GOOD YEAR FOR SANDSTONE

Prospects for The Quarry City Never Looked Better

BIG PAY ROLL COMING YEAR

Kettle River Stone To Be Used in the Big Hill Building at St. Paul

The Kettle River Company has secured the contract for the stone work for the big Hill office building at St. Paul and the prospects for Sandstone never looked better than they do for the coming year. It is estimated that this job alone will give employment to about 250 men during the next ten months to a year and that the increased pay roll from this source alone will be about $15,000 a month.

Work on the job will be begun right after the Fourth though it will take a little time to get the whole force to operating on the work. Of course, there will be lots of other work going on while this job is in the yard—there are over forty men in the paving yards, there are other men in the stone cutting sheds, there are more in the quarrying crews and in the other work. The total pay roll from now until next spring or midsummer ought to approximate upwards of $25,000 or $30,000 per month.

And besides the actual direct effect in present work and increased pay roll, there is the great moral effect from having the biggest and best office building in the Twin cities and the northwest built from a Pine county product—Kettle River sandstone.

District Court News

On Judge Stolberg's arrival from the south Monday forenoon court convened at Pine City for the trial of court cases, the session lasting till Tuesday noon when adjournment was taken. The following cases were disposed of:

Kettle River Co. versus E. Campbell of Sandstone in an action on account. The case was tried and submitted on brief.

The case of Henry W. Daley versus Helen G. Greig of Pine City relating to a matter of drainage between their farms was tried and submitted as was also the case of

H. W. Botholt versus T. S. West. The case of Erick Kuppola vs. Ida Kuppola of Finlayson for divorce went over to the fall term as did also the case of Thos. Spence against Thos. P. Hanna in a suit to quiet title and that of W. F. Thayer versus N. B. Thayer for the same purpose.

The case of W. E. Johnson against J. M. Beck on an action in connection with an attachment was stricken from the calendar.

In the cases of Oscar Teel against Carrie A. Teel and the case of Zwokman versus Zwokman the divorces sought were granted.

The case of an Iowa bank against Jos. Tuman of Mission Creek to recover was argued and taken under advisement.

Judge Stolberg will convene court at Mora, Thursday, and possibly Friday though the session will be a short one.

Keep Treasurer Poferi Busy

Treasurer Poferi has his June settlement about in shape and finds that during the months of March, April and May the people of the county have in $155,655.62 in taxes and that the collections are $26,400.00 larger than for the same period last year.

This year he has had to issue 1000 more receipts than last year, partly on account of more personal payers in the county than last year and in a small degree on account of increased diversity of realty owners.

Of the money received, $143,103.08 was for current taxes, $9,321.93 for delinquent taxes and $3,231.16 for penalties and cost on these latter.

Residents of the county have paid up this year about as last year—probably four-fifths paying while about one-fifth have foregone and allowed their taxes to go delinquent.

Only 70 of our personal property tax payers went delinquent this year—vastly less than has ever been known before. There were only 5 of these in Chisago county but on account of our large proportion of transient population it seems as though the number here is small.

Sublets Contract

C. T. Swain has sublet the contract for the eight miles of road he agreed to build east of the Kettle to Harry Clemons and Emanuel Plaisted for about $900 more than the price of the original contract. Mr. Swain expected at the time of making the contract this road to cost him more than the price asked but donates the excess for the purpose of getting his lands opened up. The bad holes near the Winchitt place have been put in shape for automobile travel and the other work is now going to be pushed. Hinkley Enterprise.

THE FOURTH AT PINE CITY

Only Town in the County That Is Celebrating

A BIG TIME FOR EVERYBODY

The Band Will Play, the Flags Will Fly, the Dogs Will Bark and People Cry

Preparations for the Fourth of July celebration at Pine City are proceeding satisfactorily and it looks as though, if the day be pleasant, that the crowd would break all records in the county. So far as we know, none of the other towns of the county will celebrate with a complete day's program though there will be lots of picnics, large and small, and everyone will in some way observe the nation's birthday.

But there will be something doing at the county seat from early dawn till evening's shades appear—and thereafter. The Firemen of the town are out to see that it is one of the biggest and best ever. It looks as though there would be a good attendance from all over the county.

There isn't a place in this region better fitted to care for a big Fourth of July crowd than Pine City with its fine park, filled with elegant shade trees, grass and benches; its broad sheet of water, offering such fine opportunity in boating, bathing and fishing; and its natural beauty and clean street. And if the day should be unpleasant it has the big armory in which most everyone can find room to enjoy themselves under one roof in most any way.

If you want a sure enough good time, Pine City offers the opportunity.

The Catholic Ladies' Aid will serve dinner and supper in the Inter State lumber shed that day.

Committed to Insane Asylum

Mrs. Nellie Johnson, whose home is just across Kettle river east of Hinkley was committed to Probate Judge Wilcox to the Fergus Falls insane asylum last week Thursday.

She is about 30 years of age and has three small children. Her notion is that she has done a great wrong and she threaten to drown herself.

STABBING MIX AT GRASSTON

Railway Laborers in Quarrel Over Trivial Matters

INJURED MAN IS IMPROVING

State's Witness Disappears, Defendant Pays Costs And Is Discharged

A stabbing affray which might have resulted in the death of one of the participants, occurred at Grasston last Friday when two laborers who were employed with the crew on the gravel train at that place became so enraged that one drew a knife and plunged it into his opponent's left lung, causing a wound about two inches long and two inches deep.

The man who committed the deed was at once arrested by Marshal O.

M. Nelson of Grasston and landed in the lock up at that place and County Attorney King and Sheriff Williams notified. He gave his name as Fred Ritter and named Minneapolis as his home. Dr. Rheim was summoned and treated the injured man, taking him to Dr. Swenson's hospital at Braham. He gave his name as Wm. McDonald of Kalamazoo, Michigan.

On Tuesday morning of this week a hearing was held before Justice E. G. Olson of Grasston and the evidence of the laborers, who were about to leave, taken. The hearing was postponed a week at which time. It is expected that the injured man may be able to give evidence, although complications which are not looked for, may set in.—Mora Times, June 25.

McDonald was discharged from the Braham hospital Tuesday, agreeing to go to Grasston to appear as a witness at the preliminary hearing that day but, somewhere between the cure-house and the court-house, he completely disappeared and when Ritter was arraigned the state was minus its chief witness. The result was that Ritter was discharged on the agreement that he would pay the costs, amounting to nearly $59, which he did.

Old Settlers Picnic

The third annual Old Settlers picnic was held June 24 at Rundquist park, town of Birch Creek. The attendance was not as large as usual although there were about four hundred on the grounds. The committee was disappointed in the speakers that had been expected to be there not being able to keep their engagement as the rain and storm Tuesday night caused many to change their plans. It is a great enjoyment for the few old pioneers to get together once a year and have a good time as their number is reduced each year and soon there will be no more of them left. Prof. Anae'o Yotti and a Vi or Victrola furnished music and the sports were: good tug of war, running, jump and foot races, by boys and girls and all had a good time. In the evening a dance was held in Sur's hall and one more annual picnic passes into history.

Assessors Make Reports

For over a week town and village assessors have been straggling in with their books but in a few towns and most of the villages there is delay and up to last night the following had not reported: Pine City vil., Hinkley vil., Sandstone, Banning vil., Partridge, Arna and Chengvotana.

In most assessment districts the values were kept up to those established last year but a few dropped below and will likely have to be raised by the county board when it meets to equalize, July 20. The total valuation of the county has been increased somewhat.

FIRST BATTLE OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

UNDEER the bows of the fighting at Lexington, Mass., on April 19, 1775, reached London the British government cherished hopes that the rebellion of the American colonists might be put down without force. After that, however, it was seen in England that further fighting was inevitable. The news of the affair which was resolved in London on May 28, when Edward Derby, an American messenger with a petition which was resolved in London. The official dispatches of General Gage were published in London on June 10, of remonstrance, arrived in London. The British ministry began immediately to gear at "the great British army at Boston that has been beaten by a flock of Yankees!"

For the third time within a year members of the National Woman Suffrage association, carrying 300 petitions from 38 states, laid their case before the senate and house at Washington and demanded legislation to insure to women equal political rights with men.

The whole Atlantic fleet will arrive in San Francisco waters in April and remain in the Pacific indefinitely. This announcement, made officially by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, means that from twenty to twenty-five thousand of the sailors of the navy will see the Panama-Pacific International exposition at San Francisco. Rear Admiral Frank Fletcher will be in command.

That the pending Japanese embargo with this government over the treatment accorded Japanese citizens in the state of California through its adoption of an anti-land law, overshadows the Mexican situation in importance, was indicated by state department officials at Washington. It is feared that fresh complications of an international character will be precipitated by the department's answer to the Japanese note of August 30 last.

The naval appropriation bill was approved finally by congress at Washington. It provides for selling to Greece the battleships Idaho and Mississippi and for constructing a super-dreadnaught for the American navy from the proceeds of the sale. This provision is not to conflict with the authorization for two battleships of the first-class also carried in the bill.

President Wilson sent to the senate at Washington the following nominations for postmasters in Illinois: Robert T. Hoos, Palmyra; George H. Franzen, Palmyra; Earnest L. Benson, Galva; David M. Ryan, Geneva; F. B. Peck, Geneva; Robert D. Bowen, Maroa; Eddie M. Chenoweth, Baskin.

Support for President Wilson's legislative program was given by the entire Missouri delegation in the house, headed by Speaker Champ Clark. A letter from the Missouri representatives expressing loyalty "in the struggle you are making to carry out remaining platform of the party to the people" was presented to Mr. Wilson at Washington.

"A new constitution of freedom for business" is the object of the administration trust legislation program. President Wilson declared, addressing a party of Virginia patriots at the White House in Washington. He predicted the country was on the verge of a great business revival.

