? I can be trusted. Tell me quickly, so I can help."

"But I do not understand, mademoiselle, I have told you who I am. Why should you speak like this?"
"Because I know you," she insisted. "Because I have seen you before."
"Know me?" I smiled, indignant of her whim, convinced now that I dealt with a mind diseased. "That is hardly possible."
"Do, monsieur Hayward, I do. Have you no memory of me? Of my face? Why are you so afraid to have faith?"
"But I had spoken my name, and I gazed at her in wide-eyed astonishment. Surely we had never met, yet how could she know?"
"Am I not right?"
"Yes, but I have no memory of seeing you before, and you are not one to be easily forgotten. Tell me who you are?"
"The dimples exhibited themselves in either cheek, yet she faced me without a movement.
"That is not right, you should forget, monsieur, and so I cannot tell. Yet I will answer; I am not afraid, and then you must remember. I am Rene D'Avoury."
"The name meant nothing, told nothing. Rene D'Avoury?" I repeated dumbly, striving to make the sound familiar.
"Yes, monsieur," she said, and then she sprang back beyond the table, one finger at her lips. The door opened at my back.

"Now, Hayward," said Hammar's voice "that isn't what I want. I expect my man to do that. But this is not strictly a military matter, and I give you no order. I use a confidential messenger, a man of intelligence and nerve; but he will take his life in his hand, and possibly to no purpose. I half suspect treachery, and will order no officer of my command to such hazardous service."
He stopped, and stood staring out of the window, his broad back toward me. "You must deem this matter of grave importance," I said, firmly, "and I will seek no further; I volunteer to go."
He wheeled about, and grasped my hand. "I thought so, Hayward. I am not often mistaken in a man, and I like your face. Yet do not be too hasty in decision. Sit down here, where we can have the talk between us. I can explain what he is brewing in the pot of those north woods. What think you honestly of Simon Girty?"
"A fool!" yet Hammar rose him. The man was a messenger, even as he claimed. The Englishman would do with his own hand; I have seen the writing before."
He pushed the crumpled bit of paper across, and I read the crooked lines slowly for the penmanship was almost illegible. Twice I read it, half convinced my brain played me some trick.

"In this true, sir."
"Some of it is, enough to make me afraid it may all be. The exact situation is this, Hayward. The tribes of the northwest are ready for war, in spite of the influence of the chiefs many of the young men are already on the war trail. They are in small parties ranging the woods, attacking unlying settlers and hunters. Stories of outrages come drifting in here every day. Nothing prevents a general outbreak at British request, and the opposition of the Wyandots."
"A strong nation."
"The most important in the Indian alliance. They are no friends of ours, yet they claim to be Christian, converted by French Jesuits, and thus far the priests have held them on the side of peace. For the first time their chiefs have met in council with the others and threaten war. Do you understand the cause?"
"Not clearly, because of some prisoners we hold, is it not?"
"It was Greek to me, also, until Girty explained. That was trouble and we have a such prisoner, but if I read that word back by Girty, you will believe I lied. But if an officer of this garrison goes boldly to them, in response to their challenge, faces them at the council fire, and says so openly they will probably accept his word."

"If the Wyandots join the other tribes it will mean war."
"Yes; the length and breadth of the frontier. I have no force with which to meet them; hundreds of lives—men, women and children will be destroyed; settlements ruined. I doubt if there be a white man left north of the Ohio in three months if those fanatical lords lead their savages to work, endeavoring to treat with those red devils. It is the duty of the governor. But St. Clair is away; I have no means of reaching him with this information. The Wyandots demand instant reply, and our messenger must reach them as soon as, if not before, the return of Girty."
"Do I have my choice of scouts?"
"Certainly."
"Then I will take Brady, sir."
"The best man available. I would have named him only I feared your lot troubles had left you enemies."
"Not at all; it was a fair fight."
I sat thinking in silence, and Hammar walked. The danger of the journey unrolled before me in imagination—the perilous waterways, the long trail through the trackless woods, man and child, the chances of treachery and death lurking in every step of the way. Audacity, determination, the lives dependent on my success gave me courage. It was a task, someone must do. I drew the letter over again, and studied it.