President Wilson agreed to receive on June 20 a deputation of 700 women suffragists representing the organized citizenship of the country, headed by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley. They will press for his support to the suffrage constitutional amendment.

President Wilson committed the sentences of M. J. Hannan, F. K. Palmer, F. J. Money and W. S. Phelps, four of the dynamiters convicted at Indianapolis. They will be released at once. F. W. Ryan and 37 others must serve their sentences.

Mexican War

The war office at Mexico reports that the final assault on all the troops captured at Zacatecas last that city for Chihuahua after receiving advice that a counter revolution had been started and that the revolutionists had captured Chihuahua City.

The Mexican peace pact as formally accepted at Niagara Falls by United States and Huerta delegates was as follows:

Provisional government to be established by delegates representing the contending factions in Mexico (U. S. government not to be consulted). United States shall recognize provisional government on its constitution in Mexico City, restoring diplomatic relations between the two nations. United States will not demand war indemnity. Amnesty will be proclaimed by provisional government to all foreigners for political activity or offenses committed during the progress of civil war in Mexico. Provisional government will name commissioners to hear claims of foreigners for damages resulting from political activity or result of military acts of the contending factions. Brazil, Argentina and Chile to recognize the provisional government to be established as provided in Article 1.

Gen. Francisco Villa achieved the greatest victory of his remarkable career by the capture of Zacatecas after five days of bloody fighting, which resulted in the practical annihilation of one of the principal forces of the federalists. Fully 2,000 federalists were killed in the fighting and as many wounded. Between 5,000 and 6,000 federalists were taken prisoner by the constitutionalists. Practically all of these will be enrolled in General Villa's ranks. Of General Barron's army of 6,000 men less than 1,000 escaped. General Barron also lost half of his artillery, 6,000 Mauser rifles, a great quantity of ammunition for rifles and cannon. 15 locomotives and 200 freight cars loaded with stores of all kinds, most of which had been looted from establishments of local merchants.

The Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary, and his morganatic wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, were assassinated while driving through the streets of Sarajevo, Bosnia. They were shot to death after escaping a mob that was thrown at their motor car and was armed only by the archduke's own arm. The assassins were captured.

Many persons were killed in an earthquake in the southern part of the island of Sumatra.

ARCHDUKE AND WIFE VICTIMS OF ASSASSIN

Heir to Throne of Austria and His Consort Are Murdered in Bosnia.

BOMB AND PISTOL ARE USED

Anarchists Make Death Sure in Two Attacks in Capital of Bosnia.— Duke Slain While on Way to Visit Aid Injured in Earlier Attempt.

Sarajevo, June 28.—Archduke Francis Ferdinand, nephew of Emperor Francis Joseph and heir to the Austrian throne, and the Duchess of Hohenberg, his morganatic wife, were assassinated yesterday in this city, the capital of Bosnia.

Two attempts were made on the lives of the royal party. A bomb was thrown at the motor car, which was warded off by the archduke, and his car passed before it exploded under the next car, which contained two of his aids, who were slightly injured. Later on a man, said to be a young Serbian student, fired two shots at the royal car, and the archduke and the duchess were killed.

With them at the time was the governor of the city, who escaped injury. The bodies of his murdered companions collapsed across him and protected him.

Latest of Many Murders.

This adds another bad chapter to the life of the aged emperor, Francis Joseph, during whose reign many grim crimes have been committed.

The Archduke Francis Ferdinand and the Duchess of Hohenberg started out this morning in their automobile at the reception in their honor at the town hall.

Suddenly a man named Gavrino, who was standing among the crowd on the sidewalk, threw a bomb at the royal car.

The archduke saw it coming and warded it off with his arm, and the bomb fell to the street. It did not explode until after the archduke's car had passed.

Colonel and Count Wounded.

When the explosion occurred it resulted in the wounding of Col. Moriz, aide de camp to the archduke, and Count Boss Waldeck, who occupied the car immediately behind that of the archduke.

Six persons among the spectators were more or less seriously injured. The bomb was filled with nails and lead, and the explosion was violent. The iron shutters on many shops were pierced by flying fragments and iron filings were scattered about.

The archduke immediately ordered his chauffeur to stop the car. He made inquiries as to what had happened and gave orders to have the injured attended to.

Gavrino sprang into the river Miljevka in an effort to escape, but witnesses of his crime plunged after him and seized him.

Duchess Pleads in Vain.

Following the explosion of the bomb the duchess tried to dismount the archduke from venturing in the motor car again. To ally her fears M. Potokor, governor of Bosnia, said:

"We have no more than one murderer in Sarajevo." Whereupon the archduke decided to go on, and the procession to the town hall was continued. Here the crowd, with the mayor at their head, were awaiting the royal party to bid them welcome.

Refuge to Burgomaster. The royal party entered the hall and the mayor was about to begin his address when Archduke Francis Ferdinand interrupted him, and in an angry manner said:

"Herr Burgomaster, it is perfectly scandalous. We have come to Sarajevo on a visit and a bomb is thrown at us."

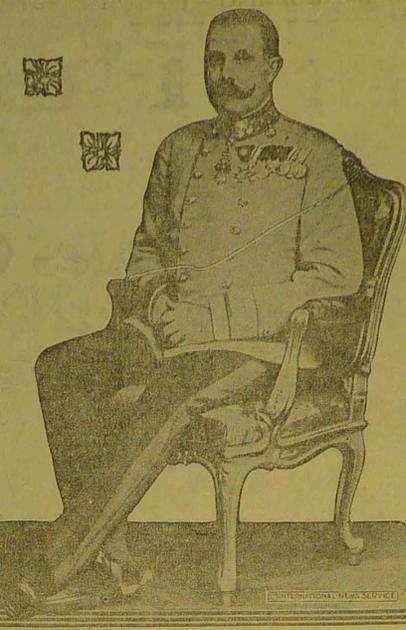

Here he paused a moment and then said: "Now you may go on."

Assassin a Good Marksman.

After making the rounds of the town hall, which occupied half an hour, the archduke and the duchess stood for the garden hospital to visit Colonel Moriz, who had been taken to the hospital in a carriage after being wounded by the bomb.

As the royal car reached by corner of Rudolf street, a man named Gavrilo Princip, who was on the sidewalk, fired two pistol shots at the archduke and the duchess.

The man, who was only a short distance from the car, was a good marksman. The first shot struck the duchess of Hohenberg low down on the right side, while the second bullet hit the archduke in the neck, near the throat, and pierced the jugular vein.

Assassin Well Coached.

The fact that the assassin aimed directly at the archduke's head leads the police to believe that the killing is the result of a well planned plot.

Francis Ferdinand always wore a bullet-proof jacket under his outer garments. This was supposed to be a closely guarded secret known to only those within the immediate circle of the archduke. If this fact was not known to the assassin, the police believe, he would have aimed for the body of his victim instead of at the smaller target, the archduke's head.

The duchess became unconscious immediately and fell across the knees of her husband. The archduke lost consciousness in a few seconds after he was hit.

Murder Result of Plot?

The murders occurred with such rapidity that many persons near the scene did not even hear the shots.

According to some accounts, Princip fired several shots, but only two were effective. These witnesses say he was hiding behind a house and darted forth as the royal car passed. He actually climbed onto the car, according to one story, and the fact that no one stepped him is taken to indicate that the assassinating was the result of a carefully planned conspiracy.

This theory is supported by the fact that a few yards from the scene of the actual assassination of the archduke and duchess an unexploded bomb was found. It had evidently been thrown away by a third assassin after he had seen the success of the second attack on the royal couple.

Princip was seized by police almost as soon as he had fired the fatal shots. Only a few seconds later he prevented him from mobbing by the great crowd which had collected.

The assassins were interrogated by the police and both seemed to glory in their exploit. Princip said he had studied for a time at Belgrade. He declared he had long intended to kill some eminent person from Nationalist motives.

He was awaiting the archduke at a point where he knew the automobile would slacken speed, turning into Franz Josef strasse. The presence of the duchess in the car caused him to hesitate, but only for a moment. Then his nerve returned and he emptied his pistol at the imperial pair. He denied that he had any accomplices.

Princip is eighteen years of age. Nedjko Gavrino is twenty-one. He told the police he had obtained the bomb from anarchists at Belgrade whose names he did not know. He denied also that he had accomplices, and treated the tragedy with cynical indifference.

Warned Against Visit.

The assassinating was during the official visit of Archduke Francis Ferdinand to Bosnia. Before his departure from Vienna on Wednesday M. Jovanovich, the Serbian minister to Austria-Hungary, called on the archduke and expressed doubts as to the wisdom of his journey.

The minister said the country was in a most turbulent condition and the Serbian part of the population might feel for her were overjoyed to see the smiling queen mother carrying her last rest as any ordinary housewife.

People Adjured to Watch Influence Governing Youths—Persons Suspected of Complicity Are Arrested.

Sarajevo, July 1.—After the bodies of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and the duchess of Hohenberg had rested for a time in the chapel of the palace they were transferred to a special train for transportation to Vienna.

Loyalty to Emperor.

"The executive of the district issued a manifesto throughout the city denouncing the crime that had ended the lives of the heir to the Austrian throne and his wife and expressing loyalty to Emperor Francis Joseph and the Hapsburg dynasty, for whose welfare the people of Bosnia and Herzegovina were ready to sacrifice everything.

The manifesto also adjured the people to preserve their youth from the influence of seditious agitators who poisoned the minds of their sons with the subversive and anarchistic ideas.

Martial Law Necessitated.

Anti-Serbian demonstrations were attacked and troops were called out to keep order. These demonstrations necessitated the proclamation of martial law and the commander of the troops at Sarajevo, Francis Joseph, said: "If you love your emperor, then go quietly to your homes."