"You are sure, general, this 'Wapateah' is in our hands? At some of the other forts?"
"As sure as I can be; I heard from Pitt yesterday, with reports from the garrison beyond. No account was made of such a prisoner being brought in. Hambrook took me from Vincennes two weeks ago—some French voyageurs led the letter on their way up the river—and he mentions nothing save his troubles with the Indians of the Wabaah, who are most impudent and ungrateful—the worst of the lot, to my notion. I expect the fellow has been killed in the woods."
"A man, then? A chief?"
"Yes, his name had familiar sound. 'Wapateah'; 'tis as unusual as a brook."
"Aye! It would sound like that; but Girty gave me some other name I have forgotten. Glad I hated so to talk with the foul-mouthed renegade, that I asked few questions; only you may be sure 'tis no squaw the Wyandots would war over."
"A medicine man, or some thing of that kind; as I understand,

"Then I am to Talk Boldly; Threaten, If Necessary!"
brusky. "I've done with that scoundrel, and will speak again with you."
"My eyes clung to his eyes for a instant, those of the girl, shrinking back into the shadows. Then I turned and went out, my mind full of bewilderment.

CHAPTER III.

A Perilous Venture.

General Hammar strode across the room to his chair, and sat down, staring out of the window, his eyes forward. I closed the door and stood waiting, swiftly determining to discover the identity of that young woman within, and feeling slight heed of night else. Hammar turned his eyes toward me, surveying me a moment in silence. "What do you weigh, Hayward?" he snapped out, as tho' noting my girth for the first time.

"Two hundred and thirty, sir."
"Hah! and every inch muscle and bone from the look of you. I've got some new work picked out for you. How far north have you ever been?"
"To the forks of the Muskingum."
He drummed with his fingers on the table, then pored over a rough map. "Hah! the hard travel will be beyond, after you leave the boat. Would you undertake a journey to Sandusky?"
"Alone, sir?" I asked, started at the question, the distance vague in my mind.
"With a scout, who knows the woods," he answered, studying my face. "and an enlisted man to cook, and do odd jobs around camp, and a small party is better than a large one on such a trip." He paused, thinking.
"I have an order, sir. I am a soldier."
"Yes! he got to his feet. 'But now dirty said a religious teacher, whom the tribe loved more than a chief."

I crossed the narrow room twice, endeavoring to sum up the evidence gained.
"A poor pretense for war, surely," I said at last, "but might be sufficient to Indian mind."
"I know Indian nature; they have got to be bluffed at their own game. Show fear, and they are after you at once, the whole pack in full cry; face them straight to the point, if you go straight to them, through the woods to their council fire, an officer of this garrison in uniform, they will interpose no objection. If you do not, they are not afraid of their threats."
"Then I am to talk boldly, threaten, if necessary?"
"I will do so, sir. It is our only chance to avert war. The scheme may not work, but if it even results in delay, it will be worth the effort."
"At what hour?"
"At dawn, tomorrow. Come here first for final instructions, and a letter to Hamilton. You will go up the Muskingum to the forks by boat, and then straight to the council fire. Your must be no loitering on the march."
"There will be none, sir; and what about Girty?"
"I will hold him on some pretext until morning. Your party will have fifteen hours' start."
There seemed nothing more, and, after waiting a moment in silence, I saluted him.

"Very well, sir; that is all!"
"All at present."
I turned toward the door, then hesitated, as memory suddenly returned. "Pardon me, general," I said impulsively, "but I met a young woman in the room yesterday. Might I inquire who she was?"
He stared at me with open mouth, then laughed.

"The witch! I never knew she was in there, Hayward, or I should never have spoken of her. It is a great danger. Said she anything about herself?"
"Only her name—Rene D'Avoury."
"Hah! that does not sound much like a name," he said, laughing. "But I, too, I've forgotten it; I was just as Frenchified, and I never dared to speak it aloud. How came she to tell you?"

"That's the odd part of it, sir. She knew me, called me 'Monsieur Hayward,' and insisted I would remember her when she named herself. Then she spoke, but I was so dumb I never heard before, nor have I ever seen her. Did I swear to that?"
"And she is not the sort to be forgotten easily," he said, looking downers in the Illinois country, I would like service there. The tale is, as repeated by the soldiers who talked with the women, it she seeks her father, who left this Kanawha a year since with Vigo, on a journey up the Ohio. She stops at each settlement to inquire, and the girl has money—French and English gold—on her. Yet, if this be the truth, there is small hunting done. Once only was she at the village for an hour; nor has she spoken to me. She pushed her way through with her pet speech, and French talk, for she pretends little understanding of English. But that my wife likes her I should have sent the hussy on her way before now."
"But, general," I asked, still lingering. "How came she to know my name?"
"Perhaps you spoke it first in her hearing."
"Not I, sir; we spoke of other matters."
(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Photographs by Wires.