The majority of the populace immediately obeyed the request and the town became quiet. During the day, however, two bombs were thrown, but only one person was hurt, the injury being slight.

Striking scenes occurred here during local demonstrations in honor of the Austrian imperial family. Long processions of Croats and Moslem youths carrying black flags and portraits of the emperor, the dead archduke and duchess marched through the streets, accompanied by enormous crowds during the national anthem and raising patriotic cheers. Speeches were made at the scene of the tragedy and the people knelt and prayed fervently for the national anthem and the souls of the late archduke and the duchess. There was a display of intense emotion, many weeping and sobbing.

Admission of Assassins.

To the police authorities, Nedjko Gavrino, who hurled the bomb at the archduke's automobile, admitted he was in Belgrade recently. There he obtained the bombs for the purpose of making the attempt to kill the archduke. The student, Gavrilo Princip, whose bullets ended the lives of the ill-fated couple, said recently, "I determined to shoot some high Austrian official in order to avenge Serbia's wrongs." He declared that he knew nothing of Gavrino's presence and that when the bomb exploded he was so bewildered that he missed an opportunity to fire at the archduke when he dropped the first time.

Both prisoners said they were natives of the province of Bosnia and belonged to the orthodox Serbian church. The instigator of the plot, however, yet been discovered, but is believed the assassins had accomplices and several persons suspected of complicity in the crime have been arrested.

Several hundred persons, including the Serbian deputy Athanasius Soia, were arrested during the rioting which lasted until martial law was declared. The rioters came from the most part of Moslems of the lowest class.

MAJOR GENERAL LORD STIRLING

OLUMES have been written lauding the courage or endurance of the American army that braved the winter of 1777-78 at Valley Forge. Monuments have been erected to the memory of men and officers. The site of the camp has been reserved by the state of Pennsylvania and converted into a memorial park, but the women who shared the dangers and sufferings with them who nobly nursed the sick, fed the starving and clothed the naked, are left unrecognized. There are no public records of them, even their quarters had been the shelter of the needy, the stage of the Conway cabal (that was one of the remarkable and dramatic incidents of the war), the cradle of the first aid to the future, and the setting for a love affair of one of the first presidents of the United States, was not included in the state reservation and taken under its protection, but is fast falling into decay, to the shame and reproach of the patriots who are neglecting one of the two houses at Valley Forge that are historically noteworthy, and for a paucity reason unworthy of a great commonwealth.

This little farmer's house was the headquarters of Major General Lord Stirling, one of the most gallant and loyal American soldiers. Born and bred in New York, he had inherited a title from his Scotch ancestors, just at the breaking out of the Revolution. He had served as major and aide-de-camp to General Shirley at the time of General Braddock's defeat. He had been in several battles fought against the British in New York and New Jersey, and was General Washington's most trusted general, as is proved by the numerous letters still preserved in the New York Historical society. The headquarters of this gentleman was shared by his brave wife and daughter, who abandoned their beautiful home at Baskingridge on the hills near Jersey and with the men contended with the discomforts and trials of the celebrated winter spee, in the wind-swept valley on the outskirts of civilization as bravely as any soldier, officer or civilian.

To these heroines of Valley Forge no history points, no centennials are raised, even their deeds are only traditional and crystallized in the memories of a few lovers of history, self-sacrifice and feminine devotion.

It was early in the season when it was decided to camp near Philadelphia, and the army under General Washington moved to the site of Valley Forge, when Lord Stirling wrote to his wife entreating her to join him there, as his duties detained him with his men, but he had been promised comfortable quarters and a large amount of the smallness of the house and its numerous discomforts. For it was a great demand to make of the delicately nurtured women, who had been reared at the luxurious Livingston mansion house, on the Hudson river, or in Mr. Livingston's comfortable home in New York. But Lady Stirling wisely determined that her place was by her husband's side, and she followed him to the camp (for she foresaw the demands that would be made on her hospitality) she and her daughter, Catherine, started in the great family coach, drawn by four gray horses, for the long drive over the Jersey hills to Pennsylvania.

When they reached their destination they found a small farmer's cottage had been assigned to Lord Stirling and his quarters. It was the farthest house from General Washington's headquarters, under a hillside and near a creek. It was a damp and lonely spot, and quite inadequate for the accommodation of a family and servants. But with unflinching good humor and the capability of splendid housewives, the ladies coped with the situation and made the house ready for winter. They filled the window boxes with geraniums, placed them against the door sills and the loose-fitting sashes to keep out the wind, so the house could be more readily kept warm. They passed months on the roof and in the garden before the winter of the same purpose. Then they sent to Baskingridge for many loads of hickory wood before the roads became choked with snow for fuel was scarce, and the soldiers complained all that there was to be found in the neighborhood.

General Washington welcomed them gladly and at once requested that they would assist him to entertain the various people who daily visited the camp, either for political purposes, business or curiosity.

Lady Stirling's household was composed of her husband and his three children, Enoch Edwards, whose name will be recognized by many of his descendants in Philadelphia today. Then there was Lady Kitty and her friend, Miss Nancy Browne, the orphaned granddaughter of Governor Brantford, and these dames may well be called the heroines of Valley Forge, although their ministrations and sufferings found no recognition in the manuscript chronicles of the time, when the Christmas passed early with little merry-making or good cheer, and daily the sufferings of the ill-clad, badly-bowed soldiers were repeated on the situation of the women, for the reports of the medical men became more and more distressing. There were no comfortable hospitals, trained nurses or even necessary clothing, bandages and lint for the poor fellows. Lady Stirling and her daughter were not strangers to the sick rooms, both were capable nurses and had learned from an old Indian woman many salves and remedies made from herbs or simples, not to least of which was the celebrated Seneca oil. John's wort lotion and rattlesnake grease, all of which they had provided themselves with before leaving home. Without hesitation these brave women arranged a division of work among them, so that it fell entirely on their individual efforts, since the whole country was overburdened and there was no relief to be obtained from an organized sanitary commission or red cross association. Quietly and unostentatiously the three ladies divided the work among them to do what was possible to alleviate the increasing horrors about them. To Lady Kitty was assigned a daily visit to the camp, while the delicate Miss Nancy sewed or scraped lint at the bedside, and the head of the house superintendent, the food department and the rations to be doled out every morning. The labor of Malinda, the colored woman from his farm, eight miles black cook, were doubled. She was not only called upon to provide delicate repasts for the Marquis de Lafayette and Major James Monroe, Generals Knox and Greene with many other distinguished visitors, who crowded around Lady Stirling's hospitable table, but a huge soap kettle was hung over the logs in an improvised kitchen, and from that day it was started until the camp was broken, great pails of nourishing soup were freely given to the famishing soldiers who called at the house for food.

HEADQUARTERS OF LORD STIRLING AT VALLEY FORGE

Every week vegetables, poultry, mutton, etc., were brought to Valley Forge by the general's own people, from his farm eight miles from Morristown, N. J., or from the Livingston mansion house, for her heroes of the Revolution had to supply their own rations, and this one in particular, who raised a regiment and equipped it at his own expense, was never repaid for food, or services, by an ungrateful country.

Lady Kitty wrote to her own camp with a basket filled with goods, and was followed by a servant laden with clothing for the soldiers. It was a long, cold walk from her home to the camp, but the young girl braved it in spite of snow and storm. The doors of the camp would be gently knocked at and the inmates questioned as to their most pressing needs. No one can imagine what a blessing these visits were to the suffering men. There was hardly one who was not afflicted with frostbites, and for these Lady Kitty had a sovereign cure learned from the old squaw. This, with other remedies drawn from the herbals, were lavishly given with many a cheery word or laugh at the traveling drug shop. The baskets containing delicacies for the very sick were soon emptied and besides these a man's heart was made glad by the gift of a warm worsted stocking for his neck or a pair of knitted comforters or mittens. Then there were underclothes made from the fleece of the huts of the men, and of these were illustrated by spun in tenants' houses and woven on the looms that groaned and creaked incessantly. This was the work of the women who stayed at the camp, while the men folk struggled with the horrors of army life.

The fingers of the women of the day were never idle. We are told on page 417 of Mr. Irving's "Life of General Washington," that his wife, "set each example to lady visitors by diligently plying her needles knitting stockings for poor, destitute soldiers." And, indeed, women's busy needles eluded far into the night, even when frugal housewives only permitted the blaze of the fire to light the rooms, for candles were luxuries in those days, although they were homemade, and these self-sacrificing women denied themselves every comfort they could, in hopes of being able to relieve the needs of the soldiers, and many a candle that had been made in the family kitchen, and perhaps from bayberries picked by delicate fingers, found its way to the huts of the men. Many of these were illustrated fellows who had obeyed the call to arms, leaving their families in distant parts of the country. "Lady Comforter," as she was called by the men, would ask each one to lay his head on her lap, and she would write letters to his home, to his family or friends. Pen, ink and paper would be whipped from the great reticule hanging by her side, and a dictation taken down, which must have given pleasure and hope at many a desolate fireside. The ladies were cheered in their benevolent work in the camp by the commendations of the commander-in-chief, who could not be sufficiently grateful for these ministrations.

The young aide-de-camp, James Monroe (who was recruiting his strength after a severe wound received during a late battle) was detailed to accompany the young lady on her daily rounds, to report officially on the condition of the men. This duty was not ungrateful to the young Virginian and the one bright spot in the dark days of suffering for the men in camp was watching the courtesy of the future president and his engagement to Miss Nancy Browne was soon duly announced and hurried arrangements made for a wedding in the spring at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Van Horne. She could not have asked

General Washington advice on the subject of her marriage, or she would have been saved much misery and mortification. It is said that when Nelly Curtis announced her engagement to the general said: "Question yourself, is she a man of sense? For be assured a sensible woman can never be happy with a fool." James Monroe was no fool, but the end of this romantic courtship is another story.