A cablegram from Berlin reports that the celebrated artist, Alfred Korn of Munich for sending photographs by telegraph has been so perfected that it may be possible within a year to transmit by wire a picture of Atlantic. Some time ago it was announced that Professor Korn had made such progress with his invention that he had been invited to come from Munich to Nuremberg, a distance of about 100 miles. He asserted at the time that he expected to be able to transmit a picture to New York which would be good enough for newspaper use in 30 minutes.

Building a City to Order.

India's new winter capital, now building near Simla, will, it is now estimated, cost $40,000,000, and when the work is well under way from 15,000 to 20,000 men will probably be employed. Twenty-five miles of tram way are being laid about the site. The general work is considerably backward.

FAMILY FRUIT GARDEN

HAVE A FEW SELECTED VARIETIES AND GIVE PROPER CARE.

Dwarfs Are Excellent, as They Require Less Room Than Standards, and Come into Bearing the Third or Fourth Year.

(By E. KNEELAND, Copyright, 1910.)
Fruit for the family table through the growing season and a surplus to sell need not mean a large orchard, but only a few well selected varieties properly cared for. First, then, for a small lot of fruit, and the dwarfs and half dwarfs are excellent, as they require less room than the standards and come into bearing the third or fourth year and are easily pruned and sprayed.

The trees should be set eight feet apart, and each tree will provide fruit from June to November. The variety will depend on the latitude and altitude. The United States government's Farmer's Bulletin No. 208" gives a very complete list.

What to Plant.

Four sweet cherry trees and one sour one will supply enough fruit for the table and also for cooking. The following are recommended: Cox's Transparent (June), Downer's Late (July) Windsor (July) and a Dwarf Montmorency (June) for cooking. Eight pears should be ample and may all be of the dwarf type, such as two Bartlett's (August and September), Clapp's Favorite (August and September), Louise Bonne de Jersey (September), Stetel (September), Howell (September), Heure d'Anjou (October), Year of Winfield (winter). Plums may be grown in the poultry yard and the garden space saved for other fruit. Grapes are always welcome, and one vine of each of the following will provide a good supply: Dutchess, Moore's Early Green Mountain (white), Concord, Niagara, Delaware. For current bushes try eight Boy's Profile. There are endless varieties of raspberries, but ten Herber, ten Cuthberts and ten St. Regis are recommended; for blackberries try the varieties of Swiders and ten Wilson's Early. Gooseberries and five Industry and five Smith's Improved will provide a good supply.

Prepare the land thoroughly, provide plenty of manure to start things and keep the soil cultivated under the trees and bushes. Set the standard and dwarf trees 5 feet apart, the dwarf eight feet, the fruit bushes six feet and the canes three feet. Fruit trees bushes, etc., live many years, but their value depends upon their vigor, shape and ancestry; so be sure to buy only from a reliable dealer or nursery man and when satisfied as to his standing, do not let the price govern the purchase. The saving of a few dollars may often result in a much greater loss later. Finally draw a rough plan of the garden, marking where each tree, bush, etc., is to go, then set them with a line and measure according to the nurseryman's directions.

KEEP DAIRY PRODUCTS FRESH

Large Barrel Sink in Ground Will Afford Convenience and Serviceable Place for Summer.

A very convenient and serviceable way to keep dairy products may be made by sinking a large barrel in the ground. A shady spot should be chosen, writes G. C. Amb of Beatrice, Neb., in Missouri Valley Farmer. Fill the barrel with a layer of small stones, gravel and sand, and dammen. Put a box over the barrel and bank up with solid earth, preferably clay. This does not get the water when it rains and also the heat from the sun, which tends to make it cooler. Make sure the barrel is not occasionally to prevent odors from collecting.

Seed Seeds.

In order to have soil that is comparatively free from weed seeds many gardeners begin to plant in advance of planting to prepare the soil. If onions are to be planted next year manure is applied freely this year for a cultivated crop. Onions will grow well and no weeds are permitted to go to seed.

Sow Bugs.

Sow bugs are ubiquitous animals and feed upon decayed vegetation. They sometimes attack growing plants. To kill them, slice potatoes, dust with fresh ground cayenne and place in rows. They will lay in places frequented by the bugs.

Nitrate of Soda.

One of my neighbors lost a good cow because she ate a quantity of nitrate of soda. Last summer he left his barn door open and nearly lost a horse, but someone saw it in time and dosed the animal. It was a close call, for the horse was more than a week getting over the dose. A good writer in an exchange, "This suggests that it is easier to prevent such things than it is to cure them.

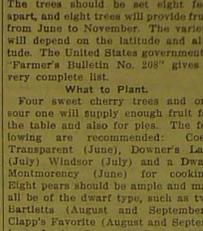

Necessary for Growing Chickens.

It yards for keeping growing chickens in yards, make the yards so that they can be moved to a fresh piece of ground as often as it is necessary to furnish a clean, sweet, grassy spot.

GOOD HITCH FOR TWO TEAMS

One Shown in Illustration Has Been in Service Twelve Years and Proven Satisfactory.

This sketch shows my four-horse trailer, which I find hard to beat. I have used it for twelve years and it has proven particularly satisfactory for a wagon, as both teams must pull their portions, writes Ed Kraus of Hays, Kan., in Farmers' Mail and Gleaner. However the event may be used anywhere that a load team is needed. To make it, take two pieces of iron 2 feet long and 3/4 inches wide and drill two 3/4 inch holes 22 inches apart through both pieces. Drill another through the center for the wrench bolt. These two pieces are marked A in the drawing. The pieces BB work between them. Use heavy washers on either side of the pieces B.

Four-Horse Trailer.

so as to make them work freely back and forth. Each piece B is 18 inches long with the outside holes 16 inches apart, and a hole in the center of each. The four pieces are drilled in each end, then riveted to D at one end and BB at the other, one above and one below. These pieces are strap iron 1 1/2 inches wide and 3/4 inch thick. D is a triangular plate about 3 inches apart, and the holes are about 3 inches apart. Use a 1/2-inch rod with link for the lead team.

RAPE PASTURAGE FOR SWINE

Dwarf Essex is Only Variety Suitable for Hogs—One of Best Emergency Forage Crops.

The grower of rape should insist on getting the Dwarf Essex, as this is the only variety that is suitable for hog pasture. There is a number of big seed rape found on the market which makes a worthless pasture and should not be used.

I have used rape for several years as pasture for both breeding and fattening hogs and never experienced any difficulty in getting them to eat it, writes Turner Wright in Farmers' Mail and Gleaner.

If hogs that are not accustomed to rape are given a new green feed for a few days they will soon learn to eat it, though it is even though they are fed a liberal amount of grain. It often happens that hogs, after learning to eat rape, prefer it to clover or alfalfa that is coarse and woody. I have often changed hogs from alfalfa to rape and from rape to alfalfa and could see no difference in the way they seemed to relish these different feeds. If the hogs are turned on the rape that will eat it more readily than it is more mature.

Rape is one of the best emergency forage crops we have. A good rape pasture will give practically as good results as alfalfa. It can be sown in feed yards and lots that are used through the winter and thus not only furnish a pasture but make a place of a shortage of alfalfa or clover pasture but also provide the means of utilizing ground that would otherwise grow a crop of unsightly and worthless weeds.

SILAGE GOOD FOR POULTRY

Of Material Assistance in Keeping Up Egg Production—Fowls Are Crazy for Succulency.

Cows and sheep thrive on silage; it is a little too bulky for hogs to eat a great deal; horses and mules eat small amounts with profit, and a writer to Hoard's Dairyman tells that it is the best ever for poultry. His advice: "We have tried it for two years and find the birds are crazy for it and will clean up all given them. Of course, we give a grain ration, oyster shells, grit, etc., besides the ensilage." Since poultry require some green food in order to do very well and lay best when they enjoy their food, it can be seen that silage will help a great deal to keep the egg production up to the standard, as well as stimulating the milk flow of dairy cows or putting beef on steers and mutton on sheep.

Keeping the Butter Fresh.

A light lid for the top of the barrel and a strong lid for the outer covering of box. Fit the box as near airtight as possible. The butter is dispensed and placed on the bottom of the barrel and the little cellar is finished. Falls of cream, milk and butter may be hung from nails on the sides of the barrel. Air to be taken out occasionally to prevent odors from collecting.

Mrs. H. W. Harte returned this morning from Broadhead, Wis., where she was called to attend the funeral of an aunt who died at that place. Mr and Mrs. Harte were visiting friends in the Twin cities when she received the news.

Fred Norton came up yesterday from Fort Dodge, Ia., where he has been conducting a hotel the past several months but recently sold.
He returns there tomorrow to remain until things are closed up and expects to be back home in about a month.

Rudolph Wosmek of this place week to establish a store for the concern at Cambridge, of which he will be permanently in charge.—Mr.