It is more than probable that a steady supply of food and clothing reached the camp from many of the nearby places, for it is certain that Carlisle had a number of women, headed by Mrs. John Armstrong, who employed every leisure moment knitting stockings or scraping lint for the soldiers. This lady was born in Ireland and had married an Irishman, but was devoted to her adopted country and countrymen. There were other Pennsylvania women who sacrificed time and comfort for the brave defenders. Mrs. John Bull was approached by Lord Howe, who tried to bribe her to induce her husband to join the English army and desert his command as colonel of the First Pennsylvania, but she proudly refused. Her descendants doubtless would be proud to read the unpublished history preserved by the writer.

Mrs. Millin (Sarah Morris) sent stockings of her own making to be distributed among the soldiers, writing: "In this way do I throw in my mite to the public good. I know this—that as free I can die but once, but as a slave I may live many a day, and I have the pleasure to assure you that these are the sentiments of my sister Americans." Those women who could do so visited the camp, and Mrs. Andrew Porter (Elizabeth Parker) rode there on horseback, to see her husband, who had headed a party that he never wore a garment not made by his wife. A story is told of him that at a dinner at Valley Forge General Knox said to him: "Porter, how does it happen that you look so genteel while the rest of us are in rags, although you receive no better pay than we?" To this Captain Porter replied: "My wife took this coat apart and turned it inside out, so you see it now as good as new," and then went on to relate how she had visited him but had lost her way, when she met a gentleman out of uniform, of whom she asked directions. The officer tightened the girths of her saddle and stirred her horse, which, Mrs. Porter proudly declared, was home bred. Then walking beside the rider, the person conducted the lady to her husband's quarters, raised his hat and strode away.

After a warm welcome, Captain Porter said: "Well, my lady, you came into camp highly escorted by the commander-in-chief." Lady Kitty said she had seen the general on hand during the dark days at Valley Forge, which culminated in 1799 by her marriage to Col. William Dyer, when General Washington gave the bride away, for he felt that no honor was too great to be lavished on the heroine of Valley Forge.

WHY NOT?

Mrs. Platte—I see that 21 women are employed as railway brakemen and 10 as baggage-men in the United States.

Mr. Platte—Well, I see no reason why women shouldn't brake and smash things as well as men.

THE CAUSE.

"I looked at the man and saw his face grow darker and darker."

"What was the matter with him?"

"He was blinking up at a minstrel show."

DRAINAGE COST IS ESTIMATED

Red Lake Indian Reservation Figures Given—Would Be Only $1.56 an Acre.

Minneapolis—Land on the Red Lake Indian reservation may be drained for $200,000, or an average of $1.50 for each of the 230,000 acres affected, according to the report of the drainage survey of the reservation, made to the house of representatives. This improvement would be made by carrying the water to Red Lake and by means of a dam would not endanger the surrounding land with an overflow, according to the report.

In a surrounding district, there have been 500 miles of ditches and good roads built, with 1,500 culverts and 22 steel bridges. This work has been rapidly followed by the state. The drainage land value and the same conditions exist and the same results could be gained, on the reservation, according to the report of the drainage survey. It is estimated at 13 cents per yard per cubic foot and the smaller ditches are estimated at 15 cents per yard.

Red Lake has been pointed by two bodies of water is so situated that the depth of the water may be increased from 2 to 5 feet without endangering the surrounding land. The ditches have a combined area of 430 square miles. The decided fall of the past, there being a fall of 17 inches from October, 1907, to last year, makes the increasing of the depth possible. The report mentions that timber in the section, outside of the reservation, is practically all cut, permitting the erection of a storage dam to solve the question of floods of Red Lake river.

"DON'T SELL FARM," HE SAYS

Farmers of Southern Minnesota Urged to Hold Land for Future Increase.

Rochester—The Rochester district midsummer meeting of the Southern Minnesota Development league, held here was the most successful of any thus far held of the present series. In the opinion of league officers, nearly 5,000 persons were at Mayo park to hear the speakers. The Rochester gathering was particularly gratifying to the league officers in that it was made up almost exclusively of farmers.

E. T. Winship, for 29 years a farmer at Owatonna, urged more and better farming.

"When I began farming I had difficulty in getting cows to produce 160 pounds of butterfat a year, but now I have a herd of more than 40 cows which average more than 400 pounds and some of them as high as 500 pounds," he told the farmers.

"Don't try to farm too much land," he advised. "A man is a speculator who does the better have 20 acres and farm it well than 600 not taken care of."

Thomas Cashman of Albert Lea urged farmers not to sell out. "Don't sell the old farm," he said. "Keep a part of it, if not all. In the next 20 years land is going to increase from $100 to $200 an acre. You will need it for your children and grandchildren. If you move to town you will become discontented and you will die soon," he told the farmers.

MINNESOTA CHAIRMEN NAMED

Primary Nominees Gather at St. Paul and Select State Committees.

St. Paul, June 26.—The nominees of four political parties met at the state capitol and selected the committees which will have charge of the coming campaign in Minnesota.

The selections for chairman were: U. B. Bjornson, Minnesota, of the Republican state central committee; Clarence W. Halber, St. Paul, of the Progressive state central committee; H. E. Larson, Minneapolis, Socialist state central committee.

No action was taken by the Democratic nominees because of the refusal of Martin O'Brien, present chairman, to accept the office again. W. S. Hammond, their candidate for governor, was given the authority to pick a man.

The various state committees were named. Governor A. O. Ebochart announced that he would support W. E. Lee, the republican nominee who defended him for re-nomination for governor.

INJURED CHILDREN MAY DIE

Two More Fatalities May Be Added to Death List of Recent Tornadoic Storm.

Anoka—Life toll might by the wind storm of Tuesday night may be increased by the deaths of the two children, a boy of 4 and a girl of 6, of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Broadbent who live midway between Inwood and Littleton. The back of the little boy was broken and the girl sustained internal injuries.

The farmhouse of the Broadbents was torn to pieces and all the members of the family were injured by falling walls and timbers. Mrs. Broadbent was bruised and cut about the head and shoulders. Mr. Broadbent's injuries are painful but not serious.

Practically all the buildings on the farm were wrecked. Crops in the vicinity were damaged. The town of St. Francis was badly wrecked by the wind, but fortunately no one was seriously injured.

BODIES OF CANCIEFS FOUND

Minneapolis—Tra D. Buck, who is father of Miss Ethel Buck, who was drowned in Lake Calhoun Friday morning, found his daughter's body at 3 p. m. Sunday. The body of Morris Noleen, drowned with Miss Buck, was recovered an hour earlier. Together with relatives and park policemen, Mr. Buck had been at the lake almost continuously since the overturned canoe was found Friday. It fell to Bert Beals, uncle of Miss Buck, to locate the body. With him were Mr. C. Vosey, Albert Johnson and Patrolman Otto Broberg.

MISSING NURSE IS FOUND

Duluth—Telling wild, demented stories of her efforts to escape searching parties, Miss Marie McGovern, the missing nurse of the Novartis sanatorium, for whom hundreds of Duluth men searched several days, asked for a drink at the farm house of Ingebert Bjorkan, 12 miles from here. She was taken to St. Luke's hospital. Physicians are confident she will recover.

MISSISSIPPI "FORTY-NINERS" DEAD

Minneapolis—Last week two of the "Forty-niners" of old St. Anthony, James Mullen is dead. With his wife, who came to Minnesota with him, and with Cath D. Dyer, a permanent resident, he had a part in almost all the history of this city, and in the years of his prime he had been one of the leaders in the making of the history. Now only four of the "Forty-niners" of Minnesota remain. The infirmities of age were the cause of his passing. He would have been 90 years old had he lived to July 21.

PRESIDENT OF EPWORTH LEAGUE

Pipestone—At the annual convention of the Marshall District Epworth league here St. James was selected for the meeting place in June, 1917.

Rev. P. J. Hunsaker of Lake Benton was chosen president, Gladys Hopkins of Fairfax, Bertie Cone of Fairmont, Mrs. M. Castelline of Jeffers and Grace Chapman of Redwood Falls, were the presidents. Ethel A. Sargent of Heron Lake, secretary, and Howard Yarkes of Windom, treasurer. Rev. M. Hanson was also elected delegate to the national convention.

CHINAMAN MAY GET TO STAY

Hibbing, Minn., Oriental Wins First Point in Effort to Remain in America.

Duluth—The hard fight of Siu Tak Sam, a Hibbing, Minn., Chinaman, to obtain his right to stay in this country has been successful for the present, as Judge Pace Morris ordered that Sam be released from the custody of the immigration officials. This does not mean, however, that Sam's right to be in the United States is established, for Judge Morris' decision does not cover the ground. The ground does not mean that the writ of habeas corpus brought by Sam through his attorney, John H. Norton, should be allowed to stand. The ground that the action of the United States was brought under the wrong act. Sam came to the United States in 1912 under a certificate that he was a merchant, but although he has been in the country over a year and a half he has taken no steps in that direction, but has worked as a laborer in a lumber yard. The United States department of labor issued a warrant for his deportation under the immigration law and Sam contested the right of his department to do so.

The case is the first of its kind to be tried in the state, and, according to Judge Morris' decision, this is a matter of which immigration officials and the Chinese exclusion act, which provides for the exclusion of Chinese labor.

TO GET SILO EXPERIENCES

Farm Society Agents Launch Campaign in West Central Minnesota.

Morris—The work of county agents in west central Minnesota is pointing the way more and more toward the establishment of a permanent system of agriculture. Through their united efforts they are constantly blazing the trail with factors that make for profitable farming.