Berlin remaining here. Mr. Sutherland is an excellent citizen and Pine City loses much when he goes.
That he will be greatly missed by many goes without saying.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Uhler of Duluth and Miss Hattie Pennington, who has been attending the normal school at that place the past year, arrived at the Pennington home last Saturday, the latter to remain until fall when she will leave for Seattle where she will teach next year. Mr. and Mrs. Uhler left Monday for St. Peter to visit his folks for a short time and are expected back here Saturday for a longer visit.

THE OTTERBEIN MALE QUARTET.

NO Chautauqua program would be considered complete without a male quartet. The Otterbein come equipped for splendid effects and sing and play like veterans. Their voices blend perfectly, and they have the entertainment instinct. They know how to build a program and offer a fine variety. They present several laughable stunts and know all the platform pranks going, besides having talented songs. Their heavier music is well chosen and full of genuine sentiment.

P. C. Bank in Its New Home

The Pine City State Bank moved back into its newly remodeled and refitted old location, Tuesday afternoon and is now in the neatest, cleanest and prettiest banking room that we know of in this part of the state.

The work of remodeling the old building has taken much more time than was at first expected—but it has been completed in a way to please any eye. The front was entirely remodeled and the rear extended about 15 feet. The interior was entirely changed and refitted.
The floor is tiled, the ceiling covered with metal, a fine new door put on the vault, a customer's recess fitted in the rear with direct entrance to the safety deposit vault, new fixtures with beautiful white marble base and wrought iron top put in and everything fitted in the best of shape.

Cashier Perkins and Asst. Cashier
Pennington and Vice President
Harte and all within and without the bank are proud of the new quarters.

"REBEL" OAKES IS PITTSBURGH LEADER

Manager Oakes of Pittsburgh Federals.

The first break in the list of Federal league managers came recently, when it was formally announced thatennis T. (Rebel) Oakes had been named to succeed Harry Gessler as the head of the Pittsburgh crew. Oakes had been in charge of the team for several days previous, Gessler having been called in to Pittsburgh off the road to explain why he did not win games. He is said to have told the Pittsburgh owners that he couldn't win in a Class K league with the bunch they had given him, but the day Oakes was put in charge of the team it beat Miner Brown's "all-star" team by a score of 15 to 7. St. Louis, however, made slight errors—some scorers said nine or ten—and of course that helped the Pittsburgh club to victory. Gessler, it is stated, will be retained by the Pittsburgh club as a scout and coach.

STOCK EARNS REGULAR JOB

Young Third Baseman Proves Himself as Good if Not Better Than Shafer at the Far Corner.

No longer does a yawning gap at third base hover on McGraw's bed post at night. No longer does the vision of retiring Arthur Shafer carry with it a roll of bunting labeled "fourth pennant." The form of Milton Stock has planted itself in the breach. He has proved that Shafer will not be missed. Early form indicates that Stock is at least as good as Shafer was, if not a bit better. Stock is better because he is far more aggressive than Shafer was. When Shafer was playing, third base was the essence of existence. Now Stock keeps up a continuous chatter. To some this talk appears like wasted energy. It is not. It helps to keep the players "on their toes" and that means a scrappy ball club and a scrappy ball club means the winning of games. Both in the field and at bat Stock has done as well as Shafer ever did. He is particularly good at going to his feet after hard hit balls. He can throw from any position and generally his throws are accurate. At pocketing foul balls near the field house he is a "bear." On the whole Stock is a real third baseman, and the Giants will not sign for "Tully" Shafer.

RECORD FOR BURKETT

MANAGER OF WORCESTER TEAM LONG IN HARNES.

As Member of Cleveland Club He Led National League Batters in 1895 and 1896, and Topped the List With St. Louis in 1901.

With the opening of the season in the New England league recently, Manager Jesse Burkett started on his twenty-eighth consecutive year as a baseball player. As pilot of the Worcester team Burkett dons the spangles regularly, and though he doesn't participate in every game, he plays often enough to get his name in the records for the season.

Since Jim O'Rourke made his final retirement from the diamond to become president of the Eastern league, the record for continuous service on the ball field doubtless belongs to Burkett.

Jesse Burkett was born in Wheeling, W. Va., December 4, 1870. At the age of sixteen he began playing professional ball at Scranton, Pa. Two years later he went to Worcester. Later he transferred to the New York Giants, who farmed him out to the Lincoln club of the Western league. In 1891 he was sold to Cleveland. He remained in the Ohio city until the amalgamation with St. Louis in 1892, and played with the St. Louis Cardinals through 1901. The next season found him a member of the newly formed American league club in the Mount City. In 1902 he joined the Boston American league club. A year later he bought an interest in the Worcester club, and has acted as manager of the team ever since.

During his long career as a big leaguer Burkett established a reputation as one of the heaviest hitters who ever faced a pitcher. As a member of the old Cleveland club he led the National league batters in 1895 and 1896, and again topped the list while playing with St. Louis in 1901.

The same success that attended Burkett's career as a major league player has marked his work as a minor league pilot. Since he took over the Worcester team eight years ago his team has never finished lower than third position in the New England league. For four successive seasons his team captured the pennant.

Major league scouts have great faith in Burkett's ability to develop talent, and they seldom fail to be on hand early in the season to give the Worcester team the "once over." Some of the classy players he has developed the last few years have brought fancy prices when sold to clubs in faster company.

Burkett received his higher education in baseball in the rather difficult school afforded by the old National league in the '90s. The game was not run so smoothly in those days as now. The umpires exercised less control and a player was obliged to make good through his ability to fight his way to the finish. As a member of Pat Tolan's old Cleveland team, reputed the scrappiest outfit of those fighting days, Burkett learned many tricks of the diamond.

IDOL OF THE BLEACHERITES

Joe Jackson Tosses a Ball to Fans in Right Field Seats at Sportman's Park, St. Louis.

If it were left to a vote of the right field patrons at Sportman's park, says a St. Louis writer, who is the greatest player in the American league, they would answer—Joe Jackson of Cleveland.

Since Joe became an idol of the bleacher patrons, his habit each day has been to toss a ball over to the boys just before the game. He did this trick every time he appeared in St. Louis last year and in 1912.

Just before the opening of a recent game Joe walked out to right field

Joe Jackson.

A bleacherite howled: "Hey, Joe, where's the ball? Ain't you gonna give us one?"

Joe reached into his hip pocket and tossed a new ball into the seats. There was a wild scramble, and a little lot came up with the sphere clutched tightly in his hands.

Bob Bescher a Star.
Followers of the Giants already look upon Robert Bescher as a real star. Whenever this young man reaches first base the fan benches. He is a little worrier, the pitcher as much as possible, and when he starts he is a whirlwind. It requires a bullet throw to get him down at the middle. Bescher is playing better ball than in Cincinnati last season.

Anticipation.

"One summer I chanced to be back in the ridges of Tennessee," said United States Senator Blaik Lee of Maryland as he leaned back in his chair, "and a couple of mountaineers got into an argument. High words led to blows, and one of the men was killed. One of the party volunteered to ride on ahead to the dead man's cabin and break the news to the widow.

"She was seated at a table eating apple dumplings when the man rode up. He broke the news as gently as possible. The woman listened quietly with a dumpling poised in the air half way to her mouth. When the man had finished, she stuffed the dumpling into her mouth and said:

"You'll jest wait till I finish this hyer dumplin' an' then you'll hear some holersin'!"

SCALY PSORIASIS ON LIMBS

Troop H, 6th U. S. Cavalry, Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis., was troubled with psoriasis for nearly two years. Portions of my arms and limbs were affected mostly with it. It appeared in scaly form, breaking out in very small dots and gradually grew larger and white scales formed when about the size of an ordinary match-head. The looks of it was horrible, which made it very unpleasant for me. It itched a little at times.

"I tried several treatments which cured me for a month, but it always broke out again. One day a friend saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the paper and I sent for a sample. They helped me, so I purchased two more boxes of Cuticura Soap and Ointment to complete my cure." (Signed) Walter Mahony, Oct. 22, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free with 32-p Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

For the Collection Box.

Jimmy, aged four, had been sent upstairs by his mother to get ten cents which she intended to use for the purchase of postage stamps.

"Not knowing exactly what a ten-cent piece looked like, Jimmy called downstairs: 'Mother, is ten cents a little piece of money?'

"Yes, Jimmy, the smallest piece of money in my purse."

"Oh, I know now, mother! Church money!"—Judge.

HAD NO RATIONS TO SPARE

Good Reason Why Confederate Commander Was Willing to See His Prisoners Escape.

When, at Galnes Mill in 1862, the Fifth Texas captured two whole regiments of Union soldiers, the Texans were all very proud of their achievement. One of them has described an amusing scene in connection with the surrender.

When the Union officers gave up their swords to Colonel Upton they were so prompt in the duty that he was compelled to lay down the tryspan pan which he carried in place of a sword and hold the weapons presented in his arms.

Just then he noticed a commotion at the far end of the captured regiment. That was near the timber, and a squad of the prisoners were making an effort to pass by "Big John" Ferris of Company B, who stood there unaided, endeavoring to intercept them.