Their work alone is not responsible for all increased activity for betterment in the region, for there are many agencies promoting the cause, but many things have been accomplished that have been accomplished by them since the first county agent began work in the state. They have greatly stimulated the interest in growing in live stock production and improvement of herds through the importation of pure bred and high grade cattle; an immense acreage of alfalfa is being secured under the section; an effective plan of hog cholera control has been put into effect.

Now comes the announcement of a survey of experiences with silos and silage to be made throughout the various counties. The supervisor of county agents, Frank E. Balmer, of Morris, has prepared a comprehensive survey blank to be used in securing the experience of men who have erected silos and are the users of feed put up in this way.

THURSDAY, JULY 2, 1914.

Editor Colby, of Sandstone who is generally known as the brains of the county printing combine, ran much stronger in and around Hinckley in his candidacy for county superintendent of schools in the recent primaries than in any other part of the county. The printing combine is not so popular in the south end.

Presbyterian Church Notes

The Communion of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated on Sunday morning, June 6th at 11:00 o'clock. Let all the members of the church and all followers of the Lord Jesus Christ who worship regularly with us, though members of some other church, make a special effort on this day after the 4th of July to be present and join with us in this service.

If there are any who desire to unite with the church either by letter or on profession of faith kindly send word to the pastor sometime during the week. He will be glad to call and talk with you about the matter.

If anyone desires to present their children for baptism they may do so at next Sunday morning services. Kindly send us word. There will be special music at this service. A preparatory sermon will be preached Everybody come.

Evening service Sunday as usual at 8:00 p. m. The subject of the sermon will be, "What does it mean to be a Christian?" All are invited.

The Sunday school and church picnic was held last Thursday at the Asplund cottage and grounds at Cross Lake. The day was beautiful and a large crowd attended.

The larger of the naval militia boats carried a large number to the grounds and there was a steady stream of launches back and forth all day. There were games of all kinds, boating and bathing for old and young. About 150 were served at lunch time under the trees. And now we look forward to next year's picnic.

LIST YOUR LANDS!

We are the people that raised the valuation of your land by winning the Grand Championship on Wheat, Corn and Oats at the Minnesota State Fair, also at Columbia, S. C., and Dallas, Texas. If you have wild or improved lands for sale, list them with us.

The ice cream social given by the young men of the church at the Harte home, Tuesday evening, was a success in spite of the wavering weather that brought on a severe storm just when folks would be going, and of course it had to be held indoors. There was a good crowd and a good time and over $14 was taken in, more than half of which was net. The young men have the money for the new chandeliers for the church and ordered them yesterday.

Mrs. Robt. Wilcox is hostess today, to the ladies aid.

Constitutional Proceedings.

The village council met in special session last Saturday evening when the applications of Peter Engel, Chas. Stekl and Jas. Hurley for liquor licenses for the ensuing year were favorably acted on.

Wednesday, July 1, was declared a Civic holiday for working on the streets and roads of the village.

They also agreed at that meeting to bear one half of the expense of opening the road on the line between the village and Pine city town east from the Voss farm to the Brunswick road.

Albin Larson and his bride of Sandstone are here to spend the 4th at the home of his brother, Oscar.

Alof Olson and Minnie Anderson of Sandstone were joined in wedlock in the office of Clerk of Court Gunn by Judge Wilcox, Monday afternoon.

The first annual Midsummer Festival of the I. O. G. T., 4th district grand lodge will be held at Rush City, Saturday and Sunday, July 4 and 5.

German Luth. Church Notes

German services will be held in the church at 10 a. m. this coming Sunday and English services at 7:30 p. m.

See Them About It

The Corn and Clover Land Co has been incorporated recently. H. W. Harte as president and F. R. D. L. as secretary and treasurer, with office at Pine City, Minnesota.

The business of this firm is buying and selling real estate. If you have a farm for sale or wish to buy one we should be glad to figure with you. We are doing an extensive line of advertising and have many prospective buyers for various kinds of land, improved and unimproved. Your farm may be the one that suits them.

Can't Use the Fees

The Supreme Court last Friday declared the State Game and Fish commission is not entitled to the use of $38,000 collected since August 1 last from the purchasers of resident hunting licenses and sustains in every particular the action of State Auditor Samuel G. Iverson in refusing to audit vouchers drawn against this fund by the commission.

The result of the decision will be that the state will be without game protection until August 1, next, when the next annual appropriation becomes available. The commission has exhausted its fund for the payment of the salaries of wardens, and the thirty-seven now on the payroll can get nothing if their services during the next seven weeks.

"The situation is most serious, and I do not know what will do," said H. A. Rider, executive agent of the commission. "The last Legislature failed to give us as much as we had previously had for game protection, purposes and we thought it was the intention to allow us to use the license fees as heretofore."

The State auditor contended that the last Legislature when it abolished all standing appropriations intended that the license fees, with those collected by other departments, should all go into the general funds of the state. The commission argued that a specific exemption was made in its case, but the Supreme Court upholds the auditor. Justice Hallam wrote the opinion, and the syllabus follows:

Chapter 140, Laws of 1913, abolishing standing appropriations, except where there is a provision for a tax levy or fees or receipts for any purpose set apart or a special fund, abolished the standing appropriation of hunters' license fees to the use of the Game and Fish commission. Such fees were never "set apart in a special fund" so as to be excepted from the operation of that act.

2. Money received by auditors before August 1, 1913, and remitted to the state treasurer after that date are not available by the commission for payment of expenses incurred during the fiscal year ending July 31, 1914.

Chapter 140, Laws of 1913, is not open to the objection that the subject matter of the act is not expressed in its title, and it is constitutional.

Writ quashed.

Opinion by Justice Hallam.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Pine City CHAUTAUQUA

Begins July 6th

and brings five days of high grade entertainment of great educational and inspirational value.

The Chautauqua is no longer looked upon as a luxury. It is now classed as a necessity. And it is a necessity if you desire to keep up with the procession.

The Vawter System management has succeeded in keeping the price down within reach of all. Anybody can afford to buy a season ticket.

Study the Program Booklet You will be amazed at the wonderful list of platform talent. You can see and hear every one of the ten double programs for the small price of a season ticket.

Money Never Bought So much as at a Vawter system Chautauqua. There are five special musical organizations, one for each day. There are clever entertainers who know how to drive care away. There are able lecturers with messages of real uplift and power.

The Chautauqua affords to thousands of people their only chance for a real vacation. It is the welcome opportunity to get away from the ceaseless grind of every day work and worry.

The Chautauqua is the promoter of progress. It is filled with enthusiasm and cheers up the human spirit. The lecturers impart information of value and the music and entertainments make you glad you are alive.

The Chautauqua comes but once a year. Be certain to arrange your other affairs so you cannot be cheated out of Chautauqua.

Get the Boys and Girls interested. The entertainment is clean and wholesome. There are no suggestive utterances, no immoral jests. The influence is all in the right direction.

Secure Season Tickets and get ready to enjoy to the full the full five days. You owe it to yourself. Don't fail.

Season Tickets Bought From the Local Committee in Advance are 50c Cheaper

Pine City News

Miss Marie Vaughn of St. Paul is here visiting her Aunt Kitty.

A baby boy was born at the home of Chas Atkinson last Saturday.

A baby girl was born at the home of Adam Schlemmer, the popular Henriette butcher, on June 30.

An ice cream social will be given at the F. O. Brekke home in the Milburn district, Sunday afternoon and evening, July 5. Everyone is invited.

Invitations have been issued announcing the approaching marriage of Miss Emma Hoefler, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hoefler, to Mr. Alvin Leubker.

Chas. Nason has moved his family back from their Idaho home to Thief River Falls where they formerly resided and their many friends in this region are glad that they are closer and hope for a visit here.

August Wickstrom brought in five hogs last Thursday that tipped the scales at an even ton. One of them, a 3 year Chester White that captured 1st prize at the fair last fall, weighed 700 pounds. The others were grade yearlings.

Geo. Sherwood is suffering from that common complaint—a "stitch in his back." No, the report that he attempted to push over the pillars of the temple is not true. He merely lifted a couple of pounds of dirt on the end of a shovel over at the house—and this is the result.

Sheridan Greig was down, Tuesday, from his home about 25 miles east of Hinckley to bring in the Arlon town assessment books and visit his parents. He reports the roads out his way mostly under water and many of the small bridges and culverts out. The Kettle, also, was way over its banks and the water on the meadows on the east side of the bridge ran well into the buggy box as he came through.

The W. C. T. U. ladies were to have met and picniced at the Asplund cottage on Cross lake, Tuesday afternoon, but the storm that day put an end to the plan and they ate their lunch at the home of Mrs. A. W. Piper instead. The husbands of the members had been invited to the feast so they also enjoyed the spread and about 30 were taken care of.

Chautauqua begins next Monday. The tent will be in the lower park, near the water tank. Have you secured your season ticket yet? This is the last call at $1.50 per as after the doors open the price will jump to $2. And on tickets sold after the doors open the men who got the Chautauqua for Pine City will get no credit on their $600 guarantee. So if you want to help protect the men who got the Chautauqua here, buy your tickets now.

Frank W. Dahlen and Miss Mathilda H. Petzke were married at high noon on June 20 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Petzke, in Pockegama township by Rev. Leubker. The house was filled with relatives and close friends of the young couple and after the ceremony a bounteous wedding dinner was served and joyful festivities indulged in. We join their hosts of home friends in very best wishes for a long and happy life.

On account of Tuesday being regular Monthly Fair Day, the Good Roads closing which had been set for that date was called off and set for yesterday instead. The fact that most of the stores and other business houses were on half rations, many of the bosses and clerks being in the street gang, gave the streets a unusually industrious appearance. A good deal of dirt was hauled from the Army and lots of bad holes on the streets filled, ditches opened up and much good accomplished in the way of doing away with water and mud about town. The day was certainly a beauty and the results would have cost the village into the three figure column if paid for. It tickled the hardened veterans to see some of the indoor flyers sweating in the sun—but everyone approves the results. Those who accomplished the work are entitled to a lot of credit.