Springing upon a log, the armful of swords dangling about in every direction, Upton shouted:

"John Ferris, what are you trying to do now?"

"I am trying to keep these fellows from escaping," yelled Big John.

"Let them go, you fool!" shouted back Upton. "We'd rather fight than feed them!"

Forget-Me-Not.

"Ah, yes, there are still true and loyal souls in this sad world," murmured the solemn individual in the tortoise-shell glasses. "I used to know a dear girl—it was ten long years ago—and out a year has passed since that she hasn't written me a birthday letter. Always what she writes is about the same: 'Dear Alfred, I can't ever forget, not if I live to be a hundred, the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment to complete my cure.' (Signed) Walter Mahony, Oct. 22, 1912."

"Very sweet of the girl," said the stout young man with the amazing waistcoat, "very sweet of her, indeed."

"Very," replied the solemn individual; "only, you see, she writes that dashed letter to me on a different day every year."

Selfish Constituency.

"Are you going to send your congressman back to Washington?"

"No," replied Farmer Cornsloss.

"We've found out that he's such good company that we've decided to keep him home."

Still a Bachelor.

Patience—What good did it do your brother to get back to Washington?"

Patience—Why, he's been mixed up in four engagements and he hasn't been taken prisoner yet.

WOMAN COULD HARDLY STAND

Because of Terrible Backache, Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I suffered from displacement and inflammation, and had such pains in my sides, and terrible backache so that I could hardly stand. I took six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I can do any amount of work, sleep good, eat good, and don't have a bit of trouble. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to every suffering woman."—Mrs. HANNY FISHER, 1642 Junata Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Another Woman's Case.
Providence, R. I.—"I cannot speak too highly of your Vegetable Compound as it has done wonders for me and I would not be without it. I had a displacement, bearing down, and backache, until I could hardly stand and was thoroughly run down when I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helped me and I am in the best of health at present. I work in a factory all day long, besides doing my housework so you can see what it has done for me. Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. Albert W. Kohl, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I have used Castoria in my practice for the past 25 years. I regard it as an excellent medicine for children."

Dr. Gustave A. Eisenbacher, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "I have used your Castoria repeatedly in my practice with good results, and can recommend it as an excellent, mild and harmless remedy for children."

Dr. E. J. Dennis, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have used and prescribed your Castoria in my sanitarium and outside practice for a number of years and find it to be an excellent remedy for children."

Dr. S. A. Buchanan, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria in the case of my own baby and find it pleasant to take, and have obtained excellent results from its use."

Dr. J. E. Simpson, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."

Dr. R. E. Bakildson, of Omaha, Neb., says: "I find your Castoria to be a standard family remedy. It is the best thing for infants and children I have ever known of, and I recommend it."

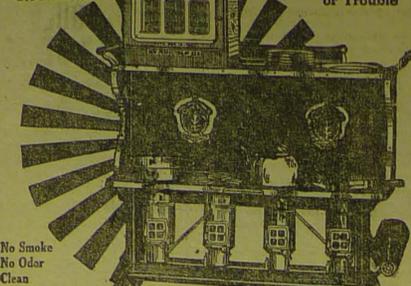

Dr. L. R. Robinson, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria certainly has merit. Is not its age, its continued use by mothers through all these years, and the many attempts to imitate it, sufficient recommendation? What can a physician add? Leave it to the mothers."

Dr. Edwin F. Purdon, of New York City, says: "For several years I have recommended your Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

Dr. N. B. Sizer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I object to what are called patent medicines, where maker alone knows what ingredients are put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use."

U. S. BALKS AT PLAN MEXICANS SUGGEST

DETAIL BECOMES A SNAG TO MEDIATION AT THE NIAGARA FALLS CONFERENCE.

WAY OF NAMING PRESIDENT

Huerta Seeks Recognition by Being Permitted to Name Man Chosen by Arbitrators—Two Hours Arguing Ends in Flat Disagreement.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 11.—The United States is unwilling to extend recognition to a new provisional president...

For more than two hours the mediators and American delegates argued in vain and it was apparent when the conferences ended that what hitherto had been considered a matter of detail had suddenly developed into a snag.

Mediators May Not Insist. The Mexican delegates had not discussed the matter at any length with the mediators when the latter took it up with the Americans.

The ice trust having offered a silver loving-cup for the best excuse which might be invented for raising the price of ice after the cold winter, we hopefully submit the following:

- 1. The ice being so thick and heavy, it costs more to handle it. 2. The blocks are so large that there is great waste in cutting them up for the retail trade.

His Coffin Finished, He Dies. After seeing that his coffin was made, J. Welch, father of Mrs. Nelson, died from the ravages of cancer.

The Fingerless Kind. Lillian Russell, during a recent visit to Atlantic City, was amazed to see the number of slashed skirts that still prevailed on the Boardwalk.

"How do you like my new dress? Fits like a glove, doesn't it?" "Fits like a mitt, she'd better say," murmured Miss Russell, with a smile.

Old Acquaintance. A recalcitrant girl, having danced a pink party frock to ribbons, took what was left of it and made a wonderful lamp shade.

Most Unkind. "I can't help being superstitious about the figure 13," said Mr. Meekton.

Its Definition. "What is a stagewait, pa?" "What, sis; it's the heavy man."

COOKING FLAVORS FROM FLOWERS

By EVA RYMAN GAILLARD. The use of nasturtium seed-pods for giving a special flavor to mixed pickles, or in caper sauce has become quite general and a few housewives know that either the leaves or flower-petals, make a delicious filling for sandwiches.

Roses, too, are coming into favor not alone for their favor but for their coloring matter as well. Jelly made from the green varieties of gooseberries is as good as that made from the raspberries, but does not look good because of its peculiar color—or lack of it.

In a dish with rose petals over and all around it and then closely covered, the butter will absorb the rose flavor to a degree that makes it extra fine for spreading sandwiches—of the dairy kind.

Place a handful of rose petals with a couple of fine, large petals be placed in the sandwich with the edges just showing between the bread slices the effect is very appetizing.

Violets of the fragrant varieties and other flowers may be used in these same ways, and the Chinese use chrysanthemums, carnations and various flowers with stronger flavors in many ways, often using a little of the flowers (finely chopped) with the fillings.

Peach leaves, scalded in the milk used for custards and creams, will give a decided peaches flavor. Remove the leaves when milk reaches the boiling point.

Why won't Miss Wombat dance with you? She seems to avoid you, is she angry with you? "No; but I'm trying to get a chance to propose and it looks as if she knows it."

Tommy—Pop, what is an idealist? Tommy's Pop—An idealist, my son, is a very young man who thinks all women are angels.—Philadelphia Record.

The American Remember Rebels. The American delegates are understood to have pointed out that the Constitutionalists certainly would never agree to a plan of transition which legalized Huerta's status.

There is a possibility that a compromise method will be agreed upon. Pedro Lascurain, who was minister of foreign affairs when President Madero was assassinated, could be reappointed to the cabinet and succeed to the provisional presidency and then appoint as foreign minister the man agreed upon by all parties for the new provisional executive.

The divergence of opinion which developed over the method of succession, illustrated the difficulties before the mediation principals. Predictions that an agreement would soon be reached were abandoned in quarters hitherto optimistic for a quick conclusion.

A point which gave the Mexican delegates much satisfaction was that no war indemnity would be demanded by the United States as a result of the occupation of Vera Cruz. The American government has taken the position that the only reparation it desires for past offenses is the establishment of a sound and stable provisional government which all factions will accept.

AGAINST WOMEN'S POCKETS

New York Newspaper Gives Eight Reasons for Its Opposition to Proposed Move.

- 1. Because pockets are not a natural right. 2. Because the great majority of women do not want pockets. 3. Because whenever women have had pockets they have not used them.

Dodging the Issue. "Why won't Miss Wombat dance with you? She seems to avoid you, is she angry with you?"

Tommy—Pop, what is an idealist? Tommy's Pop—An idealist, my son, is a very young man who thinks all women are angels.—Philadelphia Record.

Not Complimentary. An English showman, while traveling in the north of Ireland, met an old farmer who happened to be a little deaf.

What might have been a serious run-away occurred one day last week when L. A. Larson's team took a notion to run, and kept it up until they reached the corner and fell into the ditch. You should have seen the people run to help, especially Frank Barwick. He ran so fast his dog was left way in the rear. Then Mr. Orten-

DO YOUR SHINGLES

Crack and blow off? That's because they were shingles. Ours are upright, but were out with the grain of the log. No, they don't cost you any more, but they cost a little more and they are worth a whole lot more. If there is a real danger of fire or your roof is flat, then we can fix you up on galvanized or painted roofing and save you some money. Prepared roofing, well I should say, we do carry it, we're the boys who buy it by the carload. Regular, the genuine asphalt roofing. It don't dry out and crack, then we can furnish those galvanized iron cleats to tack along the eave. They make a tight joint and keep the wind from blowing it off.