See George Bierwood for draying. He will do it quickly and well.

Misses Jennie and Fannie McCormack of Rush City, visited friends here last Friday.

A. M. Challeon left last Saturday for a few days at the Shakopee mud baths, returning Monday.

Switches made from your hair combings.—Write Bessie M. Carey, Box 34, R. F. D. 1, Pine City, 43-3

Miss Eva Martin of North Branch who visited for the past two weeks with relatives and friends here, returned to her home Sunday.

For Sale—One black two year old mule, weight now 1100 lbs.—Inquire Eman Kabat, Brookpark, Minn., Route 3. 42-4

Ludwig Olson of Springfield, Minn., was here the latter part of last week, visiting relatives and looking after his land south east of town.

Mrs. Albert Glanville came down from Proctor last Friday for a visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Davis. Mr. Glanville is expected down for the 4th.

Mrs. A. H. Lambert returned Monday from Two Harbors where she went to attend the wedding of her son Bernard. Mrs. John Lambert came down with her for a visit.

A special dinner will be served at Inglenook Inn, every Sunday at 50 cents per plate. Reservations should be made by postal or phone before Saturday night.—Mrs. Leslon. 42-1f

Numerous friends in the county think often of Hon. F. A. Hodge who is undergoing medical treatment at New York city and are glad to know that he is improving some under its effect.

Alvin F. Leubker arrived home last Saturday from Holloway where he has been teaching. He expects to remain here a month or so and when school opens in the German Lutheran parochial schools at Chicago, shortly after Sept. 1st, will be employed there.

Pat Kane was down from Bruno before the board of county commissioners, last Friday, collecting a cool thousand on the contract he is putting through on State Road 9 in 44-16 and 17. Pat is his own winking boss on the job but he is just as good and fleshy as ever.

About 20 attended a farewell party in honor of Miss Thresa Mavis at the home of Miss Edith Hamlin, Friday evening and a fine time was had by all. Misses Thresa Mavis, Edna, Alma and Bertha Schultz left Saturday for Hopkins, where they expect to remain for the summer.

Jonas Lindquist from east of town returned Saturday from a three weeks' stay at the mud cure baths at Shakopee where he was greatly improved in health. Before he went down he was confined to his bed by rheumatism for a considerable time and friends are glad to see him around again.

Harry Davis and family expect to remove temporarily, to Little Falls, Minn., right after the 4th and their home near the Asplund house has been rented, furnished, to O. B. Champagne for the summer. Mr. Davis will remain in the employ of the stove company that has been operating in this region.

Mrs. G. B. Anderson arrived from Minneapolis, Tuesday, to occupy the family cottage at lake Pockegama for a month. Mr. Anderson is in Norway and John A. Lind of North Dakota, a nephew of Mrs. Anderson, will deliver the oration at the unveiling at Christiansa on July 4 of the Lincoln monument presented by his state to Norway.

Carl Buselmeir and family came down from Beroun last Saturday and remained over a day with relatives here, departing Sunday afternoon on their way to Portland, where they lived up to a year ago when he came back to take the saloon at Beroun, and here they expect to make their future home. Mrs. Gerow accompanied them as far as St. Paul.

SYNOPSIS.

Joseph Hayward, an ensign in the United States army, on his way to Fort Harman, meets Simon Gray, a renegade whose name has been connected with all manner of atrocities, also headed for Fort Harman. Hayward is a British officer, Hamilton, Hayward's superior, is a French officer, and the latter is a French officer. Hayward's superior is a French officer, and the latter is a French officer. Hayward's superior is a French officer, and the latter is a French officer.

country except by British officers. What is that red garment lying on the box? I thought so; an English infantry jacket, made in London, and it never belonged to D'Avray." He held it up. "It was a chance to see a French girl back at Fort Harman."

I drew up the bench, and sat down. "There is more to this than you have discovered, truly," said I, determined to explain. "Do you chance to see a French girl back at Fort Harman?" He shook his head.

I knew you would be here; that was why I came alone—that was why I took to each other, and no longer lie." He stared at her face in the starlight, my memory suddenly reverting to the dead man within.

CHAPTER VII.

Mademoiselle Meets Her Father. "There was evidently no use of my groping longer in the dark. The girl was in earnest; she firmly believed me to be another. There could be no understanding between us until this mystery of identity was cleared away. Her discovery of me here had only served to increase her hallucination."

SCANDINAVIAN NEWS

SUMMARY OF IMPORTANT HAP- PENINGS IN FAR OFF NORTHWEST.

ITEMS FROM THE OLD HOME

Resume of the Most Important Events in Sweden, Norway and Denmark—Of Interest to the Scandinavians in America.

Negotiations are in progress between Holland, Switzerland, Denmark and Sweden and they will ultimately include Norway and Belgium. They contemplate an entente with the provision that in the event of any small nation being attacked by a large nation, all the other members of the alliance will attack the aggressor. As the small nations of Europe have a combined force almost as large as that of Germany, such an entente would result, it is contended, in the safety of the minor nations. Heretofore these have felt that their security lay in the jealousy of the powers, but ever since Japan became a world factor Holland has been in terror of losing her colonies. Sweden also has been in fear of Russia.

SWEDEN.

The Stora Kopparberg Mining company has had a prosperous year. The net profit was $1,300,000. A little over one-half of this amount was paid as dividend to the stockholders, and the balance was transferred to the accounts for the coming year. The production of gold at the Falun mine was 45 pounds, which was an increase of seven pounds as compared with the output of the previous year.

NORWAY.

The Norwegian farmers proved to be most effective strike breakers the other day. The drivers for the millers and flour dealers at Trondheim suddenly struck because they could not have their wages raised from seven to seven and a half dollars a week. Just at that time the farmers needed the millers' flour to change their stock. They did not hesitate, but scores of them went to the cities and hauled the goods from the mills. The farmers themselves took a hand. The strikers gathered around the mills and started to see the fun when party merchants were to shoulder large sacks of flour and feed that the merchants made the sacks swing in such a lively fashion that many an "expert" striker strove to smile, and it took them time to get to work on their mill and return to work on the old terms.

Miss Selma has become one of the "eighteen immortals" by being made a member of the Swedish academy. She is to occupy seat No. 7, which was left vacant by the death of A. G. Gullberg. No woman ever admitted to this august body before. The former occupants of seat No. 7 were F. A. Von Fersen, A. G. Gullberg, C. A. Haerberg, V. E. Svedolus, N. F. Sander and A. T. Gellerstedt.

The Tehran Rad, the only purely Persian newspaper of any importance, contained the following editorial when General Hjalmarson returned to Sweden. "General Hjalmarson is the type of a just and right-minded European. The general and his amiable staff of Swedish officers deserve the gratitude of the Persians on account of their self-sacrificing endeavors."

Archbishop Soderblom will be officially installed in office the 8th of November. The ceremony will take place in the Upsala cathedral. Archbishop Soderblom is to be consecrated by Bishop Billing, by whom he was ordained for the ministry 21 years ago.

Professor Eucken, the recipient of a Nobel prize, has proposed in an American periodical that an American committee of the Nobel fund be established for awarding prizes for achievements in the fields of religion, law, philology, history, biology and sociology.

The Russian government has given orders to have three different parcels of land at Abo, Finland, expropriated for the use of the navy. The parcels are only a short distance from Sweden. It is supposed that wireless stations will be put up at Abo.

It is said that the temperance organizations of Sweden have about five thousand fewer members now than a year ago. The national order of Good Templars has suffered the greatest loss proportionately.

The work of raising funds for the Swedish-American steamship line is making satisfactory progress.

The farmers' convention, which mustered 30,000 men at the Stockholm demonstration in favor of strengthening the defense, is not doing any real work just now, but the organization is kept up so that it may be ready to act whenever it seems necessary.

The Swedish chaperon in Paris is going to stay before Kaiser Wilhelm at Abo, Abo, Finland, Germany. The arrangements for the concert were made by Count Taube, Swedish minister in Berlin.

FINLAND.

The Russian government has determined to use all its power to prevent Finland from competing in the Olympic games at Berlin as a nation. General Stolypin, the Russian general, will soon issue a decree dissolving the Finnish Olympic committee. This action is partly due to the general Russian policy of supporting national aspirations, partly to a desire to have Russia make a better showing at Berlin than she did at Stockholm in 1912. All who attended the games at Stockholm will remember the contrast between the splendid delegation from Finland, and the inferior representatives of the Russian nation. The Finns appeared under their own flag as a separate body, with a great assemblage of athletes, gymnasts and swimmers, while the Russian women who took part in the two last branches of the sports were, like the women from the other Scandinavian countries, one of the most attractive features of the Olympic games.

As the small nations of Europe have a combined force almost as large as that of Germany, such an entente would result, it is contended, in the safety of the minor nations. Heretofore these have felt that their security lay in the jealousy of the powers, but ever since Japan became a world factor Holland has been in terror of losing her colonies. Sweden also has been in fear of Russia.

Holland has also decided to build five dreadnaughts which have become the nucleus of a new small nation's navy when it was decided to postpone action until England could determine what was to be the warship of the future, the dreadnaught or the submarine. It is not expected that such an entente as that in view from ruminating their own show at Berlin remains to be seen. At Levallois, the Russian ambassador at Paris, is said to have requested the Olympic committee to refuse to recognize Finland or to receive the Finnish delegate. Baron von Willebrand, but his arguments were without result. The only way which Russian officials could carry out their policy would be to prevent the Finns from going to Berlin. If they could induce them to go under the Russian banner Russia would be one of the formidable competitors among the nations.

The Norwegian farmers proved to be most effective strike breakers the other day. The drivers for the millers and flour dealers at Trondheim suddenly struck because they could not have their wages raised from seven to seven and a half dollars a week. Just at that time the farmers needed the millers' flour to change their stock. They did not hesitate, but scores of them went to the cities and hauled the goods from the mills. The farmers themselves took a hand. The strikers gathered around the mills and started to see the fun when party merchants were to shoulder large sacks of flour and feed that the merchants made the sacks swing in such a lively fashion that many an "expert" striker strove to smile, and it took them time to get to work on their mill and return to work on the old terms.

Peter A. Grimes, convicted of forgery in Shanghai and on his way to San Quentin penitentiary, California, shanghaied Alfred Johansen, a Norwegian sailor in Nagasaki, Japan, substituted the sailor for himself and escaped.

Not until Johansen, in a cell at San Quentin, told his story to a fellow Norwegian was it known that an innocent man was probably serving the three-year term of Grimes. Johansen does not speak English.

A fashion from the Orient at Nansanki was in a salon and drank with three men who approached me. After two drinks I remembered nothing until I woke up in a cell at San Quentin. I tried to explain, but no one understood me," said Johansen, through an interpreter.

Immediately inquiry was set on foot. It was found that Grimes, under the name of James H. Rodgers, had served a term in San Quentin before and was released August 10, 1912. Prison officials looked at Johansen and then at a photograph of Grimes, alias Rodgers. There was a resemblance, but it was slight. When Johansen saw the picture of the former convict he said:

"That is one of the three men I drank with in Nansanki."

DENMARK.

A hooper of carrier pigeons lost a valuable bird at Borneo when he was training a number of them almost two years ago. He gave up the bird as lost long ago. This summer he noticed what he thought was a stray bird among the others, but when he came close up to it he suddenly recognized it as the bird that he lost five years ago. It was a very old bird, and the conditions for at first it did not want to eat the food given to the other birds.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

I stood staring at it, and then down into the face of the dead man. D'Avray: Her name! The same name she had given me! The face of the girl came back instantly to memory, distinct, living. There was a familiarity, a resemblance, now that I had thus connected the two together. She had told me her father was a French officer—but dead, killed in action. Perhaps she thought so had been deceived in this belief. Yet I was convinced now that this was the man; that he had been living up to a few hours before, and had met his fate here in the wilderness by a foul and treacherous blow. Her father! The knowledge seemed to shock me, to leave me helpless. I could not direct my mind from the remembrance of the daughter. Where would she be that night? Did she harbor her in the dark woods with Gray? She did know about this hidden cabin? This island rendezvous? Surely this could be no mere coincidence of name and history, yet what was the mystery that enveloped both? Why was this Captain D'Avray hiding here, and why did she deny that he was still living? The more I thought, the more tangled grew the skein. Brady called me, and I stepped back into the other room, still dazed, grasping the medal in my hand.

"Well, what is it?" he asked gruffly. "I told him briefly, describing the appearance of the body, and handing him the medal. He turned it over in the light of the torch, and said: 'French, isn't it? What does it say?'"

"An army decoration for gallant conduct given to Capt. Raoul D'Avray, Fifth Cuirassiers."

"You think it belonged to him?" "Beyond doubt; it was pinned to his shirt—the one thing he treasured in his life."

"D'Avray," he repeated, as if the name had familiar sound. "I've heard of him before. Wait a bit; now I have to be commanded Hamilton's Indians at Vincennes when Clark took the town. I saw him once."

"He got to his feet with my help, and raised himself to his feet, looking infinitely at the upturned face, as I held the torch extended.

"That's the man," he said soberly. "I remember the white beard, and the tall nose the Wyandots called him the

"And her mother?" "A woman of the Wyandots, but a half-breed."

"D'Avray! The same as the dead man yonder! And he was a soldier. 'T is an odd case. What else do you know about it?"

"Precious little, indeed, for she seemed an adept in deceit. She even pretended to know me, and actually spoke my name before it had been told me. How she could do this I do not know. The little mix is full of tricks, but plays them so subtly it was not in my heart to become angry. By heavens! one glance in her eyes would disarm any man."

"Yes," he interrupted, "but whence came she there, and for what purpose?" "I told him all I knew, and he listened eagerly, his eyes on Schultz pattering about the fire.

"She must have fished in her throat to find out the revenge." "I fear it was not just," I said solemnly. "She was in a mood to do even that, and I do not think she feared the man. They may be on our trail now, and I close at hand. Brady, for my part, would not hesitate to step boldly forth, and would play his forward inch by inch. I felt the hot blood leap in my veins; then the fellow, still crouching low, but with the barrel of the rifle appeared around the edge of the pile of earth, scarcely two yards distant. All I saw clearly was a hat with a feather in it, and a distinct outline of form and the black rifle barrel. My rifle came up to the shoulder, and I slipped into the open.

"I heard a quick breath of surprise, and the exclamation: 'The stock of the rifle sank to the ground, but the hands still clung to the barrel, as the startled figure straightened up. I saw that, mon Dieu! The wilderness is not a parlor where we wear hats, but the short, slender form was that of a boy. The relief at this discovery brought a laugh to my lips.

"What does this mean?" I asked. "Have children gone to war? Come, answer me; you are no savage." "It is not a lad with whom you deal, Monsieur Hayward," replied a soft voice, trembling a bit nevertheless, though attempting boldness. "I am a French officer, and you know me now."

"She flung the concealing hat into the grass, the silvery light of the stars on her face. "I exclaimed in swift surprise at this unexpected development, and feeling the hot blood flush my face. "You came with Gray?"

"She ventured to laugh lightly at my tone and manner. "We traveled together—yes. What soldier is unattached—yes—and the soldier's coat is gone!"

"We searched the room carefully, but discerned no sign of his having been snatched, except for the foot of the slightly rag, and the disappearance of the red coat. We dare not carry a torch into the open, and the night was too dark for us to trace marks on the ground. Brady stood in the glow of daylight, looking to the priming of his rifle, his face shadowed.

"I am a French officer, and you know me now," he said firmly. "Yes, I am all right now. I meant to take you along, but I reckon, it will be safer not to leave the Dutchman here alone. However, I don't think there will be any more visitors tonight."

"He slipped out the back way, disappearing instantly, and I picked up my own rifle, bade Schultz remain where he was, and followed, with the purpose of scouting about the island. I could perceive the new danger we were in. Suppose the assassin, eager to save himself from suspicion, should be attracted to that camp of raiders, and relying on their friendship for protection, charge us with the murder of D'Avray. What mercy could we hope for at their hands? Beyond doubt the band was composed of white men and warriors, who had already taken our blood, and under control of no chief able to restrain them, if their wild passions should be aroused.

"But I emerged into darkness and silence. Quickly as I had made this decision I was too late. The scout had already disappeared into the narrow open space, and vanished into the fangs of trees. There was nothing to guide me, except a vague sense of direction. I set I felt my way forward through the dense tree growth, hearing no sound of movement, and compelled to move slowly until I emerged at the shore and could perceive the stars reflected on the surface of still water. As I stepped there clear of the woods' shadows, my courage gradually returned, and my attention appeared less desperate. Whoever the fellow who had killed D'Avray in my night, he was a French officer, and the raiders as we did. The more I thought the more I felt that the man was a French officer, and the more I felt that the man was a French officer.

"Why do you say that, Joseph Hayward? Why do you keep up this talk of a French officer? We have had longer at Fort Harman where it was easier for you to guard your speech."

"I do not know how long a time passed, only that I crept the house twice, stirring the edge of the woods in my rounds, keeping well in the Macler shadows, and moving noiselessly, every nerve alert. Back of the house I discovered a mound of earth heaped as a roof, over an opening in the ground, evidently a cellar of some kind. So far as I could discover, by groping in the darkness, there was nothing concealed within, but the entrance offered a good hiding place, and I sat down there where I could see in every direction, with my rifle across my knees. The stars yielded a special light, and no one could move across the clearing unobserved. I sat there for ten minutes, seeing and hearing nothing, gradually growing drowsy in the silence, my head sinking back against the earth mound. Yet I remained awake and watchful, although when I first perceived a figure fitting out of the black fringe of woods, I half believed it a dream. But it was no dream, and I sat up suddenly, my heart beating like a triplanner, and started. I could see little, not enough to determine whether the intruder was savage or white, merely perceiving an indistinct form, crouching low, yet vaulting as he slowly crept forward. There was no hesitancy, no evidence of fear, but merely the natural caution of one traveling alone in the wilderness. At first I believed it to be Brady returning, but he hesitated to step boldly forth, for the figure appeared small and unarmored, barely perceptible against the darker background of earth.

"To reassure myself I drew cautiously back a step within the cellar entrance, and waited breathlessly, bracing myself to meet either friend or foe. I could see the outline of the intruder, and the caution of his approach made me certain the man must be an enemy. Surely Brady, even while carrying every precaution, would not hesitate to step boldly forth, and would play his forward inch by inch. I knew you would be here; that was why I came alone—that was why I took to each other, and no longer lie." He stared at her face in the starlight, my memory suddenly reverting to the dead man within.

CHAPTER VII.

Mademoiselle Meets Her Father. "There was evidently no use of my groping longer in the dark. The girl was in earnest; she firmly believed me to be another. There could be no understanding between us until this mystery of identity was cleared away. Her discovery of me here had only served to increase her hallucination."

"Mademoiselle D'Avray," I said earnestly, and I stood hushed before her, "there is a serious mistake being made. I am not willing you should deceive yourself any longer. I am going to be perfectly frank with you, and in return, ask you to be equally frank with me. Who do you believe me to be?"

"She gazed straight into my face, answering a clearer English than before. "Of course," smiling, "you heard the name at Fort Harman."

"But I did not; it was never mentioned in my presence. I recognized you."

"Which would imply that we had met before, yet I have no recollection of the faintest of such a meeting. You are not one it would be easy to forget."

"Unless one particularly desired to do so," she replied sweetly, "and that I am beginning to suspect in the case." She straightened her slender figure, throwing back her shoulders and using a clearer English than before, as if throwing off disguise. "You ask me to deal with you frankly, mon sieur; very well, I will. Down in my heart I have never trusted you—never. My father did, and made pretense to please him. But from our first meet-

"You Call Me a Spy, but I Am Not." "My womanly instincts told me you were false. Now I know it! You are not with us, but with our enemies; you are a traitor to a spy."

"The words stung, but they were like the thrusts of a knife. Was the girl insane—mad?"

"You call me a spy," I said soberly, as her head fell. "But I am not. To me this is all mystery. But what about yourself, mademoiselle? Why were you at Fort Harman? What purpose brought you there?"

"I went there openly, and in no disguise," she replied, restraining herself with an effort. "I was not a spy, nor a victim of curiosity. I knew the truth when I said I was seeking my father."

"Why were you at once to return north without finding him?"

"Because I had learned he was not there, not in the American forts. I heard the general tell it to you."

"To meet the name was wrong, mademoiselle. We spoke only of a medicine man—'Wa-pa-too-tah.'"

"Yes, the White Chief. He came to the Wyandots with the Christians. He was there before the protests, and it is through his efforts that we have peace. Yet why did I tell you of this? You have met him in council, have eaten at his table, and shared his bed. He also has stood, and blocked your plans at Fort Harman."

"Mademoiselle," I said, "I do not see this controversy, this misunderstanding, for that, and that, and that, for this night at least. I will be frank with you, and not be held as an enemy. You have been in my mind ever since we first met. I have not been able to drive you from my memory. I must bring you my news, but my heart is full of kindness and sympathy. You will believe me."

WILSON PREDICTS BOOM FOLLOWING TRUST LEGISLATION

PRESIDENT DETERMINED ON ACTION AND DECLARES RESULT WILL PLEASE COUNTRY IN THE END.

WILL STOP GUESSING WHICH IS VERY FATAL

Calls the Measure "New Constitution of Freedom" for Business—Cites Fear of Enacted Legislation to Prove Netting Harmful Will Result.

Washington, June 27.—Under a "new constitution of freedom" for business given by anti-trust legislation soon to be passed by congress, President Wilson promises the country the greatest business boom in its history.

Wilson's Final Answer.
This was the president's final answer to the opponents of trust legislation at this session of congress, and to prophets of evil times, delivered with determined emphasis and every word emphasized with a clenched fist.

"We know what we are doing," said Mr. Wilson, "we purpose to do it under advice, for we have been fortunate enough to obtain the advice of men who understand the business of the country, and we know that the effect is going to be exactly what the effect of the currency reform was, a sense of relief and security."

Editors Are Addressed.
The president spoke to a group of Virginia editors in the east room of the White House, but his remarks were intended for the country. A military aide in full dress uniform stood beside him and there was every indication that the speech was meant to be one of the most important of the administration. News of the failure of the H. H. Glatfelter company in New York had reached the White House earlier, but the president did not mention the incident. The speech in part follows:

"It is most appropriate in receiving you, to say just a word or two in assistance of your judgment about the existing conditions. You are largely responsible for the state of public opinion. You furnish the public with information and in your editorials you furnish it with the interpretation of that information. We are in the presence of a business situation which is variously interpreted. Here in Washington, through the bureau of commerce and other instrumentalities that are at our disposal, and through a correspondence which comes to us from all parts of the nation, we are perhaps in a position to judge of the actual condition of business better than those single point in the country; and I want to say to you that as a matter of fact the signs of a very strong business revival are becoming more and more evident from day to day.

Feverish for Long Time.
"I want to suggest this to you: Business has been in a feverish and apprehensive condition in this country for more than ten years. Business men have acted as some men do who fear they will have to undergo an operation and who are not sure that when they get on the table the operation will not be a capital operation. As a matter of fact, as the diagnosis has progressed, it has become more and more evident that no capital operation was necessary; that at the most a minor operation was necessary to remove admitted distempers and evils.

"There is nothing more fatal to business than to be kept guessing."
"First, there was the tariff, and business shivered. Then came the currency reform.
"Dread of Trust Program.
"Then we advanced to the trust program and again the same dread, the same hesitation, the same urgency that the thing should be postponed, it will not be postponed; and it will not be postponed because we are the friends of business.
"Because, when the program is finished it is finished, the interrogation points are rubbed off the state, business is given its constitution of freedom and is hidden go forward under that constitution. And just so soon it gets that leave and freedom there will be a boom of business in this country such as we have never witnessed in the United States."

New High Record Temperatures.
Washington, June 26.—Terrific heat that established new June records in several cities has spread over practically all of the country eastward and southward from the Ohio valley. In Augusta and Savannah, Ga., the mercury reached 102 degrees. Other new records for June were established near Louisville and Jacksonville with temperatures of 100, and in New Orleans where the official temperature showed 98 degrees. Denver had a temperature of 92. New York was comparatively cool at 84.

WESTERN CANADA'S NATURAL RESOURCES

PETROLEUM, NATURAL GAS, COAL AND FARM LANDS.

The developments that have taken place recently in the oil and gas fields of Western Canada have not added another to the many previous evidences that have been produced, showing the great wealth that has been an unknown asset for so many generations.

The latest reports from the oil fields at Calgary show that there is a production there that would appear to equal the best paying fields on the continent. Experts have been on the ground for some time. It is said that one of the wells is able to produce 3000 gallons an hour. If this is so there are not about a dozen wells in the world of greater production. During the past week discoveries of surface indications have been made which show that oil exists over a considerable portion of Alberta and Saskatchewan, while in Manitoba there have also been showings. At Buffalo, Saskatchewan, a few days ago discoveries were made which led to the filing for leases on twenty thousand acres of land, all having strong surface indications. Companies were formed to carry on immediate work, and in a couple of months, or probably less, the story will be whether oil exists in paying quantities.

But there are also the coal deposits and the natural gas deposits that are helping to make of Western Canada one of the wealthiest portions of the continent.

With the grain fields covering these hidden riches it is no wonder that a continued state of optimism has to be seen everywhere. Early reports of seeding of all grains being successfully completed all over the country are followed by reports of excellent and strong growth everywhere. During the first week in June most of the wheat had reached a growth of from twelve to twenty inches, and in every appearance, almost universally, that has been seen for years. Oats appeared equally well, and covered the ground in a way that brought the broadest kind of a grin to overproud farmer's countenance.

Barley, a favorite with the hog raiser, had taken good root, and was crowding out for a first place, as to length of shoot. Cultivated fodder grasses are getting great attention, as a consequence of the inclination to go more largely into mixed farming, and the raising of hogs, cattle and horses. The weather is reported fine, just what is needed, and if present favorable conditions continue, the grain crop of Western Canada for 1914 will be the largest average in the history of the country—Advertisement.

ON EGYPT'S FAMOUS RIVER

Bailing on Its Placid Waters Rowers Weired Glean as They Tug at Their Oars.

As we sat on deck, beneath the mists of the morning, the skies slowly turned from orange to lilac and purple of night, throwing a strange pink light over the city's buildings, Arlene Bell writes in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The mists rose and date palms became black and great white cranes, seemingly knowing that their wings had an appropriate background, circled over our heads, over the deep azure river and over the many white sailed dahabias that were floating along in the breezeless night, propelled by rowers who were chanting weirdly as they tugged at the oars.

Dimly we could see the black draped figures of numberless women approach the river's brink and we knew that the splashes in the water were caused by the dropping of the heavy jugs, which they twirl around till they are filled, after which they raise them laboriously to their heads and then skip up the banks and disappear in the darkness of the night.

The sounds of the city ceased and all was quiet. All but the plaintive lay of a piper who must have been somewhere not far off on the bank of the river. It seemed to me he was playing the love song of Larbi or Beni Mora. It was monotonous and drowsy and invoked sleep. In the morning before dawn I heard the boys pulling the muzzin rang out from the minaret. For good Mohammedans it meant that a new day had begun—but for infidel Americans, there were several additional hours of sleep.

Teaching the Children.
In the Woman's Home Companion appears a department called "The Exchange," in which various contributors give household suggestions. A Texas woman tells, as follows, how she has taught her children to pick up their playthings:

"Being a busy homemaker with three healthy babies to watch over, I try to teach them to help themselves. One great problem is to get scattered toys picked up and put away in proper places. I secured a good-sized soap box, which I covered neatly with denim, and to which I fastened four casters. At night this is my 'freight train' and it's a very simple matter to get my men to push the car around and collect scattered freight (toys)."

New Modern Dancing.
The leading expert and instructor in New York City writes, "Dear Sir—I have used ALLEN'S FOOT-PAKE, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes for the past six years. It is pleasant to all who are compelled to be on their feet. I dance night after night, and find that ALLEN'S FOOT-PAKE keeps my feet cool, takes the friction from the bottom of my shoes, and I recommend it to all my pupils."
ALLEN'S FOOT-PAKE, Address ALLEN'S BATHING ROOM, 211 Broadway, New York.

Their Minds Are Tranquil.
"Why is it that women look so much cooler than men in summer?"
"Well, for one thing, they are not always wondering who's going to pitch the next game."

WOMEN CAN HARDLY BELIEVE

How Mrs. Hurley Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eldon, Mo.—"I was troubled with displacement, inflammation and female weakness. For two weeks I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased every month. I have been at that time unable to walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, and had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world. After I had tried most every female remedy without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no troubles in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere. It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulcerations, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backaches, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it? Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.
